Purpose stated in Juvenile Court Act to give juvenile in custody the care, as nearly as possible equivalent to that which should have been given by his parents, establishes not only an important policy objective, but, in an appropriate case, a legal right to a custody that is not inconsistent with the parens patriae premise of the law. Id.

Congressional purpose in passing Juvenile Court Act was to establish a professionally staffed, specialized court, equipped with broad powers to implement rehabilitative purposes of Act, and Juvenile Court is vested with broad range of discretion in light of its professional expertise. Id.

Construction

Presumption of statutory framework is that juveniles are to be treated as juveniles and full investigation is required before waiver to adult court. All possible dispositions short of waiver must be explored by which welfare of child and best interests of district may be secured. D. V. Haziel v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1275, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

Juvenile court legislation rests, in various aspects, on premise that state is acting as parens patriae, that it is undertaking in effect to provide for child the kind of environment he should have been receiving at home, and that it is because of this that appropriate officials, while subject to requirement that juvenile proceedings must not be arbitrary or unfair, are permitted to take and retain custody of child without affording him all various procedural rights available to adults suspected of crime. E. Creek, Jr. v. W. J. Stone (1967, 379 F. 2d 106, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 329).

Court's duty

Court in a waiver proceedings from juvenile court to district court has duty to utilize its facilities, personnel and expertise for proper determination of waiver issue. D. V. Haziel v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1275, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

Juvenile court has duty to accompany waiver order with a statement of reasons or considerations sufficient to demonstrate full investigation and to show that question has received careful consideration and must set forth basis for order with sufficient specificity to permit meaningful review. Id.

Custody, care and discipline

Under provisions of Juvenile Court Act that when child is removed from his own family, court shall secure for him custody, care and discipline as nearly as possible equivalent to that which should have been given him by his parents, when removal from family is deemed necessary, juvenile is not automatically to be committed to the receiving home; the juvenile court has duty to fashion appropriate disposition notwithstanding any failure by juvenile's representatives to make specific proposals. W. R. Fulwood v. W. Stone (1967, 394 F. 2d 939, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 314).

Under provisions of Juvenile Court Act that when a child is removed from his own family, court shall secure for him custody, care and discipline as nearly as possible equivalent to that which should have been given him by his parents, commitment to receiving home should be only a last resort where no suitable alternative exists. Id.

Full investigation

Juvenile court's decision in waiver proceeding that facilities currently available to juvenile court offered no promise of rehabilitation did not adequately show that required full investigation had been made. D. V. Hazel v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1275, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

Jurisdiction

Juvenile Court has jurisdiction to enter order concerning child in its custody pendente lite, pending the disposition on the merits. E. Creek Jr. v. W. J. Stone (1967, 379 F. 2d 106, 126, U.S. App. D.C. 329).

Jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court is comprehensive and is to be taken as attaching at the earliest stage necessary to implement the broad rehabilitative purposes of the law. Id.

Substitute for bail

Provisions of Juvenile Court Act directing disposition of juveniles coming under jurisdiction of juvenile court are adequate substitute for bail. W. R. Fulwood v. W. Stone (1967, 394 F. 2d 939, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 314).

Treatment of juvenile in "interim" custody

Where claim is presented to Juvenile Court by juvenile in custody alleging a need for treatment which is not being furnished, the fact that the custody is "interim" as opposed to "final" does not end the matter, and Juvenile Court, when presented with a substantial complaint, should make appropriate inquiry to insure that statutory criteria, as applied to that particular juvenile, are being met, and the depth and scope of such inquiry will vary with the case. E. Creek Jr. v. W. J. Stone (1967, 379 F. 2d 106, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 329).

Waiver

Where juvenile's counsel waived hearing without consultation with client in connection with transfer from juvenile court to district court by letter and telephone conversation and decision of court did not show that it made full investigation before ordering waiver, waiver was improper. D. V. Haziel v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1275, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

Only after all rehabilitative possibilities have been canvassed is it ever proper to waive jurisdiction to district court from juvenile court. Id.

Waiver of jurisdiction in case of mentally ill person

Waiver provision of Juvenile Court Act is not excluded from the fundamental philosophy of parens patriae which underlies the statute. M. A. Kent, Jr. v. United States (1968, 401 F. 2d 408, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 343).

Social philosophy underlying Juvenile Court Act precluded waiver by juvenile court of juvenile afflicted with serious mental illness, since such waiver was not necessary for protection of society and was not conducive to juvenile's rehabilitation. Id.

Withdrawal of treatment as a juvenile

Treatment as a juvenile may be withdrawn pursuant to waiver proceedings only after full investigation. D. V. Haziel v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1275, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

§ 16–2311. Release or delivery to Family Division

(a) A person taking a child into custody shall with all reasonable speed—

(1) release the child to his parent, guardian, or custodian upon a promise to bring the child before the Division when requested by the Division, unless the child's placement in detention or shelter care appears required as provided in section 16–2310;

(2) bring the child before the Director of Social Services; or

(3) bring the child to a medical facility if the child appears to require prompt treatment or to require prompt diagnosis for medical or evidentiary purposes.

Any person taking a child into custody shall give prompt notice to the Corporation Counsel and to the parent, guardian, or custodian (if known) together with the reasons for custody.

(b) When a child is brought before the Director of Social Services, the Director shall in all cases review the need for detention or shelter care prior to the admission of the child to the place of detention or shelter care. The child shall be released to his parent, guardian, or custodian unless the Director of Social Services finds that detention or shelter care is required under section 16–2310. If the child is not released, the Director of Social Services shall advise him of the right to counsel as provided in section 16–2304.

(c) If a parent, guardian, or custodian fails, when requested, to bring the child to the Division as provided in subsection (a)(1), the Division may issue a warrant directing that the child be taken into custody and brought before the Division. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 530.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 16–2309, 16–2312.

§ 16–2312. Detention or shelter care hearing; intermediate disposition

(a) When a child is not released as provided in section 16–2311—

(1) a detention or shelter care hearing shall be commenced not later than the next day (excluding Sundays) after the child has been taken into custody or transferred from another court as provided by section 16–2302; and

(2) a petition shall be filed at or prior to the detention or shelter care hearing.

(b) Prompt notice of the detention or shelter care hearing shall be given, if delinquency or need of supervision is alleged, to the child, and to his spouse (if any), parent, guardian, or custodian, if he can be found, or, if neglect is alleged, to the child, and to the parent, guardian, or custodian named in the petition if he can be found. Counsel for the child, and in neglect cases counsel for the parent, guardian, or custodian, shall be entitled to a copy of the petition prior to the hearing.

(c) At the comencement of the hearing the judge shall advise the parties of the right to counsel, as provided in section 16–2304, and shall appoint counsel if required. He shall also inform them of the contents of the petition and shall afford the child, or in a neglect case, the parent, guardian, or custodian, an opportunity to admit or deny the allegations in the petition. He shall then hear from the Corporation Counsel to determine whether the child should be placed or continued in detention or shelter care under the criteria in section 16–2310. The child and his parent, guardian, or custodian shall have a right to be heard in their own behalf.

(d) (1) At the conclusion of the hearing, the judge shall—

(A) order detention or shelter care, setting forth in writing his reasons therefor, if he finds that the child's detention or shelter care is required under the criteria in section 16–2310; or

(B) order the child released if he finds that the child's detention or shelter care is not required under such criteria.

(2) If a child is ordered released under paragraph (1) (B) of this subsection, the judge may impose one or more of the following conditions:

(A) Placement of the child in the custody of a parent, guardian, or custodian or under supervision of a person or organization agreeing to supervise him.

(B) Placement of restrictions on the child's travel, activities, or place of abode during the period of release.

(C) Any other condition reasonably necessary to assure the appearance of the child at a factfinding hearing or his protection from harm, including a requirement that the child return to the physical custody of the parent, guardian, or custodian after specified hours.

(e) When a judge finds that a child's detention or shelter care is required under the criteria of section 16–2310, he shall then hear evidence presented by the Corporation Counsel to determine whether there is probable cause to believe the allegations in the petition are true. The child, his parent, guardian or custodian may present evidence on the issues and be heard in their own behalf.

(f) When a judge finds there is probable cause to believe the allegations in the petition are true, he shall order the child to be placed or continued in detention or shelter care and set forth his reasons. When a judge finds that there is not probable cause to believe the allegations in the petition are true, he shall order the child to be released.

(g) The Division at a detention or shelter care hearing may not postpone the determination of whether detention or shelter care is required. For good cause shown, however, the Division may grant a continuance of any other part of the hearing (including the filing of a petition) for a period not to exceed five days.

(h) On motion by or on behalf of the child, a child in custody shall be released from custody if his detention or shelter care hearing is not commenced within the time set herein.

(i) If a child is not released after his detention or shelter care hearing and the parent, guardian or custodian did not receive notice thereof, the Division may, in the interest of justice, conduct a new hearing in accordance with rules prescribed by the Superior Court.

(j) Upon objection of the child or his parent, guardian or custodian, a judge who conducted a detention or shelter care hearing shall not conduct a factfinding hearing on the petition. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 530.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also § 11–1584 in 1967 Edition]

Jurisdiction

Juvenile Court has jurisdiction to enter order concerning child in its custody pendente lite, pending the disposition on the merits. E. Creek, Jr. v. W. J. Stone (1967, 379 F. 2d 106, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 329).

Jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court is comprehensive and is to be taken as attaching at the earliest stage necessary to implement the broad rehabilitative purposes of the law. Id.

§ 16–2313. Place of detention or shelter

(a) A child who is alleged to be neglected and who is in custody may be placed at any time prior to disposition, only in—

(1) a foster home;

(2) a group home, youth shelter, or other appropriate home for nondelinquent children; or

(3) another facility for shelter care designated by the Division, including an appropriate facility operated by the District of Columbia.

No child alleged to be neglected may be placed in a facility described in paragraph (3) of subsection (b) of this section.

(b) A child who is alleged to be in need of supervision or (except as provided in subsection (d) or (e)) is alleged to be delinquent and who is in custody may be detained at any time prior to disposition only in—

(1) a foster home;

(2) a group home, youth shelter, or other appropriate home for allegedly delinquent children; or

(3) a detention home for allegedly delinquent children or children alleged to be in need of supervision, designated by the Division, including an appropriate facility operated by the District of Columbia.

Unless the Division shall by order so authorize, no child may be detained in a facility described in paragraph (3) if it would result in his commingling with children who have been adjudicated delinquent and committed by order of the Division.

(c) A child in detention or shelter care may be temporarily transferred to a medical facility for physical care and may, on order of the Division, be temporarily transferred to a facility for mental examination or treatment.

(d) Except as provided in subsection (e), no child under eighteen years of age may be detained in a jail or other facility for the detention of adults, unless transferred as provided in section 16–2307. The appropriate official of a jail or other facility for the detention of adults shall inform the Superior Court immediately when a child under the age of eighteen years is received there (other than by transfer) and shall (1) deliver him to the Director of Social Services upon request, or (2) transfer him to a detention facility described in subsection (b)(3).

(e) A child sixteen years of age or older who is alleged to be delinquent and who is in detention, whose conduct constitutes a menace to other children, and who cannot be controlled, may on order of the Division be transferred to a place of detention for adults, but shall be kept separate from adults. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 531.)

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 16–2327.

§ 16–2314. Consent decree

(a) At any time after the filing of a delinquency or need of supervision petition and prior to adjudication at a factfinding hearing, the Division may, on motion of the Corporation Counsel or counsel for the child, suspend the proceedings and continue the child under supervision, without commitment, under terms and conditions established by rules of the Superior Court. Such a consent decree shall not be entered unless the child is represented by counsel and has been informed of the consequences of the decree; nor shall it be entered over the objection of the child or of the Corporation Counsel.

(b) A consent decree shall remain in force for six months unless the child is sooner discharged by the Director of Social Services. Upon application of the Director of Social Services or an agency supervising the child made prior to the expiration of the decree, a consent decree may, after notice and hearing, be extended for not more than six additional months by order of the Division.

(c) If prior to the expiration of the decree or discharge by the Director of Social Services, the child fails to fulfill the express conditions of the decree or a new delinquency or need of supervision petition is filed concerning the child, the original petition under which the decree was filed may, in the discretion of the Corporation Counsel following consultation with the Director of Social Services, be reinstated. The child shall thereafter be held accountable on the original petition as if the consent decree had never been entered.

(d) If a child completes the period of continuance under supervision in accordance with the consent decree or is sooner discharged by the Director of Social Services, the Division shall dismiss the original petition. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 532.)

§ 16–2315. Physical and mental examinations

(a) At any time following the filing of a petition, on motion of the Corporation Counsel or counsel for the child, or on its own motion, the Division may order a child to be examined to aid in determining his physical or mental condition.

(b) Wherever possible examinations shall be conducted on an outpatient basis, but the Division may, if it deems necessary, commit the child to a suitable medical facility or institution for the purpose of examination. Commitment for examination shall be for a period of not more than forty-five days; except that the Division may, for good cause shown, grant extensions of the commitment which may not exceed forty-five days in the aggregate.

(c)(1) If as a result of mental examination the Division determines that a child alleged to be delinquent is incompetent to participate in proceedings under the petition by reason of mental illness or substantial retardation, it shall, except as provided in subsection (2), suspend further proceedings and the Corporation Counsel shall initiate commitment proceedings pursuant to chapter 5 or 11 of title 21.

(2) If a motion for transfer for criminal prosecution has been filed pursuant to section 16–2307 and the Division determines that a child alleged to be delinquent is incompetent to participate in the transfer proceedings by reason of mental illness, it shall suspend further proceedings and order the child confined to a suitable hospital or facility for the mentally ill until his competency is restored. If prior to the time the child reaches the age of 21 it appears that he will not regain his competency to participate in the proceedings, the Corporation Counsel shall initiate commitment proceedings pursuant to chapter 5 of title 21.

(3) If, as a result of mental examination, the Division determines that a child alleged to be in need of supervision is incompetent to participate in proceedings under the petition by reason of mental illness or substantial retardation, it shall suspend further proceedings. If proceedings are suspended, the Corporation Counsel may initiate commitment proceedings pursuant to chapter 5 or 11 of title 21.

(d) The results of an examination under this section shall be admissible in a transfer hearing pursuant to section 16–2307, in a dispositional hearing under this subchapter, or in a commitment proceeding under chapter 5 or 11 of title 21. The results of examination may be admitted into evidence at a factfinding hearing to aid the Division in determining a material allegation of the petition relating to the child's mental or physical condition, but not for the purpose of establishing a defense of insanity.

(e) Following an adjudication at a factfinding hearing that a child is neglected, the Division may order the mental or physical examination of the parent, guardian, or custodian of the child whose ability to care for the child is at issue. The results of the examination are admissible at a dispositional hearing on the petition alleging neglect. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 533.)

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 16–2307, 16–2321.

§ 16–2316. Conduct of hearings; evidence

(a) The Division shall, without a jury, hear and adjudicate cases involving delinquency, need of supervision, or neglect. The Corporation Counsel shall present evidence in support of all petitions arising under this subchapter and otherwise represent the District of Columbia in all proceedings.

(b) Evidence which is competent, material, and relevant shall be admissible at factfinding hearings. Evidence which is material and relevant shall be admissible at detention hearings, transfer hearings under section 16–2307, and dispositional hearings.

(c) All hearings and proceedings under this subchapter shall be recorded by appropriate means. Except in hearings to declare a person in contempt of court, the general public shall be excluded from hearings arising under this subchapter. Only persons necessary to the proceedings shall be admitted, but the Division may, pursuant to rule of the Superior Court, admit such other persons (including members of the press) as have a proper interest in the case or the work of the court on condition that they refrain from divulging information identifying the child or members of his family involved in the proceedings.

(d) If the Division finds that it is in the best interest of the child, it may temporarily exclude him from any proceeding except a factfinding hearing. If the petition alleges neglect, the child may also be temporarily excluded from a factfinding hearing. In any case, counsel for the child may not be excluded. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 533.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also § 16–2307, and other sections in title 16, chapter 23 in 1967 Edition]

Court's duty

Trial judge has duty under Juvenile Court Act, where parens patriae principle justifies some tempering of adversarial nature of process, greater than in adversary criminal trial to insure that child receives full benefits promised by statutory scheme. D. V. Haziel v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1275, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

Full investigation

Juvenile court is armed with broad statutory powers to conduct an appropriate inquiry to fashion dispositional decree tailored to meet peculiar needs of particular child when it is presented with substantial complaint concerning commitment. In the Matter of J. G. Elmore (1967, 382 F. 2d 125, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 176).

Substantial complaint

Where there is an explicit finding that infant needed psychological or psychiatric care to meet his needs and there was claim that infant was receiving no treatment, there was "substantial complaint" calling for appropriate inquiry by juvenile court. In the Matter of J. G. Elmore (1967, 382 F. 2d 125, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 176).

§ 16–2317. Hearings, findings; dismissal

(a) Except as otherwise provided by statute or court rule, all motions shall be heard at the time of the factfinding hearing.

(b) After a factfinding hearing on the allegations in the petition, the Division shall make and file written findings in all cases as to the truth of the allegations, and in neglect cases, he shall also make and file written findings as to whether the child is neglected. If the Division finds that—

(1) in the case of a delinquency petition, that the allegations have not been established by proof beyond a reasonable doubt, or

(2) in the case of a need of supervision or neglect petition, that the allegations have not been established by the preponderance of the evidence, the Division shall dismiss the petition and order the child released from any detention or shelter care or other restriction previously ordered. If the proceedings are not terminated after the factfinding hearing, the Division shall review the need for detention or shelter care of the child.

(c) If the Division finds in a factfinding hearing that—

(1) the allegations in a delinquency petition have been established by proof beyond a reasonable doubt, or

(2) the allegations in a need of supervision or neglect petition have been established by the preponderance of the evidence, the Division, after giving the notice required by subsection (e) of this section, shall proceed to hold a dispositional hearing. The Division may postpone a dispositional hearing to await the predisposition study and report of the Director of Social Services required by section 16–2319. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, a finding of the commission of an act which would constitute a criminal offense if committed by an adult is sufficient to sustain a finding of need for care or rehabilitation in delinquency and need of supervision cases.

(d) If the Division finds that the child is not in need of care or rehabilitation it shall terminate the proceedings and discharge the child from detention, shelter care, or other restriction previously ordered.

(e) The Division shall give prompt notice of any dispositional hearing as follows:

(1) In delinquency and need of supervision cases, to the child, his spouse (if any), and his parent, guardian, or custodian.

(2) In neglect cases, to the child and to the parent, guardian, or custodian named in the petition if he can be found.

(July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 534.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 16–2307, 16–2319, 16–2320.

§ 16–2318. Order of adjudication noncriminal

A consent decree, order of adjudication, or order of disposition in a proceeding under this subchapter is not a conviction of crime and does not impose any civil disability ordinarily resulting from a conviction, nor does it operate to disqualify a child in any future civil service examination, appointment or application for public service in either the Government of the United States or of the District of Columbia. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 534.)

See note preceding section 11–101.

§ 16–2319. Predisposition study and report

After a motion for transfer has been filed, or after the Division has made findings pursuant to subsection (c) of section 16–2317 sustaining the allegations of a petition and, in neglect cases, the conclusion that the child is neglected, the Division shall direct that a predisposition study and report to the Division be made by the Director of Social Services or a qualified agency designated by the Division concerning the child, his family, his environment, and other matters relevant to the need for treatment or disposition of the case. Except in connection with a hearing on a transfer motion, no predisposition study or report shall be furnished to or considered by the Division prior to completion of the factfinding hearing. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 535.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 16–2317.

§ 16–2320. Disposition of child who is neglected, delinquent, or in need of supervision

(a) If a child is found to be neglected, the Division may order any of the following dispositions which will be in the best interest of the child:

(1) Permit the child to remain with his parent, guardian, or other custodian, subject to such conditions and limitations as the Division may prescribe, including but not limited to medical, psychiatric, or other treatment at an appropriate facility on an out-patient basis.

(2) Place the child under protective supervision.

(3) Transfer legal custody to any of the following—

(A) a public agency responsible for the care of neglected children;

(B) a child placing agency or other private organization or facility which is licensed or otherwise authorized by law and is designated by the Commissioner of the District of Columbia to receive and provide care for the child; or

(C) a relative or other individual who is found by the Division to be qualified to receive and care for the child.

(4) Commitment of the child for medical, psychiatric, or other treatment at an appropriate facility on an in-patient basis if, at the dispositional hearing provided for in section 16–2317, the Division finds that confinement is necessary to the treatment of the child. A child for whom medical, psychiatric, or other treatment is ordered may petition the Division for review of the order thirty days after treatment under the order has commenced, and, if, after a hearing for the purpose of such review, the original order is affirmed, the child may petition for review thereafter every six months.

(5) Make such other disposition as may be provided by law and as the Division deems to be in the best interests of the child and the community.

(b) Unless a child found neglected is also found to be delinquent, he shall not be committed to, or confined in, an institution for delinquent children.

(c) If a child is found to be delinquent or in need of supervision, the Division may order any of the following dispositions for his supervision, care, and rehabilitation:

(1) Any disposition authorized by subsection (a) (other than paragraph (3)(A) thereof).

(2) Transfer of legal custody to a public agency for the care of delinquent children.

(3) Probation under such conditions and limitations as the Division may prescribe.

(d) No child found in need of supervision, unless also found delinquent, shall be committed to or placed in an institution or facility for delinquent children; except that if such child has previously been found in need of supervision and the Division, after hearing, so finds, the Division may specify that such child be committed to or placed in an institution or facility for delinquent children.

(e) No child who is found to be delinquent, in need of supervision, or neglected shall be committed to a penal or correctional institution for adult offenders. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 535.)

§ 16–2321. Disposition of mentally ill or substantially retarded child

(a) If no previous examination has been made under section 16–2315 and the Division, after a fact-finding but before a dispositional hearing, has reason to believe that a child is mentally ill or substantially retarded, it may order an examination as provided in section 16–2315.

(b) If as a result of the examination the child is found to be mentally ill or substantially retarded, the Division may, in lieu of other disposition, direct the appropriate authority to initiate commitment proceedings under chapter 5 or 11 of title 21. The Division may order the child detained in suitable facilities pending commitment proceedings.

(c) If the examination does not indicate that commitment proceedings should be initiated or if the proceedings do not result in commitment, the Division shall proceed to disposition pursuant to this subchapter. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 536.)

§ 16–2322. Limitation of time on dispositional orders

(a)(1) A dispositional order vesting legal custody of a child in a department, agency, or institution shall remain in force for an indeterminate period not exceeding two years. Unless the order specifies that release is permitted only by order of the Division, the department, agency, or institution may release the child at any time that it appears the purpose of the disposition order has been achieved.

(2) An order vesting legal custody of a child in an individual other than his parent shall remain in force for two years unless sooner terminated by order of the Division.

(3) An order of probation or a protective supervision order shall remain in force for a period not exceeding one year from the date entered, but the Director of Social Services or the agency providing supervision may terminate supervision at any time that it appears the purpose of the order has been achieved.

(b) A dispositional order vesting legal custody of a child in an agency or institution may be extended for additional periods of one year, upon motion of the department, agency, or institution to which the child was committed, if, after notice and hearing, the Division finds that—

(1) in the case of a neglected child, the extension is necessary to safeguard his welfare; or

(2) in the case of a child adjudicated delinquent or in need of supervision, the extension is necessary for his rehabilitation or the protection of the public interest.

(c) Any other dispositional order may be extended for additional periods of one year, upon motion of the Director of Social Services, if, after notice and hearing, the Division finds that extension is necessary to protect the interest of the child.

(d) A release or termination of an order prior to expiration of the order pursuant to subsection (a)(1) or (3), shall promptly be reported in writing to the Division.

(e) Upon termination of a dispositional order a child shall be notified in writing of its termination. Upon termination of an order or release a child shall be notified, in accordance with rules of the Superior Court, of his right to move for the sealing of his records as provided in section 16–2334.

(f) Unless sooner terminated, all orders of the Division under this subchapter in force with respect to a child terminate when he reaches twenty-one years of age. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 537.)

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

§ 16–2323. Modification, termination of orders

(a) An order of the Division under this subchapter shall be set aside if—

(1) it was obtained by fraud or mistake sufficient to set aside an order or judgment in a civil action;

(2) the Division lacked jurisdiction; or

(3) newly discovered evidence so requires.

(b) A child who has been committed under this subchapter to the custody of an institution, agency, or person, or the parent or guardian of the child, may file a motion for modification or termination of the order of commitment on the ground that the child no longer is in need of commitment, if the child or his parent or guardian has applied to the institution or agency for release and the application was denied or not acted upon within a reasonable time.

(c) The Director of Social Services shall conduct a preliminary review of motions filed under subsection (b) and shall prepare a report to the Division on the allegations contained therein. The Division may dismiss the motion if it concludes from the report that it is without substance. Otherwise, the Division, after notice, shall hear and determine the issues raised by the motion and deny the motion, or enter an appropriate order modifying or terminating the order of commitment, if it finds such action necessary to safeguard the welfare of the child or the interest of the public.

(d) A motion may be filed under subsection (b) only once every six months. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 537.)

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also § 16–2309 and other sections in title 16, chapter 23 in 1967 edition]

Change in law after commitment

Where interpretation of Juvenile Court Act, by appellate court which imposed duty on juvenile court to make appropriate inquiry with aim of providing individualized care and treatment of infants, was made subsequent to decision committing infant to custody of department of public welfare, juvenile court should have opportunity to conduct full hearing and make its determination in light of new decision. In the Matter of J. G. Elmore (1967, 382 F. 2d 125, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 176).

§ 16–2324. Support of committed child

Whenever legal custody of a child is vested in any agency or individual other than the child's parent, after due notice to the parent or other persons legally obligated to care for and support the child and after hearing, the Division may, at the dispositional hearing or thereafter, order and decree that the parent or other legally obligated person shall pay, in such manner as the Division may direct, a reasonable sum that will cover in whole or in part the support and treatment of the child after the decree is entered. If the parent or other legally obligated person wilfully fails or refuses to pay such sum, the Division may proceed against him for contempt, or the order may be filed and shall have the effect of a civil judgment. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 537.)

§ 16–2325. Court costs and expenses

If, at the dispositional hearing or thereafter, the Division finds, after due notice and hearing, that the parent or other person legally obligated to care for and support a child subject to proceedings under this subchapter is financially able to pay, the Division may order him to pay all of or part of the costs of—

(1) physical and mental examinations and treatment of the child ordered by the Division; and

(2) reasonable compensation for services and related expenses of counsel appointed by the court to represent the child, or, in neglect cases, himself.

Payment shall be made as prescribed by rules of the Superior Court. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 537.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also § 11–1586 in 1967 Edition]

Evidence—Admissibility

Testimony given in administrative suspension hearing of arresting officer that he and juvenile officer were responsible for seizing juvenile driver's permit and turning it over to Department of Motor Vehicles along with facts relative to the incident, was not product of a disclosure or use of information concerning a juvenile before the court, directly or indirectly derived from records, papers, files, or communications of the court, or acquired in the course of official duties. K. P. Murphy, a minor etc. v. W. D. Heath, Director, etc. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 421).

Testimony of arresting officer, in administrative suspension hearing indicating, in response to permit control officer's question, that driver refused to take urine test was not of sufficient magnitude to fatally infect the fairness of the hearing in view of testimony as to odoriferous condition of driver's automobile and driver, his unsteady condition, and his unchallenged admission that he had earlier consumed substantial quality of beer. Id.

§ 16–2326. Probation revocation; disposition

(a) If a child on probation incident to an adjudication of delinquency or need of supervision violates any term of his probation he may be proceeded against in a probation revocation hearing.

(b) A proceeding to revoke probation shall be commenced by the filing of a revocation petition by the Corporation Counsel. The petition to revoke probation shall be in such form as may be prescribed by rule of the Superior Court and shall be served together with a summons in the manner provided in section 16–2306.

(c) Probation revocation proceedings shall be heard without a jury and shall require establishment of the facts alleged by a preponderance of the evidence. As nearly as may be appropriate, probation revocation proceedings shall conform to the procedures established by this subchapter for delinquency and need of supervision cases.

(d) If a child is found to have violated the terms of his probation, the Division may modify the terms and conditions of the probation order, extend the period of probation, or enter any other order of disposition specified in section 16–2320 for a delinquent child. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 538.)

See note preceding section 11–101.

§ 16–2327. Interlocutory appeals

(a) A child who has been ordered transferred for criminal prosecution under section 16–2307 or detained or placed in shelter care or subjected to conditions of release under section 16–2312, may, within two days of the date of entry of the Division's order, file a notice of interlocutory appeal.

(b) The District of Columbia Court of Appeals shall (1) hear argument on an appeal under subsection (a) on or before the third day (excluding Sundays) after the filing of notice under that subsection, (2) dispense with any requirement of written briefs other than the supporting materials previously submitted to the Division, and (3) render its decision on or before the next day following argument on appeal. The court may in rendering its decision dispense with the issuance of a written opinion.

(c) In cases involving transfer for criminal prosecution, the pendency of an interlocutory appeal shall act to stay criminal proceedings. Until the time for filing an interlocutory appeal has lapsed, or if an appeal is filed until its completion, no child who has been ordered transferred for criminal prosecution shall be removed to a place of adult detention, except as provided in section 16–2313, or otherwise treated as an adult.

(d) The decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals shall be final. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 538.)

§ 16–2328. Finality of judgments; appeals; transcripts

(a) Except as otherwise expressly provided by law, in all hearings and cases tried before the Division pursuant to this subchapter, the judgment of the Division is final.

(b) In all appeals from decisions of the Division with respect to a child alleged to be neglected, delinquent, or in need of supervision, the child shall be identified only by initials in all transcripts, briefs, and other papers filed, and all necessary steps, as prescribed by rule of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, shall be taken to protect the identity of the child.

(c) Upon the filing of a motion and supporting affidavit stating that he is financially unable to purchase a transcript, a party who has filed notice of appeal or of interlocutory appeal shall be furnished, at no cost or at such part of cost as he is able to pay, so much of the transcript as is necessary adequately to prepare and support the appeal.

(d) An appeal does not operate to stay the order, judgment, or decree appealed from, but on application and hearing whenever the case is properly before the appellate court, that court may order otherwise if suitable provision is made for the care and custody of the child. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 538.)

§ 16–2329. Time computation

(a) In all proceedings in the Division, time limitations shall be reasonably construed by the Division for the protection of the community and of the child.

(b) The following periods shall be excluded in computing the time limits established for proceedings under this subchapter:

(1) The period of delay resulting from a continuance granted, upon grounds constituting unusual circumstances, at the request or with the consent, in any case, of the child or his counsel, or, in neglect cases, also of the parent, guardian, or custodian.

(2) The period of delay resulting from other proceedings concerning the child, including but not limited to an examination or hearing on mental health or retardation and a hearing on a transfer motion.

(3) The period of delay resulting from a continuance granted at the request of the Corporation Counsel if the continuance is granted because of the unavailability of evidence material to the case, when the Corporation Counsel has exercised due diligence to obtain such evidence and there are reasonable grounds to believe that such evidence will be available at the later date; or if the continuance is granted to allow the Corporation Counsel additional time to prepare his case and additional time is required due to the exceptional circumstances of the case.

(4) The period of delay resulting from the imposition of a consent decree.

(5) The period of delay resulting from the absence or unavailability of the child.

(6) A reasonable period of delay when the child is joined for a hearing with another child as to whom the time for a hearing has not run and there is good cause for not hearing the case separately. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 539.)

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

§ 16–2330. Juvenile case records; confidentiality; inspection and disclosure

(a) As used in this section, the term "juvenile case records" refers to the following records of a case over which the Division has jurisdiction under section 11–1101(13):

(7) other persons having a professional interest in the protection, welfare, treatment, and rehabilitation of the respondent or of a member of his family, or in the work of the Superior Court, if authorized by rule or special order of the court.

Records inspected may not be divulged to unauthorized persons. The prosecuting attorney inspecting records pursuant to paragraph (6) of this subsection may divulge the contents to the extent required in the prosecution of a criminal case, and the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia and his assistants may inspect a transcript of the testimony of any witness and divulge the contents to the extent required by the prosecution of the witness for perjury, without, wherever possible, naming or otherwise revealing the identity of a child under the jurisdiction of the Division.

(c) Notwithstanding subsection (b), the Superior Court may by rule or special order provide that particular items or classes of items in juvenile case records shall not be open to inspection except pursuant to rule or special order; but, in dispositional proceedings after an adjudication, no item considered by the judge (other than identification of the sources of confidential information) shall be withheld from inspection (1) in delinquency or need of supervision cases, by the attorney for the child, or (2) in neglect cases, by the attorney for the child and an attorney for the parent, guardian, or other custodian of the child.

(d) The Superior Court may by rule or special order provide procedures for the inspection or copying of juvenile case records by persons entitled to inspect them. No person receiving any record or information pursuant to this section may publish or use it for any purpose other than that for which it was received without a special order of the court.

(e) No person shall disclose, inspect, or use records in violation of this section. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 539.)

(d) The Superior Court may by rule or special order provide procedures for the inspection or copying of juvenile social records by persons entitled to inspect them. § 16–2334. Sealing of records

(B) two years have elapsed since the final discharge of the person from legal custody or supervision, or since the entry of any other Division order not involving custody or supervision; and

(2) he has not been subsequently convicted of a crime, or adjudicated delinquent or in need of supervision prior to the filing of the motion, and no proceeding is pending seeking such conviction or adjudication.

(b) Reasonable notice of a motion shall be given to—

Nothing in this subchapter shall prevent a public agency having custody of a child who is under jurisdiction of the Division from providing the child with emergency medical treatment. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 543.)

SUBCHAPTER II.—PATERNITY PROCEEDINGS

§ 16–2341. Representation

(a) Where a public support burden has been incurred or is threatened, the Corporation Counsel, or any of his assistants, shall bring a civil action in the Family Division on behalf of any wife or child to enforce support of such wife or child.

(b) In all cases over which the Division has jurisdiction under paragraphs (3), (4), (10), and (11) of section 11–1101, where the court deems it necessary and proper, an attorney shall be appointed by the court to represent the respondent.

(c) Nothing in this section shall be construed to interfere with the right of an individual to file a civil action over which the Division has jurisdiction under the paragraphs of section 11–1101 referred to in subsection (b). (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 544.)

Proceedings over which the Division has jurisdiction under paragraphs (3) and (11) of section 11–1101 to establish paternity and and provide for the support of a child born out of wedlock may be instituted after four months of pregnancy or within two years after the birth of the child, or within one year after the putative father has ceased making contributions for the support of the child. The time during which the respondent is absent from the jurisdiction shall be excluded from the computation of the time within which a complaint may be filed. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 544.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also §§ 16–2344, 16–2345, and 16–2349, and other sections in title 16, chapter 23, in 1967 edition]

Constitutionality

Constitutional guaranty of right to speedy trail in all criminal prosecutions does not apply to paternity cases. District of Columbia v. W. D. Howie and D. Jones (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 715).

Default judgment

In case in which defendant putative father failed to plead or otherwise defend, although properly served with process, in action by mother for support and maintenance of minor child, mother, upon filing of affidavit in support, was entitled to entry of default, and ex parte proof of defendant's paternity was not required. E. V. Taylor v. B. A. Johnson, Jr. (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 803).

Dismissal because of delay

Defendants in paternity proceedings were not entitled to dismissal of proceedings because of delay due to court's congested docket where records did not disclose that either defendant objected to continuance or made demand for speedy preliminary hearing. District of Columbia v. W. D. Howie and D. Jones (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 715).

Filing of complaint as tolling of statute

Filing of complaint is not sufficient to stop running of time limitation in statute regarding proceedings to establish paternity unless such filing is followed by issuance of summons without reasonable delay. District of Columbia v. W. D. Howie and D. Jones (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 715).

"Forthwith", within statute providing that upon filing of complaint in paternity proceedings case should be calendared forthwith means without unreasonable delay, and does not mean immediately. Id.

Prima facie case

Decision that district had failed to establish prima facie case of paternity against defendant was not erroneous as matter of law. District of Columbia v. T. Stovall, Jr. (D.C. App. 1969, 253 A. 2d 541).

Procedure

Procedure whereby initial appearance in court in paternity proceedings partakes of nature of arraignment and case is then continued for preliminary hearing either because parties are not prepared for hearing or court schedule will not permit it is proper. District of Columbia v. W. D. Howie and D. Jones (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 715).

Unreasonable delay in issuance of summons

Delay of thirty-four days and forty days, respectively, between filing of complaint and issuance of summons was not unreasonable and therefore filing of complaints stopped running of one year statute of limitations applicable in cases where father ceases making contributions to support of child. District of Columbia v. W. D. Howie and D. Jones (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 715).

Essential requirement under statute regarding establishment of paternity is that upon filing of complaint defendant be notified without unreasonable delay of pendency of charge against him and nature of the charge. Id.

§ 16–2343. Blood tests

When it is relevant to an action over which the Division has jurisdiction under section 11–1101, the court may direct that the mother, child, and the respondent submit to one or more blood tests to determine whether or not the respondent can be excluded as being the father of the child, but the results of the test may be admitted as evidence only in cases where the respondent does not object to its admissability. Where the parties cannot afford the cost of a blood test, the court may direct the Department of Public Health to perform such tests without fee. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 121(a), title I, 84 Stat. 544.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also § 16–2347 and other sections in title 16, chapter 23, in the 1967 edition]

Blood tests

Where defendant's request for blood test was made at trial in bastardy proceeding after all evidence had been heard and in summation by counsel for defendant and no request for blood test had been made in seven months' period since counsel for defendant had entered an appearance, denial of request for blood test was not an abuse of discretion. R. Minor, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 241 A. 2d 196).

Granting or denial of request for blood test in paternity case is discretionary with court. Id.

§ 16–2344. Exclusion of public

Chapter 27.—NEGLIGENCE CAUSING DEATH

§ 16–2701. Liability; damages; prior recovery as precluding action

When, by an injury done or happening within the limits of the District, the death of a person is caused by the wrongful act, neglect, or default of a person or corporation, and the act, neglect, or default is such as will, if death does not ensue, entitle the person injured, or if the person injured is a married woman, entitle her husband, either separately or by joining with the wife, to maintain an action and recover damages, the person who or corporation that is liable if death does not ensue is liable to an action for damages for the death, notwithstanding the death of the person injured, even though the death is caused under circumstances that constitute a felony.

The damages shall be assessed with reference to the injury resulting from the act, neglect, or default causing the death, to the spouse and the next of kin of the deceased person; and shall include the reasonable expenses of last illness and burial. Where there is a surviving spouse, the jury shall allocate the portion of its verdict payable to the spouse and next of kin, respectively, according to the finding of damage to the spouse and next of kin. If, in a particular case, the verdict is deemed excessive the trial judge or the appellate court, on appeal of the cause, may order a reduction of the verdict. An action may not be maintained pursuant to this chapter if the party injured by the wrongful act, neglect, or default has recovered damages therefor during his life. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Adverse judgment in suit by widow, as sole beneficiary, to collect on policy which was payable only if deceased had sustained injury through external violent and accidental means, rendered after evidence disclosed that deceased had suffered a stroke independent of and immediately prior to automobile collision, did not collaterally estop window, as administratrix of estate of deceased, from bringing an action on her own behalf and behalf of her minor children for wrongful death of deceased against owner and driver of taxicab with which deceased's automobile had collided. V. Smith et al. v. J. W. Hood et ano. (1968, 396 F. 2d 692, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 43).

Doctrine of collateral estoppel does not undercut principle that person whose rights were not at issue in prior proceeding is not precluded by judgment therein. Id.

Construction

Wrongful Death Act creates a new right of action, upon death of injured person, for benefit of his next of kin. P. Wharton and L. Wharton, etc. v. G. L. Jones, et al. (1968, 285 F. Supp. 634).

Reduction of verdict

District of Columbia wrongful death act empowers trial court to act sua sponte in exercise of its sound discretion to order reduction of verdict, without time limitation, and authorizes reduction of amount of damages directly without necessity of requiring remittitur as condition to denial of new trial. S. A. Thomas as the administrator etc., and J. F. Wynn, Jr. v. Potomac Electric Power Company and District of Columbia (1967, 266 F. Supp. 687).

Award of $155,000 for death of 26-year-old father of two who had recently graduated from college and was planning to work as teacher was excessive where it represented amount shown by actuarial testimony to be his probable future earnings in teaching profession, reduced to present worth, without reduction in light of vicissitudes of fortune, buffetings of fate, and uncertainties of life and health, and would be reduced to $90,000. Id.

Separate and independent claims

Negligent conduct resulting in death may generate simultaneously two independent bases for action, one under the Survival Act and the other under the Wrongful Death Act, upon each of which damages may be sought. W. J. Emmett, Administrator, etc. v. Eastern Dispensary and Casualty Hospital, et al. (1967, 396 F. 2d 931, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 50).

Negligent act causing death can give rise simultaneously to separate and independent claims under Wrongful Death Act and under Survival Act. P. Wharton and L. Wharton etc. v. G. L. Jones et al. (1968, 285 F. Supp. 634).

Tolling of statute

Pendency of personal injury action under Survival Act does not toll statute of limitations on a death claim. P. Wharton and L. Wharton etc. v. G. L. Jones et al. (1968, 285 F. Supp. 634).

Pendency of wrongful death action did not toll statute of limitations on claim under Survival Act. Id.

§ 16–2702. Party plaintiff; statute of limitations

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Collateral estoppel

Adverse judgment in suit by widow, as sole beneficiary to collect on policy which was payable only if deceased had sustained injury through external violent and accidental means rendered after evidence disclosed that deceased had suffered a stroke independent of and immediately prior to automobile collision, did not collaterally estop widow, as administratrix of estate of deceased, from bringing an action on her own behalf and behalf of her minor children for wrongful death of deceased against owner and driver of taxicab with which deceased's automobile had collided. V. Smith et al. v. J. W. Hood et ano. (1968, 396 F. 2d 692, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 43).

Tolling of statute

Fraudulent concealment of information moving party needs in order to determine whether there is a litigable dispute tolls the running of statute of limitations on death action. W. J. Emmett, Administrator, etc. v. Eastern Dispensary and Casualty Hospital et al. (1967, 396 F. 2d 931 130 U.S. App. D.C. 50).

Statute of limitations on filing wrongful death and survival action was tolled by unprivileged failure of physician and hospital to permit decedent's son to inspect decedent's medical records. Id.

§ 16–3301. Complaint; allegations; parties; service; decree

When title to real property in the District of Columbia has become vested in a person by adverse possession, the holder thereof may file a complaint in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia to have the title perfected. In the complaint, it is sufficient to allege that the plaintiff holds the title to the property, and that it has vested in him, or in himself and in those under whom he claims, by adverse possession. In the action, it is not necessary to make any person a party defendant except those persons who appear to have a claim or title adverse to that of the plaintiff. Upon the trial of the cause, proof of the facts showing title in the plaintiff by adverse possession entitles him to decree of the court declaring his title by adverse possession, and a copy of the decree may be entered of record in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for the District.

(b)[1] In an action pursuant to this section, if process is returned not to be found, notice by publication may be substituted as in the case of nonresident defendants. Subject to subsection (c) of this section, if it is known whether one who, if living, would be an adverse party, is living or dead, or, in the case of a decedent, whether he died testate or left heirs, or his heirs or devisees are unknown, the cause may be proceeded with pursuant to section 13–341.

(c) The rights of infants or others under legal disability shall be saved for a period of two years after the removal of their disabilities, but the entire period during which they shall be preserved may not exceed twenty-two years from the time they accrued, either in the plaintiff or in the persons under whom he claims. (As amended, July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 145(n), title I, 84 Stat. 563.)

SUBCHAPTER III.—PROCEDURES AND JUDGMENTS

§ 16–3541. Allegations in petition of relator claiming office

When a quo warranto proceeding is against a person for usurping an office, on the relation of a person claiming the same office, the relator shall set forth in his petition the facts upon which he claims to be entitled to the office. (As amended, July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 145(n), title I, 84 Stat. 563.)

§ 16–3542. Notice to defendant

On the issuing of a writ of quo warranto the court may fix a time within which the defendant may appear and answer the writ. When the defendant cannot be found in the District of Columbia, the court may direct notice to be given to him by publication as in other cases of proceedings against nonresident defendants, and upon proof of publication, if the defendant does not appear, judgment may be rendered as if he had been personally served. (As amended, July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 145(n), title I, 84 Stat. 563.)

§ 16–3544. Pleading; jury trial

In a quo warranto proceeding, the defendant may demur, plead specially, or plead "not guilty" as the general issue, and the United States or the District of Columbia, as the case may be, may reply as in other actions of a civil character. Issues of fact shall be tried by a jury if either party requests it. Otherwise they shall be determined by the court. (As amended, July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 145(n), title I, 84 Stat. 563.)

§ 16–3545. Verdict and judgment

Where a defendant in a quo warranto proceeding is found by the jury to have usurped, intruded into, or unlawfully held or exercised an office or franchise, the verdict shall be that he is guilty of the act or acts in question, and judgment shall be rendered that he be ousted and excluded therefrom and that the relator recover his costs. (As amended, July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 145(n), title I, 84 Stat. 563.)

§ 16–3546. Usurping corporate franchise; judgment

Where a quo warranto proceeding is against persons acting as a corporation without being legally incorporated, the judgment against the defendants shall be that they be perpetually restrained and enjoined from the commission or continuance of the acts complained of. (As amended, July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 145(n), title I, 84 Stat. 563.)

§ 16–3547. Proceedings against corporate directors and trustees; judgment and order; enforcement

Where a quo warranto proceeding is against a director or trustee of a corporation and the court finds that at his election either illegal votes were received or legal votes rejected, or both, sufficient to change the result if the error is corrected, the court may render judgment that the defendant be ousted, and that the relator, if entitled to be declared elected, be admitted to the office, and the court may issue an order to the proper parties, being officers or members of the corporation, to admit him to the office. The judgment may require the defendant to deliver to the relator all books, papers, and other things in his custody or control pertaining to the office, and obedience to judgment may be enforced by attachment. (As amended, July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 145(n), title I, 84 Stat. 564.)

§ 16–3548. Recovery of damages from usurper; limitation

At any time within a year from a judgment in a quo warranto proceeding, the relator may bring an action against the party ousted and recover the damages sustained by the relator by reason of the ousted party's usurpation of the office to which the relator was entitled. (As amended, July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 145(n), title I, 84 Stat. 564.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR § 16–3740

Determination of damages

In this case the court held that if the plaintiff, who wrongfully replevied automobile, fails to deliver the automobile back to defendant, the amount of damages sustained by defendant would not necessarily be measured by the unpaid balance of defendant's lien against the automobile, because the automobile's value might not equal that amount; rather, the defendant's damages would have to be computed and judgment therefor entered against the plaintiff and his surety. *T. § 17–304. Stay upon application for review of, or pending appeal from, administrative order or decision

(a) An application for review, or pendency of an appeal, provided for by section 17–303, does not operate as a stay of the order or decision from which the appeal is taken:

(1) in any case where, under existing law, a stay may not be granted; or

(2) in any other case unless so ordered by the Commissioner or Council of the District of Columbia, by the independent agency, or by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals as provided by subsection (b) of this section.

§ 17–305. Scope of review

(a) In considering an order or judgment of a lower court (or any of its divisions or branches) brought before it for review, the District of Columbia Court of Appeals shall review the record on appeal. When the issues of fact were tried by jury, the court shall review the case only as to matters of law. When the case was tried without a jury, the court may review both as to the facts and the law, but the judgment may not be set aside except for errors of law unless it appears that the judgment is plainly wrong or without evidence to support it.

(b) The provisions of section 11 of the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, sec. 1–1510) shall apply with respect to review by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals of an order or decision under that Act. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 614, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1, eff. AMENDMENT

1970—Section 146(a)(5) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358, amended section to read as above set out. For provisions of this section prior to this amendment, see 1967 edition of the code, and supplement III, thereto.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

An award of alimony under section 16–913 when divorce is granted upon husband's application will not be disturbed, unless an abuse of discretion is made manifest by the record. M. L. Majette v. M. Majette (D.C. App. 1970, 261 A. 2d 824).

An award of $35 per week for the support and maintenance of wife who was in poor health, incapable of working, had no source of income or other property and who had been married to husband for 26 years, and of two minor children of marriage by husband with salary of approximately $13,400 per year and who admitted by his pleadings and testimony that the wife needed at least $250 per month to support herself and two children did not constitute an exercise of sound discretion. Id.

Authority of appellate court

On an appeal from a judgment awarding absolute divorce, function of the court of appeals is limited to reviewing the record and the court of appeals may not disturb trial court's ultimate findings and conclusions unless they are clearly erroneous or without evidence to support them. S. W. Springer v. R. C. Springer (D.C. App. 1969, 248 A. 2d 822).

Credibility of witnesses on review

Credibility of witnesses, upon which the validity of the arrest stands or falls in this case, was a matter within the province of the jury to decide as trier of fact. R. G. Burroughs v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 236 A. 2d 319).

Evidence—Sufficiency

In this case, the court held that substantial evidence, including officer's testimony that petitioner stopped his vehicle in fast lane and that petitioner exhibited usual symptoms of intoxication, supported finding that petitioner showed flagrant disregard for safety of persons and property; and thus, order suspending petitioner's operator's permit for period between his arrest and trial would be allowed to stand. J. M. Hoard v. W. D. Heath, Director, etc. (D.C. App. 1970, 266 A. 2d 926).

Since the trial court's findings of fact are supported by substantial evidence and are not clearly erroneous, they will be accepted on appeal. J. W. Curtis Co., Inc. v. District-Realty Title Insurance Corporation (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 830).

The finding of the trial court that divorced parties to support dispute had never agreed to reduce husband's support payment after one of two children became 21 was not clearly erroneous. J. G. Rhodes v. P. W. Williams et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 497).

The court held that in this case the evidence in suit by automobile purchaser for breach of warranty was insufficient to support finding that upper ball joints, replaced by garage not authorized by manufacturer, were defective, and finding was clearly erroneous. Ford Motor Company, Inc. v. W. L. Keating (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 601).

The finding of the trial court in action against the employer that former employee whose employment had been terminated without notice was entitled to recover shortages in back pay from employer but was not entitled to a bonus or to two weeks' separation pay was supported by evidence. H. T. Freas v. N. M. Gitomer (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 573).

The finding of the trial court that parking lot was liable for damages to patron's automobile was supported by substantial evidence and was not clearly erroneous, and this is the limit of the scope of court's review. Parking Management, Inc. v. N. C. Pride (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 899).

The finding of the trial court that lessee terminated lease prematurely by announcing it had no further need for the car and returning it to lessor was supported by substantial evidence and was not clearly erroneous. Stone Heating & Ventilating Co., Inc. v. Anacostia Leasing Corp. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 923).

In this case, the court held that there was substantial evidence to support the hearing officer's finding that the operator involved in an accident had been driving under influence of alcohol and hearing officer's resulting restriction of operator's permit, though operator apparently suffered head injury which he claimed was cause of confusion and slow reaction. D. T. Griffin v. W. D. Heath, Director etc. (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 488).

The record in this case authorized finding that plaintiff had not sustained burden of proof by preponderance of evidence that deceased in fact orally promised to repay sums of money paid to or on behalf of deceased during her life. B. M. Johns v. W. M. Speed etc. (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 497).

Evidence, in divorce action, sustained finding that husband had not committed any acts of cruelty against wife or otherwise by his actions contributed to their separation. S. W. Springer v. R. C. Springer (D.C. App. 1969, 248 A. 2d 822).

Nature of defense of usury

Usury as a defense attacks the original transaction as not bona fide and denies assignee of note the status of holder in due course. Universal Acceptance Corporation v. F. Marzullo et ano. (D.C. App. 1969, 260 A. 2d 90).

Photographic evidence

Photographs of curb condition which caused one plaintiff to fall and sustain injuries were sufficient basis for trial court sitting without jury to infer constructive notice by the District of Columbia and supported recovery on part of plaintiffs. District of Columbia v. R. Megginson et ano. (D.C. App. 1969, 250 A. 2d 571).

Questions of fact

Court of appeals may not reverse trial court sitting without a jury on factual matters unless it appears that judgment is plainly wrong or without evidence to support it. $3,265.28 in United States Currency, et al. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 516).

On appeal from my jury's verdict, issues of fact must be resolved in appellee's favor. E. L. Prather v. J. B. Hill (D.C. App. 1969, 250 A. 2d 690).

Scope of review

The function of review, on appeal from grant of summary judgment of dismissal, precludes conduct of trial de novo and court is confined to review of record on appeal. M. T. Harmatz v. Zenith Radio Corporation (D.C. App. 1970, 265 A. 2d 291).

Scope of review of Court of Appeals in negligence case is to determine whether trial court's finding was supported by substantial evidence and was not clearly erroneous. C. Parello, etc., et al. v. A. C. Lomax (D.C. App. 1969, 253 A. 2d 463).

Sufficiency of evidence to sustain verdict

In suit by a sociologist to recover payment for services performed at defendant's request, the jury's verdict was supported by the record that she had prepared a research prospectus for compensation at defendant's request, and that defendant had refused to pay reasonable compensation for her work, and was not clearly erroneous, even though there was conflicting evidence. D. C. Thompson, t/a Associated etc. v. J. Jackson (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 408).

The testimony of defendant that plaintiff offered to install snow guards on roof of church building without charge as part of promotional scheme established a substantial basis for finding that no purchase contract, express or implied, was formed between parties. J. Zaleski, t/a etc. v. Congregation of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary etc. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 424).

In case where boat owner was attempting to sell his boat for $40,000 and told broker that if broker sold the boat, he would be paid, the broker was entitled to commission when the boat was sold to a buyer who had been procured by broker, though boat was sold for $27,500, after negotiations between boat owner and buyer. W. L. Bowles v. T. R. Hogans, Jr. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 407).

Tainted transaction

The court held, that in this case the working arrangement between the conditional seller of television set and the assignee of purchasers' note was tainted such that it bore a "badge of fraud" and supported trial judge's ruling in suit by assignee on note that the note was usurious and that assignee could not be given status of holder in due course. Universal Acceptance Corporation v. F. Marzullo et ano. (D.C. App. 1969, 260 A. 2d 90).

Transcript

A request for a free transcript must first be made to the trial judge who may appropriately keep in mind that any parts of trial proceedings unnecessary to resolution on appeal of discernible substantial questions should not be ordered. J. McKelton v. J. E. Bruno (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 493).

Validity of findings

Evidence was substantial on the question of a dry basement and a finding that guarantee clause of home improvement contract, which provided that contractor would furnish all labor and material to break up and replace floors around basement walls, install drain tile, gravel and pump and that work was guaranteed for five years, warranted a dry basement and was not plainly wrong. K. L. Fowler and F. D. Fowler v. A & A Company and W. R. O'Roark etc. (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 344).

§ 17–306. Determination of appeals

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals may affirm, modify, vacate, set aside or reverse any order or judgment of a court or any division or branch thereof, or any administrative order or decision, lawfully brought before it for review, and may remand the cause and direct the entry of such appropriate order, judgment, or decision, or require such further proceedings to be had, as is just in the circumstances. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 615, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1964; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 146(a)(6), 84 Stat. 565.)

1970—Section 146(a)(6) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358 amended section by striking out "branch" and inserting in lieu thereof "division or branch" and by striking out "order or decision of an administration agency" and inserting in lieu thereof "administrative order or decision".

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Judgment of recovery against garnishee

In this case where garnishee appeared and opposed, the motion on jurisdictional grounds, the judgment creditor's motion for judgment of recovery, though garnishee had previously failed to answer the interrogatories, and where the garnishee alleged that nothing was owed to judgment debtor when writs were received and that judgment debtor thereafter left his job with garnishee, judgment of recovery should not be entered if, on further proceedings, it is shown that no additional wages became due judgment debtor from garnishee between receipt of writs and termination of debtor's employment and if there were otherwise cause to permit answer to be filed. Metropolitan Roofing and Sheet Metal Co., Inc. v. Franklin Investment Co., Inc. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 913).

Nature of defense of usury

taken pursuant to section 11–721 or 11–722 may be fixed by rules of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

(b) Applications for the allowance of appeals from judgments of the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, and from judgments in the criminal division of that court where the penalty imposed is less than $50, specified by section 11–721(c), shall, in each case, be filed in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals within three days from the date of judgment. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 615, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1964; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 146(a)(7), 84 Stat. 565.)

§ 18–102. Capacity to make a will

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Capacity to make a will

Provision in section 21–1507 voiding transfer of real and personal property by person subject to conservatorship, does not render that person, per se, incapable of making valid will. D. H. Rossi v. E. A. Fletcher (1969, 418 F. 2d 1169, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 333, cert. denied 90 S. Ct. 568).

Congress in adopting provisions in section 18–102 that will was not valid unless person making it was of required age and at time of executing or acknowledging it was of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing valid deed or contract did not intend to deprive mentally competent person of testamentary capacity merely because he was subject to conservatorship. Id.

Chapter 3.—DEVISES AND BEQUESTS

§ 18–308. Death of devisee or legatee; lapsed or void devises or bequests

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

This section is to be interpreted liberally with view to attainment of its beneficent objectives and, to render section inoperative, a purpose inconsistent with that objective must fairly appear and from terms of will itself but, where will reflects a countervailing intention with reasonable clarity, this section does not save gift from lapse. In re Estate of Kerr (1970, 433 F. 2d 479, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Countervailing intention that testamentary gift should lapse is manifested when the will articulates gift in words effectively conditioning its efficacy on beneficiary's survival of testator, and antilapse statute has no application to gifts limited to vest on beneficiary's survival of testator and not otherwise, whether gift is to single or to multiple beneficiaries and whether there is or is not a limitation over to another on death of primary beneficiary during lifetime of testator. Id.

Words referable to survivorship do not necessarily condition a testamentary gift and the construction properly to be placed on survivorship language is a product of testorial intention. Id.

This section applies to gifts of residuum as well as to other devises and bequests contained in will. Id.

Intent

Testorial intention is important under this section, which may operate to avoid a lapse unless different disposition is made or required by the will. In re Estate of Kerr (1970, 433 F. 2d 479, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Provision of will specifying that residuum was to be divided equally between two named beneficiaries if they were both living at time of testatrix' demise and alternatively, if one predeceased testatrix, then all of estate was to go to one remaining expressed intent contrary to antilapse statute and the death of both beneficiaries during testatrix' lifetime caused the residuary clause to lapse. Id.

§ 18–508. Caveat; will not to be probated while issues pending

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Caveat by executor

Executor appointed by will who had power of appointment regarding certain property had the requisite interest to caveat codicil reducing shares of residuary legatees. E. McLain v. American Security and Trust Co. (1968, 392 F. 2d 818, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 213).

Party in interest

The right conferred upon nephew by will and withdrawn from him by codicil to serve as executor and receive commissions therefor did not make him a "party in interest" within District of Columbia Code provision that if a party in interest files verified caveat setting forth facts inconsistent with validity of will, the will may not be admitted to probate until the issues are determined. P. McLain and E. McLain v. American Security and Trust Co. (1967, 265 F. Supp. 467; rev'd 392 F. 2d 818).

Testatrix' sister whose claim upon estate would be no different if codicil were set aside or sustained was not entitled to caveat the codicil under District of Columbia Code provision that if party in interest files verified caveat setting forth facts inconsistent with validity of will the will may not be admitted until the issues are determined. Id.

An estate of a decedent should not be subjected to the trouble and expense of an attack on a testamentary writing except by one who, if the attack prove successful, would have some claim upon the estate different from what he would have if the attack prove unsuccessful. Id.

§ 18–513. Rules of procedure

The court shall prescribe rules of procedure governing the trial of issues when a caveat is filed, including provisions for notice, appointment of guardians ad litem, trial by jury, and effect of judgments. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 692, Pub. L. 89–183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358 § 147(3)(A), title I, 84 Stat. 566.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Claims of creditors against spendthrift trust

In a case involving the beneficiary of a spendthrift trust, the court held that the primary purpose of such a trust was to assure that the beneficiary will be provided for, independent of his own improvidence and not necessarily to immunize the income therefrom for the necessities of life. American Security and Trust Co. v. F. Utley (1967, 382 F. 2d 451, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

Equitable apportionment of estate taxes

Purpose of the marital deduction provision does not modify meaning of District of Columbia statute whereby dissenting widow can take one-third of surplus after debts, and hence the amount of property received by widow's election, and thus the amount eligible for marital deduction, was a portion of the surplus remaining after deducting entire amount of estate taxes, in view of District of Columbia rule rejecting doctrine of general equitable apportionment of estate taxes. R. H. DelMar et al. v. United States (1968, 390 F. 2d 466, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Congress adopted the marital deduction to provide opportunity for equalization of the tax treatment of estates in common law and community property states. Id.

Federal estate tax marital deduction

Where decedent died intestate survived by her husband, two grandnephews, and six nieces, and surviving husband was entitled to one-half of estate under District of Columbia law, and such one-half qualified for federal estate tax marital deduction, share of husband was not to bear any part of federal estate tax. *In the Matter of the Estate of F. This section is referred to in sections 1–906, 19–305.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Descent and distribution

On the basis of the majority rule in the District, testator's attempt to disinherit his caveator brothers and their heirs was ineffective, since he made no gift over of the forfeited estate. J. C. Wilkes, Trustee etc. v. E. L. Freer et al. (1967, 271 F. Supp. 602).

Compliance with statute relating to competency of person to serve as executor is what is contemplated by the terms "legally competent" as used in statute requiring issuance of letters testamentary to executor named in will if he is legally competent. Id.

Testator's choice

Testator's choice should be granted letters testamentary unless he is disqualified under statute relating to competency of person to serve as executor or administrator. H. M. Berryman et al. v. The Riggs National Bank, etc. (1968, 401 F. 2d 993, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 42)

§ 20–302. Bond of executor

Before letters testamentary are issued to an executor, other than a local corporation authorized by the laws of the District of Columbia to act as an executor, named in a will or codicil, he shall execute a bond, with security to be approved by the court, in such penalty as the court requires, with a condition that he will administer according to law and to the will of the testator all his goods, chattels, rights, credits, and the proceeds of all his real estate that may be sold for the payment of his debts or legacies, which, at any time, come to his possession or to the possession of another person for him, and in all other respects faithfully perform the trusts reposed in him. Where a trustee is appointed by last will to execute a trust, and a person interested in the execution of the trust makes it appear that it is necessary for the safety of those interested therein that the trustee should give bond and security for the due execution of the trust, the Court may order and direct that a bond be given by the trustee by a day named, and on failure of the trustee to give the bond, with security to be approved by the court as directed, the court may displace the trustee and appoint another in his stead, who shall give the bond. SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

§ 20–1318. Period during which creditors may file suit after claim is contested

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Computation of time

If legally authenticated claim is exhibited to executor or administrator and he rejects it, his rejection sets in motion running of three-month statute of limitations and any claim sued on more than three months after rejection is barred. F. M. Graham, formerly F. M. Frel, Administratrix etc. v. S. Gordon etc. (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 838).

Where endorser of installment note had brought action against estate for face amount of note but was awarded judgment only for installments which he had paid, subsequent action which sought to recover additional installments paid and which was commenced more than three months after administratrix had rejected his prior claim was not barred by three-month statute of limitations. Id.

Construction

Statute creating three-month limitation period for asserting claim which had been rejected by executor or administrator must be strictly construed. F. M. Graham, formerly F. M. Frel, Administratrix etc. v. S. Gordon etc. (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 838).

Administrator may not start running of short statute of limitations by rejecting claim which has not been authenticated. Id.

Where claim originally rejected is different in form from claim sued upon, short statute of limitations does not bar suit. Id.

Effect of other decision on issue of jurisdiction

In an action to enforce default judgment rendered by New York court, federal court's dismissal of defendants' counterclaim was not res judicata on issue of validity of the New York judgment, where issue of jurisdiction of New York Court to render that judgment, although mentioned in defendants' points and authorities in opposition to motion to dismiss, was apparently not the determinative factor in that decision, and order of dismissal did not indicate that it was based on finding that New York court had jurisdiction, and there was no reference in the order to question of jurisdiction. Franklin National Bank v. B. Krakow, as Co-executor et al., etc. (1969, 295 F. Supp. 910).

Plaintiff who sued to enforce default judgment rendered by New York court was not entitled to judgment on pleadings because the federal court for District of Columbia previously had granted plaintiff's motion to dismiss defendants' counterclaim which had alleged invalidity of the New York judgment, where the reason for dismissing counterclaim was not enunciated. Id.

Enforcement of foreign judgment

Plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings treated as a motion for summary judgment, in an action to enforce a default judgment rendered by a New York court on a note executed by defendants' decedent would be denied, where defendants' allegations in opposition to the motion including showing that only connection with New York state was that note provided that the note should be governed by New York laws raised genuine issues of material fact which, if proved, would establish that New York court lacked jurisdiction. Franklin National Bank v. B. Krakow, as Co-executor, et al., etc. (1969, 295 F. Supp. 910).

Full faith and credit

Full faith and credit clause of the Constitution did not preclude an inquiry by the federal court in District of Columbia in an action brought to enforce a default judgment entered by New York Supreme Court into jurisdiction of the New York court to render the judgment sought to be enforced. Franklin National Bank v. B. Krakow, as Co-executor, et al., etc. (1969, 295 F. Supp. 910).

Inquiry into jurisdiction of foreign court

In an action to enforce default judgment rendered by a New York court, in making inquiry into jurisdiction of the New York court to render the judgment federal court was bound to apply the law of New York applicable to question of jurisdiction rather than the District of Columbia law notwithstanding the jurisdictional standards of the District of Columbia might not support a judgment such as the one rendered by the New York court. Franklin National Bank v. B. Krakow, as Co-executor, et al., etc. (1969, 295 F. Supp. 910).

In an action to enforce a default judgment rendered by a New York court against defendants who were not served in New York, federal court was not precluded from inquiring into jurisdiction of the New York court to render the judgment on grounds that defendants were required to go into New York state to contest jurisdiction since defendants were free to ignore the proceedings and ultimately resist any enforcement of default judgment since if judgment-rendering court lacked jurisdiction, the judgment was a nullity. Id.

§ 20–1320. Notice to creditors to file claims

An executor or administrator who, after six months from the date of his letters, pays away assets to the discharge of just claims is not answerable for any claim of which he had no knowledge or notice by an exhibition of the claim legally authenticated, if, at least three months before he makes distribution he causes to be inserted in as many newspapers as the Probate Court directs, a notice to the following effect: "This is to give notice that the subscriber, of ————, has obtained from the Probate Court letters testamentary (or of administration) on the personal estate of ————, late of ————, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated, to the subscriber on or before the ———— day of ———— next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of the estate.

"Given under my hand this ———— day of ————.". (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 724, Pub. L. 89–183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 149(7), 84 Stat. 567.)

§ 20–1329. Creditor's[1] rights against property of nonresident decedent; limitation

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Effect of appointment of guardian of nonresident minor's estate

Appointment by a local court of a guardian of a nonresident minor's estate on basis that situs of property in which minor had alleged interest was in District of Columbia did not change domicile of minor and the appointment did not, in and of itself, make the nonresident a local creditor or give local-creditor-basis for denying transfer of funds of deceased from local ancillary proceedings to domiciliary proceedings in Florida. M. N. Suydam, etc., et al. v. J. E. Suydam (1968, 404 F. 2d 1332, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Transfer of funds to domiciliary administration

Granting of motion to transfer funds from ancillary to domiciliary proceedings in Florida after full evidentiary hearing was an exercise of discretion. M. N. Suydam, etc., et al. v. J. E. Suydam (1968, 404 F. 2d 1332, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Court on motion of ancillary administratrix properly transferred funds of deceased to Florida where domiciliary administration took place where there were no locally domiciled creditors but rather only a nonresident's claim presented locally. Id.

Chapter 15.—SUITS

§ 20–1505. Suits by foreign executors and administrators

A person to whom letters testamentary or of administration have been granted by the proper authority in any of the United States or the territories thereof may maintain a suit or action and prosecute and recover a claim in the District of Columbia in the same manner as if the letters had been granted to him in the District. The letters, or a copy thereof certified under the seal of the authority granting them, are sufficient evidence to prove the granting of the letters, and that the person has administration. The Probate Court may, however, upon the petition of any one interested, require from the person the security required by law in like cases from a resident administrator or executor, or the court may grant auxiliary or ancillary letters, if the case requires, to the same person or other persons. Chapter 19.—DISTRIBUTION OF SURPLUS

§ 20–1901. Distribution; when to be made

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 19–114.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Equitable apportionment of estate taxes

Purpose of the marital deduction provision does not modify meaning of District of Columbia statute whereby dissenting widow can take one-third of surplus after debts, and hence the amount of property received by widow's election, and thus the amount eligible for marital deduction, was a portion of the surplus remaining after deducting entire amount of estate taxes, in view of District of Columbia rule rejecting doctrine of general equitable apportionment of estate taxes. R. H. DelMar et al. v. United States (1968, 390 F. 2d 466, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Congress adopted the marital deduction to provide opportunity for equalization of the tax treatment of estates in common law and community property states. Id.

(As amended, July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 150(c)(1), 84 Stat. 567.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(c)(1) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358, amended section by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 16–2301, 20–351, 21–701, 21–1501.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Under sections 22–3501 to 22–3511, term "not insane" must be read to mean "not 'mentally ill'" within meaning of sections 21–501 to 21–591 and sections 22–3501 to 22–3511 apply only to those who are not mentally ill while compulsory treatment of those who are mentally ill is governed by sections 21–501 to 21–591. T. B. Cross v. D. W. Harris (1969, 418 F. 2d 1095, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

Construction with other laws

The District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act was not repealed by the 1964 Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Court of Appeals would not read into the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act the procedural protections of the Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act. Id.

Limitation of applicability of chapter

The protection of the District of Columbia Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act is limited to those who are declared insane or of unsound mind pursuant to a court order and does not include any person previously committed under the Sexual Psychopath Act. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

§ 21–502. Commission on Mental Health; composition; appointment and terms of members; organization; chairman; salaries

(a) The Commission on Mental Health is continued. The Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall appoint the members of the Commission, and the Commission shall be composed of nine members. One member shall be a member of the bar of the court, who has engaged in active practice of law in the District of Columbia for a period of at least five years prior to his appointment. He shall be the Chairman of the Commission and act as the administrative head of the Commission and its staff. He shall preside at all hearings and direct all of the proceedings before the Commission. He shall devote his entire time to the work of the Commission. Eight members of the Commission shall be physicians who have been practicing medicine in the District of Columbia and who have had not less than five years' experience in the diagnosis and treatment of mental illnesses.

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(c)(1) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358, amended subsection (a) by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

CONTINUATION IN OFFICE EXISTING MEMBERS OF COMMISSION

Section 150(d), of Act July 29, 1958, Pub. L. 91–358 provided:

"Members of the Commission on Mental Health established under section 21–502 of title 21 of the District of Columbia Code who are in office on the effective date of this title shall continue in office as provided in subsection (b) of that section."

§ 21–503. Examinations and hearings; subpenas; witnesses; place

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Sufficiency of record

Since examining doctors concluded that person committed under sections 22–3501 to 22–3511 was not insane but they had no occasion to consider whether he was nonetheless mentally ill, there was no record on the question and habeas corpus petition must be remanded for hearing and findings of fact necessary to determine whether statute was properly applied to petitioner. T. B. Cross v. D. W. Harris (1969, 418 F. 2d 1095, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

SUBCHAPTER III.—EMERGENCY HOSPITALIZATION

§ 21–521. Detention of persons believed to be mentally ill; transportation and application to hospital

An accredited officer or agent of the Department of Public Health of the District of Columbia, or an officer authorized to make arrests in the District of Columbia, or a physician of the person in question, who has reason to believe that a person is mentally ill and, because of the illness, is likely to injure himself or others if he is not immediately detained may, without a warrant, take the person into custody, transport him to a public or private hospital, and make application for his admission thereto for purposes of emergency observation and diagnosis. The application shall reveal the circumstances under which the person was taken into custody and the reasons therefor. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 753, Pub. L. 89–183, § 1, eff. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Commencement of judicial proceedings

Physician's petition for judicial hospitalization of patient commenced the judicial proceedings so that detention of patient during course of proceedings was authorized even though petition was not filed until almost four weeks after patient had been admitted to hospital. In the Matter of H. Perry (1967, 269 F. Supp. 729).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Statute providing that a person admitted to hospital for emergency observation and diagnosis may not be detained for period over 48 hours unless hospital administrator has filed petition for order authorizing continued hospitalization must be read in connection with another provision providing that hospital administrator may, if judicial proceedings for hospitalization have been commenced, detain person in hospital during course of the judicial proceedings. *In the Matter of H. § 21–541. Petition to Commission; copy to person affected

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21–542, 21–551, 21–582.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Commencement of judicial proceedings

Physician's petition for judicial hospitalization of patient commenced the judicial proceedings so that detention of patient during course of proceedings was authorized even though petition was not filed until almost four weeks after patient had been admitted to hospital. In the Matter of H. Perry (1967, 269 F. Supp. 729).

Scope of mandatory commitment

Notwithstanding fact that appeal of denial of petition for writ of habeas corpus by person who was acquitted by reason of insanity and summarily committed to mental hospital pursuant to mandatory provisions of District of Columbia statute raised substantial questions concerning scope of mandatory commitment and its relationship to the Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act, in view of petitioner's unconditional release from hospital while appeal was pending, appeal was dismissed as moot. S. I. Solomon v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 377 F. 2d 170, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 285).

§ 21–543. Representation by counsel; compensation; recess

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Procedural safeguards

Transfer of prisoners to mental hospital requires protective procedures at least similar to those provided in 1964 Civil Commitment Act (now title 21, section 501 et seq., D.C. Code) providing full system of procedural safeguards before finding of mental illness can be made. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Under section 24–302 providing that if director of department of corrections believes prisoner is mentally ill, he can refer prisoner to psychiatrist and, if psychiatrist concurs in that belief, director can then transfer prisoner to mental hospital, before prisoner may be involuntarily transferred he is entitled to judicial hearing, jury trial, and same rights of notice, counsel and cross-examination as are provided for in title 21, section 501 et seq., and same procedures for release from hospital as are embodied in those sections. Id.

§ 21–544. Determinations of Commission; report to court; copy to person affected; right to jury trial

If the Commission finds, after a hearing under section 21–542, that the person with respect to whom the hearing was held is not mentally ill or if mentally ill, is not mentally ill to the extent that he is likely to injure himself or other persons if allowed to remain at liberty, the Commission shall immediately order his release and notify the court of that fact in writing. If the Commission finds, after the hearing, that the person with respect to whom the hearing was held is mentally ill, and because of the illness is likely to injure himself or other persons if allowed to remain at liberty, the Commission shall promptly report that fact, in witing, to the Superior Court of the District of Columbia. The report shall contain the Commission's findings of fact, conclusions of law, and recommendations. A copy of the report of the Commission shall be served personally on the alleged mentally ill person and his attorney. An alleged mentally ill person with respect to whom the report is made has the right to demand a jury trial, and the Commission, orally and in writing, shall advise him of this right. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 755, Pub. L. 89–183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 150(c)(3), 84 Stat. 567.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(c)(3) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358, amended section by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101 and note to 21–301.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21–545.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Acquiescence in plea of insanity

Where petitioner had not himself sought introduction of insanity defense at his trial and had not acquiesced in assertion of that defense, his commitment to hospital for the mentally ill following his acquittal by reason of insanity was not authorized and he was entitled to habeas corpus. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Construction

Statute to effect that when it appears to court that accused is of unsound mind or is mentally incompetent so as to be unable to understand proceedings against him court may order accused committed for observation and treatment if necessary did not authorize trial judge's affording hearing to determine for commitment purposes mental condition of accused found not guilty by reason of insanity, applying release standards of 1964 Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act or extending to accused rights which the 1964 Act guaranteed only to those civilly committed. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. v. C. Mullen etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 193, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

Danger to community

Consideration of a person's likely danger to community is appropriate in civil commitment proceedings but is irrelevant in a criminal trial. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Least restrictive alternative

The principle of the least restrictive alternative consistent with the legitimate purposes of a commitment inheres in the very nature of civil commitment, which entails an extraordinary deprivation of liberty justifiable only when the respondent is "mentally ill to the extent that he is likely to injure himself or other persons if allowed to remain at liberty." J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

The court held that the principle of the least restrictive alternative is equally applicable to alternative dispositions within a mental hospital. Id.

Purpose of confinement

The court held that in reviewing on habeas corpus a civilly committed patient's confinement in a mental hospital, it should satisfy itself that no less onerous disposition would serve purpose of commitment. J. Covington. v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

Treatability

Treatability of one having a mental disease or defect is not an appropriate consideration at a criminal trial, and its relevance may even be doubtful in a civil commitment determination. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

§ 21–545. Hearing and determination by court or jury; order; witnesses; jurors

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21–546, 21–551.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Acquiescence in plea of insanity

Where petitioner had not himself sought introduction of insanity defense at his trial and had not acquiesced in assertion of that defense, his commitment to hospital for the mentally ill following his acquittal by reason of insanity was not authorized and he was entitled to habeas corpus. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Burden of proof

Burden of proof, in habeas corpus proceeding by one committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty by reason of insanity, is the same as that for civilly committed patients. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Rule that habeas corpus petitioner must prove that his detention is illegal by preponderance of evidence applies in habeas corpus proceeding by one committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty of offense by reason of insanity, and thus court must find, by preponderance of evidence, that patient's commitment is no longer valid, that is, that he is no longer likely to injure himself or other persons due to illness. Id.

Civil commitment of alleged criminal

Defendant who was insane for purpose of responsibility at time of offense may not be insane for purpose of civil commitment at time of verdict, or although competent to stand trial, he may be insane, dangerous and in need of treatment for purpose of civil commitment. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Civil commitment, when warranted

In order to warrant civil commitment, it is not essential that illness fit specifically into any of various classes of mental illnesses recognized by American Psychiatric Association. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Commitment procedure

Commission of criminal acts does not give rise to a presumption of dangerousness which, standing alone, justifies substantial difference in commitment procedures and confinement conditions for mentally ill, and that, while prior criminal conduct is relevant to the determination whether person is mentally ill or dangerous, it cannot justify denial of procedural safeguards for such determination, and that while prior criminal conduct is a relevant consideration it does not provide automatic basis for allowing significant and arbitrary differences in such conditions where defendant is acquitted on his own plea of insanity. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Prior criminal conduct cannot be deemed sufficient justification for substantial differences in procedures and requirements for commitment of those found not guilty by reason of insanity and other mentally ill persons. Id.

Rule that prior criminal conduct cannot be deemed sufficient justification for substantial differences in procedures and requirements for commitment of those found not guilty by reason of insanity and other mentally ill persons applies whether plea of insanity is raised by defendant, prosecutor or court. Id.

There is no reasonable basis for distinction for commitment purposes between those who plead insanity and those who have defense thrust upon them, and neither may be automatically deprived of type of protection afforded by 1964 Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act. Id.

Fact that persons acquitted by reason of insanity have committed criminal acts and that such fact may tend to show they meet requirements for commitment does not remove such requirements nor justify total abandonment of procedures used in civil commitment proceedings to determine whether such requirements have been satisfied. Id.

Persons found not guilty by reason of insanity must be given judicial hearing with procedures substantially similar to those in civil commitment proceedings. Id.

Where feasible, requirements of Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act as to notice, counsel, and jury trial should be followed in connection with judicial hearing afforded persons found not guilty by reason of insanity. Id.

Rule that persons found not guilty by reason of insanity must be given judicial hearing with procedures substantially similar to those in civil commitment proceedings is applicable prospectively only. Id.

Construction

Statute sanctioning commitment of mentally ill person, a drastic curtailment of the rights of citizens, must be narrowly construed in order to avoid deprivations of liberty without due process of law. J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

Danger to community

Consideration of a person's likely danger to community is appropriate in civil commitment proceedings but is irrelevant in a crimnial trial. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Evidence

In absence of evidence that husband was of sound mind or had requisite mental capacity to execute any documents, ratify acts of another or authorize the signing of his name at time wife completed form requesting Veterans Administration to pay her a portion of husband's disability benefits, the previous adjudication of incompetence is presumed to be of continuing validity and trial court's findings that all representations made by wife to Veterans Administration were at husband's request and were ratified by him, and that he authorized wife to sign his name on benefit form were erroneous. A. D. Martin v. L. P. Martin (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 141).

In view of psychiatrists' testimony that person was suffering from condition which substantially impaired his health, that the condition was interrelated with his mental deficiency, and that his antisocial behavior occurred as result and manifestation of underlying mental illness, there was sufficient evidence for jury to find that person in addition to being mentally deficient was suffering from a mental illness. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Grounds for commitment

To sustain a civil commitment under District of Columbia Code it is insufficient to find that a person is mentally deficient even when such condition is accompanied by some antisocial behavior, and government must prove by preponderance of evidence that individual suffers from mental illness, whether related or unrelated to mental deficiency, and that danger-productive behavior of individual results from mental illness. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Instructions

To extent that district court's instruction reflected government trial counsel's view that mental deficiency in and of itself constituted a mental illness within District of Columbia statute relating to civil commitment instruction was improper, but when court's charge was taken in its entirety the jury had been clearly and properly informed they could not commit person simply because of his mental deficiency. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Investigation discretionary

Provision of the District of Columbia Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act providing that court may order hospitalization or any other alternative course of treatment makes court's duty to investigate discretionary and not mandatory. C. Lake v. Dr. D. C. Cameron (1967, 267 F. Supp. 155).

Justification for treatment

Evidence in committed petitioner's habeas corpus proceeding established that actual medical and psychiatric treatment extended to petitioner was fully warranted and that, in view of petitioner's tendency to wander, there was no facility within district, other than mental hospital with closed wards, presently capable of treating her. C. Lake v. Dr. D. C. Cameron (1967, 267 F. Supp. 155).

Procedural safeguards

Transfer of prisoners to mental hospital requires protective procedures at least similar to those provided in 1964 Civil Commitment Act (now title 21, section 501 et seq., D.C. Code) providing full system of procedural safeguards before finding of mental illness can be made. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Under section 24–302 providing that if director of department of corrections believes prisoner is mentally ill, he can refer prisoner to psychiatrist and, if psychiatrist concurs in that belief, director can then transfer prisoner to mental hospital, before prisoner may be involuntarily transferred he is entitled to judicial hearing, jury trial, and same rights of notice, counsel and cross-examination as are provided for in title 21, section 501 et seq., and same procedures for release from hospital as are embodied in those sections. Id.

Purpose of confinement

The court held that in reviewing on habeas corpus a civilly committed patient's confinement in a mental hospital, it should satisfy itself that no less onerous disposition would serve purpose of commitment. J. Covington. v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

Treatability

Treatability of one having a mental disease or defect is not an appropriate consideration at a criminal trial, and its relevance may even be doubtful in a civil commitment determination. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Validity of prison officials' policy

The simple fact that the prisoner was back in prison at time case was heard did not relieve court of obligation to appraise validity of prison officials' continuing policy of commitments without hearing to mental institutions, inasmuch as prisoner was still subject to that policy. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

§ 21–546. Periodic requests for examination of hospitalized patient; procedure for examination and detention or release; petition to court

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21–547, 21–549, 21–589.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Administrators discretion

The court held that efficient hospital administration requires the courts to accord administrators much broader discretion in determining the appropriateness of an intra-hospital disposition of mentally ill person than in assaying the need for hospitalization ab initio; however, additional restrictions beyond those necessarily entailed by hospitalization are as much in need of justification as any other deprivations of liberty; and judicial review of internal decisions is not precluded. J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

Basis of Confinement

Confinement of the mentally ill rests upon basis substantially different from that which supports confinement of those convicted of crime since confinement of mentally ill depends not only upon validity of initial commitment but also upon continuing status of the patient. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, —U.S. App. D.C.—).

Burden of proof

Mental patient who seeks complete release from confinement by writ of habeas corpus need only establish, by the preponderance of the evidence, that he is no longer likely to injure himself or other persons because of mental illness. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Since habeas corpus proceeding on petition of mental patient for complete release from confinement is not strictly adversary in nature, conventional rules regarding the burden of coming forward with evidence do not apply, and the hearing court and the parties bear equal responsibility to see that decision is had upon all the relevant evidence. Id.

Exhaustion of administrative remedy

The administrative remedy for mental patient that must be exhausted prior to petition for habeas corpus is the medical examination, rather than request for examination, and if the examination has been conducted within six months prior to habeas corpus petition, the administrative remedy is exhausted. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427, F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Only if the required medical examination is in progress when the mental patient's habeas corpus petition is filed has the patient failed to exhaust his administrative remedy of complete medical examination. Id.

If the mental hospital has ignored its duty to the patient in its care, its misconduct may not be imputed to the patient and thereby prejudice patient's right to judicial review of his custody. Id.

If a mental patient is undergoing medical examination at the time his petition for habeas corpus is filed, the district court should defer action on the petition pending mental hospital's completion of the examination and if, after completion, the patient desires to continue with his petition, the district court should proceed to determination of the issues. Id.

Delay of plenary hearing on mental patient's petition for habeas corpus is not justified by patient's failure to avail himself of his right to be examined by an outside psychiatrist. Id.

Mental hospital is adequately informed of a patient's desire to invoke such internal remedies as exist in hospital by the filing of a petition seeking judicial review in district court. Id.

If adequate internal remedies of mental hospital are in process at the time mental patient files habeas corpus petition, proper procedure is to delay action on petition rather than to dismiss it. Id.

Mentally ill person

A person is "mentally ill" if he suffers from an abnormal condition of mind that substantially affects mental or emotional processes, and substantially impairs behavioral control. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Periodic examinations

Statute governing release of persons acquitted by reason of insanity entitles patient to periodic examinations by hospital staff and right to be examined by outside psychiatrist and, if one of examining physicians believes he should no longer be hospitalized, he is entitled to court hearing. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent, etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Rule that patient committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty of offense by reason of insanity is entitled to periodic examinations by hospital staff and right to be examined by outside psychiatrist, and that if one of examining physicians believes he should no longer be hospitalized, he is entitled to court hearing applies to all cases including those previously committed under statute providing for mandatory commitment of persons acquitted by reason of insanity. Id.

Petition for release

When a mental hospital patient's habeas corpus petition for release from mental hospital is based on his mental health at time petition was filed, the petition is not subject to dismissal on grounds that the merits of his claim had been determined in prior proceedings or that failure to present the issues in prior proceedings amounted to inexcusable neglect. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427, F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Since ten months had elapsed between denial of previous petition for habeas corpus and mental patient's subsequent petition, sufficient time had passed for patient to raise issue that his condition at time of petition warranted his release from confinement in mental institution. Id.

Under this section, petition for habeas corpus by mental patient seeking his release on ground that his present status no longer justifys commitment may be dismissed as repetitive only if that ground was adequately heard and determined adversely to the patient in a judicial proceeding within six months preceding the new application. Id.

Under this section, even if previous application by mental patient on same grounds was heard and determined within six months preceding the new application, the district court has full power to hold plenary hearing, on the issue of patient's present mental condition, if the court believes that the interests of justice would thereby be served. Id.

Under this section, if mental patient's petition for habeas corpus is based solely on grounds relating not to present status but rather to specific past events, the question of whether a new hearing is required is equivalent to that in case of a prisoner seeking release under habeas corpus or equivalent process. Id.

Procedural safeguards

Transfer of prisoners to mental hospital requires protective procedures at least similar to those provided in 1964 Civil Commitment Act (now title 21, section 501 et seq., D.C. Code) providing full system of procedural safeguards before finding of mental illness can be made. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Under section 24–302 providing that if director of department of corrections believes prisoner is mentally ill, he can refer prisoner to psychiatrist and, if psychiatrist concurs in that belief, director can then transfer prisoner to mental hospital, before prisoner may be involuntarily transferred he is entitled to judicial hearing, jury trial, and same rights of notice, counsel and cross-examination as are provided for in title 21, section 501 et seq., and same procedures for release from hospital as are embodied in those sections. Id.

Questions of fact

The presence of an abnormal mental condition, and the extent to which it impairs mental or emotional processes and controls, are questions of fact; how substantial such an impairment must be to be considered a mental illness is a matter of law. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

The likelihood of future misconduct of the mental patient who seeks release from confinement, the type of misconduct to be expected, and its probable frequency are questions of fact; whether the expected harm, and its apparent likelihood, are sufficiently great to warrant coercive intervention are questions of law. Id.

Release provisions

Release provisions of statute governing commitment to mental hospital of one found not guilty by reason of insanity are valid even though they differ from civil commitment procedures by authorizing court review of hospital's decision to release patient. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Equal protection is not offended by allowing government or court opportunity to insure that standards for release of civilly committed patients are faithfully applied to patients committed after having been found not guilty by reason of insanity. Id.

Scope of judicial review

When the mental patient is seeking complete release from confinement, the scope of judicial review of hospital administrator's decision is broader and the function of the hearing court is not simply to review the hospital's decision for unreasonableness, but rather itself to decide ultimate the question of whether the present status of the patient is such that continued confinement is justifiable. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Sufficiency of return to petition for release

In this case, the court held that the mental hospital's return to habeas corpus petition filed by mental hospital was not sufficient to warrant trial court in denying plenary hearing on patient's mental condition at time of filing of petition. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Validity of prison officials' policy

The simple fact that the prisoner was back in prison at time case was heard did not relieve court of obligation to appraise validity of prison officials' continuing policy of commitments without hearing to mental institutions, inasmuch as prisoner was still subject to that policy. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

§ 21–548. Periodic examinations by hospital authorities; release

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21–549, 21–589.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Basis of confinement

Confinement of the mentally ill rests upon basis substantially different from that which supports confinement of those convicted of crime since confinement of mentally ill depends not only upon validity of initial commitment but also upon continuing status of the patient. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Exhaustion of administrative remedy

The administrative remedy for mental patient that must be exhausted prior to petition for habeas corpus is the medical examination, rather than request for examination, and if the examination has been conducted within six months prior to habeas corpus petition, the administrative remedy is exhausted. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Only if the required medical examination is in progress when the mental patient's habeas corpus petition is filed has the patient failed to exhaust his administrative remedy of complete medical examination. Id.

If the mental hospital has ignored its duty to the patient in its care, its misconduct may not be imputed to the patient and thereby prejudice patient's right to judicial view of his custody. Id.

If a mental patient is undergoing medical examination at the time his petition for habeas corpus is filed, the district court should defer action on the petition pending mental hospital's completion of the examination and if, after completion, the patient desires to continue with his petition, the district court should proceed to determination of the issues. Id.

Mentally ill person

A person is "mentally ill" if he suffers from an abnormal condition of mind that substantially affects mental or emotional processes, and substantially impairs behavioral control, D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Periodic examinations

Statute governing release of persons acquitted by reason of insanity entitles patient to periodic examinations by hospital staff and right to be examined by outside psychiatrist and, if one of examining physicians believes he should no longer be hospitalized, he is entitled to court hearing. *G. SUBCHAPTER V.—RIGHT TO COMMUNICATION; EXERCISE OF OTHER RIGHTS

§ 21–562. Medical and psychiatric care and treatment; records

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Availability of treatment

Availability of treatment for persons civilly committed to hospital as mentally ill had been sufficiently demonstrated in case so that it was not necessary to decide question of whether court erred in ordering hospitalization at particular hospital in absence of showing that he would receive medical and psychiatric treatment there. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Basis for indefinite commitment

Indefinite commitment under sexual psychopath law is justifiable only upon a theory of therapeutic treatment. M. I. Millard v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1966, 373 F. 2d 468, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 383).

Construction with other laws

The District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act was not repealed by the 1964 Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Court of Appeals would not read into the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act the procedural protections of the Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act. Id.

Disclosure of records

The court held that hospital to which mentally ill person has been civilly committed may not disclose hospital records to outside parties without patient's consent does not imply that it is forbidden to introduce them in court where they are relevant to patient's contentions on habeas corpus. J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

Evidence

In view of psychiatrists' testimony that person was suffering from condition which substantially impaired his health, that the condition was interrelated with his mental deficiency, and that his antisocial behavior occurred as result and manifestation of underlying mental illness, there was sufficient evidence for jury to find that person in addition to being mentally deficient was suffering from a mental illness. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Habeas corpus

Alleged denial of mental patients' right to treatment would require remand of habeas corpus petition for a new hearing. S. A. Dobson and R. Stultz v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 383 F. 2d 519, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 324).

Petitioner involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity had right to treatment that was cognizable in habeas corpus, and law and justice required remand for hearing and findings on whether petitioner had received adequate treatment and, if not, the details and circumstances underlying the reason why he had not. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Habeas corpus relief would be available to one involuntarily committed to public hospital as sexual psychopath but who is not receiving reasonably suitable and adequate treatment, and lack of such treatment could not be justified by lack of staff or facilities. M. I. Millard v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1966, 373 F. 2d 468, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 388; rev'd and remanded 406 F. 2d 964).

Instructions

To extent that district court's instruction reflected government trial counsel's view that mental deficiency in and of itself constituted a mental illness within District of Columbia statute relating to civil commitment instruction was improper, but when court's charge was taken in its entirety the jury had been clearly and properly informed they could not commit person simply because of his mental deficiency. In re M. W. Alexander, Patient (1967, 372 F. 2d 925, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Reasonable opportunity to initiate treatment

If court finds that a mandatorily committed patient is in custody in violation of Constitution and laws, for failure to receive treatment, it may allow hospital a reasonable opportunity to initiate treatment, but if opportunity for treatment has been exhausted or is otherwise inappropriate, conditional or unconditional release may be in order. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Records—sufficiency

Generally, when a patient at a public mental hospital seeks to challenge the legality of decisions regarding treatment accorded him or manner of his confinement, hospital may not rely upon information or explanations not in the patient's hospital record to justify decision: records on their face must be adequate to demonstrate propriety of challenged decisions and may not be rehabilitated by subsequent demonstration in court. D. Williams v. L. D. Robinson, Acting Sup't. etc. (1970, 432 F. 2d 637, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Until the hospital can demonstrate existence and adequacy of mechanisms to insure complaining patient fair opportunity to place facts and arguments in administrative record, patient complaining of treatment or manner of confinement must be allowed opportunity to show, by reference to evidence outside hospital records, that even decision proper on face of records did not meet applicable standards; if the patient relies upon evidence outside face of records, hospital may rebut showing by going beyond records as well. Id.

In a habeas corpus proceeding by patient in public mental hospital complaining of manner of confinement, government is entitled to remand, despite insufficiency of hospital records in record to support confinement, where importance, for purposes of judicial review, of inclusion of additional records may not have been sufficiently clear and government claimed that the records were available to justify confinement. Id.

Public mental hospital records disclosing only reports from hospital's security force detailing investigation of robbery and conclusion that patient was perpetrator and doctor's memorandum stating that the patient had been identified as one who had threatened employee are, while sufficient to support interim determination that hospital security required patient's prompt transfer to maximum security unit, insufficient to support continued confinement in absence of showing that patient had been afforded reasonable opportunity to test evidence against him or that there was adequate plan of treatment. Id.

Right to treatment

One involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity has a right to treatment. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

On issue of right to treatment of one involuntarily committed on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity, hospital need not show that treatment will cure or improve him but only that there is bona fide effort to do so, and this requires hospital to show that initial and periodic inquiries are made into needs and conditions of patient with view to providing suitable treatment for him, and that the program provided is suited to his particular needs. Id.

On issue of right to treatment of one involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity, effort should be to provide treatment which is adequate in light of present knowledge. Id.

Continuing failure to provide suitable and adequate treatment of one involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity cannot be justified by lack of staff or facilities. Id.

Scope of judicial review

Where the decision of the hospital's administration challenged by mental patient relates essentially to internal administration of the hospital such as the patient's right to adequate treatment, transfer to less restrictive ward, or conditional release, judicial review is limited to determination whether the administrator of hospital has made permissible and reasonable decision in view of relevant information and within broad range of discretion. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Treatment of patient

Under this section providing that a person hospitalized in public hospital for a mental illness shall be entitled to medical and psychiatric care and treatment, the hospital may be required to show that it is making "a bona fide effort" to cure or improve the patient and that the treatment provided "is suited to his particular needs." J. Covington v. D. W. Harris (1969, 419 F. 2d 617, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 35).

§ 21–564. Exercise of property and other rights; notice of inability; persons hospitalized prior to September 15, 1964

(a) A patient hospitialized pursuant to this chapter may not, by reason of the hospitalization, be denied the right to dispose of property, execute instruments, make purchases, enter into contractual relationships, vote, and hold a driver's license, unless the patient has been adjudicated incompetent by a court of competent jurisdiction and has not been restored to legal capacity. If the chief of service of the public or private hospital in which the patient is hospitalized is of the opinion that the patient is unable to exercise any of the rights referred to in this section, the chief of service shall immediately notify the patient and the patient's attorney, legal guardian, spouse, parents, or other nearest known adult relative, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, the Commission on Mental Health, and the Commissioner of the District of Columbia of that fact.

(b) A person in the District of Columbia who, by reason of a judicial decree ordering his hospitalization entered prior to September 15, 1964, is considered to be mentally incompetent and is denied the right to dispose of property, execute instruments, make purchases, enter into contractual relationships, vote, or hold a driver's license solely by reason of the decree, shall, upon the expiration of the one-year period immediately following September 15, 1964, be deemed to have been restored to legal capacity unless, within the one-year period, affirmative action is commenced to have the person adjudicated mentally incompetent by a court of competent jurisdiction: Provided, however, That in those cases in which a committee has heretofore been appointed and the committeeship has not been terminated by court action, such committee shall continue to act under the supervision of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia under its equity powers. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 89–183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 150(c)(3), (4), 84 Stat. 567.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Only those hospitalized pursuant to Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act are guaranteed by the civil rights act to dispose of property, execute instruments, make purchases, enter into contractual relationships, vote, or hold driver's license. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. v. C. Mullen etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 193, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

Effect of commitment

Commitment to St. Elizabeth's hospital does not automatically render person incompetent for most purposes. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. v. C. Mullen etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 193, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Basis for court's determination

The court concluded that before it can determine that hospital's decision to confine patient in maximum security ward is, within its broad discretion, "permissible and reasonable in view of the relevant information," it must be able to conclude that hospital has considered and found inadequate all relevant alternative dispositions within hospital. *J. The statement is sufficient to authorize the court to order the person restored to his former legal status as a person of sound mind. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, eff. § 21–1110. Liability of estate of public patient for maintenance

When the court orders the admission of a person to Forest Haven as a public patient or when a person is admitted to Forest Haven as a patient under section 21–1108A, and it appears then or thereafter that the patient has an estate out of which the Government may be reimbursed for his maintenance, in whole or in part, the court shall order the payment out of the estate of the whole or such part of the cost of maintenance of the patient at the institution as it deems just, regard being had for the needs of those having a legal right to support out of the estate. The order shall remain in full force and effect unless modified by the court. Upon the death of the substantially retarded person while an inmate at the institution, or within five years after his discharge therefrom, his estate is liable to the District of Columbia for the cost of his maintenance at the institution, and the claim of the District of Columbia is a preferred claim. SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 21–1108A, 21–1111.

(a) When a court orders the admission of a person to Forest Haven as a public patient or when a person is admitted to Forest Haven as a patient under section 21–1108A, and the court finds at any time that the patient does not have an estate out of which the District of Columbia may be fully reimbursed for his maintenance, a parent, spouse, and adult children of the substantially retarded person, if of sufficient financial ability, shall pay the cost to the District of Columbia of his maintenance at the institution. The Commissioner of the District of Columbia may petition the court, during the commitment of the substantially retarded person to the institution, to direct any of those relatives to pay the District of Columbia, in whole or in part, for his maintenance at the institution. They may not be required to pay more than the actual cost to the District of Columbia of his maintenance.

(b) When the court finds that a relative specified by subsection (a) of this section is able to pay for the maintenance of the substantially retarded person, in whole or in part, it may make an order requiring payment by him or all the relatives of such sums as it finds that he or they are reasonably able to pay and as may be necessary to provide for his maintenance. The order shall require the payment of the sums to the Finance Office of the Department of General Administration, or its successor, or its authorized representative or agency, of the District monthly, as the court directs. The Finance Office, or its successor, or its authorized representative or agency, as the case may be, shall collect the sums due under this section and section 21–1110, and turn them into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia.

(c) If a relative made liable for the maintenance of the substantially retarded person fails to provide or pay for the maintenance, or his part thereof, in accordance with the order of the court, the court shall issue to him a citation to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt. The citation shall be served at least 10 days before the hearing thereon.

(d) An order issued under this session may be enforced against any property of a relative made liable for the maintenance of the substantially retarded person, in the same way as if it were an order for temporary alimony in a divorce case.

(e) Upon the death of a relative ordered by the court to pay for the maintenance of the substantially retarded person in whole or in part, the estate of the relative is liable to the District of Columbia for the unpaid amount due the District of Columbia under the order of court at the time of his death, and the claim of the District of Columbia is a preferred claim against his estate. § 21–1112. Public patients may become private patients by filing bond and paying advance

When a person is admitted to Forest Haven as a public patient, and thereafter the bond and advance payment referred to in section 21–1109 are executed and delivered to the court, the court shall make an order changing the status of the person from a public to a private patient. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 770, Pub. L. 89–183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91–490, § 2(a)(2), 84 Stat. 1087.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 2(a)(2) of Act Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91–490, amended section by striking out "the District Training School" and inserting in lieu thereof "Forest Haven".

§ 21–1113. Restrictions on discharge; petition for discharge; causes for discharge; superintendent to be notified; notice of variation of order; denial on[1] one petition not a bar to another

(a) A substantially retarded person admitted to Forest Haven pursuant to an order of court may not be discharged therefrom except as provided by this section, but the right of petition for the writ of habeas corpus may not be abridged.

(b) After the admission of a substantially retarded person pursuant to an order of court provided by this chapter, a relative or friend of the substantially retarded person, or a reputable citizen, or the superintendent of the institution, or the Department of Public Welfare, may petition the court that entered the order of admission to discharge the substantially retarded person, or to vary the order of the court admitting him to the institution.

(c) When, on the hearing of a petition filed pursuant to subsection (b) of this section, the court is satisfied that the welfare of the substantially retarded person or of the other persons or of the community requires his discharge or a variation of the order, it may enter an order of discharge or variation as it deems proper.

[1] So in original. Probably should read "of".

(d) Discharges and variations of orders may be ordered or made if:

(1) the person adjudged to be substantially retarded is not substantially retarded; or

(2) the person has so far improved as to be capable of caring for himself; or

(3) the relatives or friends of the substantially retarded person are able and willing to supervise, control, care for, and support him, and request his discharge, and, in the judgment of the Superintendent of Forest Haven, evil consequences are not likely to follow the discharge.

(e) The enumeration of grounds of discharge or variation by subsection (d) of this section does not exclude other grounds of discharge or variation which the court deems adequate, having regard for the welfare of the person concerned or of other persons or of the community.

(f) On a petition for discharge or variation filed pursuant to this section, the court may discharge the substantially retarded person from all supervision, control, and care, or make such variation of the order as to maintenance as the court deems fit under all the circumstances appearing at the hearing of the petition.

(g) The Superintendent of Forest Haven shall be notified of the time and place of hearing on a petition for discharge or variation filed pursuant to this section, as the court directs, and an order of discharge or variation may not be entered without giving the Superintendent a reasonable opportunity to be heard. The court may notify such other persons, relatives, and friends of the substantially retarded person as it deems proper, of the time and place of the hearing on the petition.

(h) A person may not be charged with any greater degree of financial responsibility for the support of a substantially retarded person by variation of the order as to maintenance without notice and a reasonable opportunity to be heard.

(i) The denial of one petition for discharge or variation is not a bar to another petition on the same or different ground filed within a reasonable time thereafter, the reasonable time to be determined by the court in its discretion, discouraging frequent, repeated, frivolous, ill-founded petitions for discharge or variation of a prior order. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 770, Pub. L. 89–183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 150(g)(1)(A), 84 Stat. 568; Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. § 21–1301. Appointment of committee

When a person residing in the District of Columbia, and owning an estate, real or personal, situate therein, is alleged to be unfit, from the habitual use of intoxicating liquors, opium, cocaine, or similar substance, or compound or derivative thereof, to manage or control his estate properly, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, on the petition of a creditor or relative of the person, or if there is not a creditor or relative, upon the petition of a person living in the District of Columbia, and upon summons being served upon the person alleged to be unfit, commanding him to appear and answer the petition, may order a jury to be summoned to ascertain whether the person is an alcoholic or addicted to the habitual use of opium, cocaine, or similar substance or compound derivative thereof and unfit from any of these causes to manage and control his property. If the jury finds that the person is an alcoholic or a habitual user of opium, cocaine, or similar substance or a compound or derivative thereof and unfit to manage or control his property, the finding, when confirmed by the court, shall be entered of record in the cause, and the court shall thereupon appoint a fit person to be committee of the person so declared unfit to manage or control his property. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 773, Pub. L. 89–183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 150(h) (1), 84 Stat. 569.)

§ 21–1302. Bond; powers and duties

The committee before entering upon the discharge of his duties shall execute a bond, with surety, to be approved by the court or a judge thereof, in a penalty equal to the amount of the personal property and the yearly rents to be derived from the real estate of the person, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as the committee. He shall have control of the estate, real and personal, with power to collect all debts due the alcoholic or drug addict, and to adjust and settle all accounts owing by him, and to sue and be sued in his representative capacity. He shall apply the annual income of the estate to the support of the person, and the maintenance of his family and education of his children; and shall in all other respects perform the same duties and have the same rights as pertain to committees of lunatics and idiots. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 773, Pub. L. 89–183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 150(h)(2), 84 Stat. 569.)

Chapter 15.—CONSERVATORS

CHAPTER REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This chapter is referred to in sections 11–501, 11–921.

§ 21–1501. Appointment of conservators

When an adult residing in or having property in the District of Columbia is unable, by reason of advanced age, mental weakness not amounting to unsoundness of mind, mental illness, as the latter term is defined by section 21–501, or physical incapacity, properly to care for his property, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia may, upon his petition or the sworn petition of one or more of his relatives or any other person or persons, appoint a fit person to be conservator of his property. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 774, Pub. L. 89–183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 150(i)(1), 84 Stat. 569.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 150(i)(1) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358, amended section by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 20–351, 21–1502.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Capacity to make a will

Provision in section 21–1507 voiding transfer of real and personal property by person subject to conservatorship does not render that person, per se, incapable of making valid will. D. H. Rossi v. E. A. Fletcher (1969, 418 F. 2d 1169, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 333; cert. denied 90 S. Ct. 568).

Congress in adopting provisions in section 18–102 that will was not valid unless person making it was of required age and at time of executing or acknowledging it was of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing valid deed or contract did not intend to deprive mentally competent person of testamentary capacity merely because he was subject to conservatorship. Id.

Colorable jurisdiction

A determination that conservator was properly appointed was correct where the initial appointments of guardian ad litem, temporary conservator and permanent conservator of person and estate were based on colorable jurisdiction. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Control over property in other jurisdiction

Local statutes cannot by themselves give conservator power to assert control over property in other jurisdictions, and local conservator has authority and power to take control over property located in another state only so far as allowed by comity of that state. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Determination of benefits accruing to estate

Determination as to benefits accruing to estate and size of estate for purposes of compensation of former conservators and guardian ad litem required that record be supplemented to determine extent conservators actually assumed, or had power to assume, control over appellant's stock and specific findings of fact as to whether value of her stock may have increased regardless of efforts of conservators and whether services of guardian and conservators actually inured to her benefit. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Discretion of trial judge

In a case where there is any property within District of Columbia, appointment of conservator is within discretion of trial judge in view of lack of statutory specification of the minimum amount of property necessary for appointment of conservator. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Where the appellant had $850 worth of property in the District, appointment of a conservator pursuant to statute governing guardians of property of mentally incompetent persons was not an abuse of discretion. Id.

Remand

Since this proceeding leading to the appointment of a conservator for the person and property of wife, the husband has returned to the United States and was residing in New Jersey, and since wife remained in her mother's home in New Jersey, the case would be remanded for determination as to whether District of Columbia conservatorship should be continued to protect parties' single asset in the District. G. J. Davis v. B. Corrin (1969, 417 F. 2d 1157, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

Residence requirement

The evidence in this case on issue whether federal district court for the District of Columbia had jurisdiction to appoint a conservator for wife was sufficient authorize a finding that wife was a resident of the District, notwithstanding fact that the wife was being cared for by her mother in mother's home in New Jersey. G. J. Davis v. B. Corrin (1969, 417 F. 2d 1157, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

§ 21–1502. Filing of petition; requirements; time and place of hearing; appointment of guardian ad litem

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Court's duties in relation to conservator

Court appointing conservators should be willing to receive complaints and reports from any source concerning alleged misconduct or conflict of interest. C. M. Price and G. P. Marshall, Jr., etc. v. E. B. Williams et al. (1968, 393 F. 2d 348, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

Joint services of guardian and conservator

Permitting services of guardian ad litem to continue after permanent conservators were appointed was not improper. C. M. Price and G. P. Marshall, Jr., etc. v. E. B. Williams et al. (1968, 393 F. 2d 348, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

Liability of conservator

In a case where a bank honored checks drawn without authority by an incompetent upon account carried in the name of conservatorship estate, which had been created for the incompetent, and where the conservator recovered judgment against bank in the amount of the checks and the bank against the incompetent, who had been impleaded by bank, in same amount, refusal to require conservator to pay judgment recovered by bank against the incompetent was not error. In re Appointment of a Conservation for B. Justice, Jr.; et ano. etc. (1969, 418 F. 2d 1162, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

Notice to husband

Under this section which requires that the district court shall cause at least 14 days' notice of hearing to be given to the person for whom a conservator is sought to be appointed, if he is not the petitioner, and to such other persons as the court directs, the husband of the person for whom a conservator was sought was not an indispensable party to the proceeding leading to the appointment of the conservator and failure to notify him of hearing did not vitiate that proceeding. G. J. Davis v. B. Corrin (1969, 417 F. 2d 1157, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

Remand

Since this proceeding leading to the appointment of a conservator for the person and property of wife, the husband has returned to the United States and was residing in New Jersey, and since wife remained in her mother's home in New Jersey, the case would be remanded for determination as to whether District of Columbia conservatorship should be continued to protect parties' single asset in the District. G. J. Davis v. B. Corrin (1969, 417 F. 2d 1157, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

Reversal on appeal

The Court of Appeals should not reverse lower court's decision regarding conservatorship matters unless a clear abuse of discretion is shown. C. M. Price and G. P. Marshall, Jr., etc. v. E. B. Williams et al. (1968, 393 F. 2d 348, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

§ 21–1503. Bond; powers and duties

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 21–1505.

Control over property in other jurisdiction

Local statutes cannot by themselves give conservator power to assert control over property in other jurisdictions, and local conservator has authority and power to take control over property located in another state only so far as allowed by comity of that state. E. Justice, Jr., et ano. etc. (1969, 418 F. 2d 1162, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

Reasonable compensation

§ 21–1504. Discharge

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Reasonable compensation

A figure of 5% as a flexible rule of thumb for fixing reasonable compensation, in ordinary case, to guardians ad litem and conservators appointed pursuant to statute governing guardians of property of mentally incompetent persons, is permissible. E. D. Mitchell v. C. D. Ensor, et al. (1969, 412 F. 2d 155, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

Title to property

There is no restriction upon district court, sitting in probate, which limits its power to adjudicate right to possession of personalty. C. M. Price and G. P. Marshall, Jr., etc. v. E. B. Williams et al. (1968, 393 F. 2d 348, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

§ 21–1506. Personal welfare of person under conservatorship

The court may at any time order that the conservator or another person shall be responsible for the personal welfare of the person whose property is under conservatorship. In that event the conservator or other person, subject to the direction and control of the court, has the same powers and duties with respect to the personal welfare of the person whose property is under conservatorship as have the guardians of the persons or infants under guardianships. (Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 775, Pub. L. 89–183, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1966; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 150(i)(2), 84 Stat. 569.)

§ 21–1507. Lis pendens

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Capacity to make a will

Provision in section 21–1507 voiding transfer of real and personal property by person subject to conservatorship, does not render that person, per se, incapable of making valid will. D. H. Rossi v. E. A. Fletcher (1969, 418 F. 2d 1169, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 333; cert. denied 90 S. Ct. 568).

Purpose of lis pendens

Purpose of filing lis pendens is, at least in part, to give constructive notice of pending suit or petition. In re Appointment of a Conservator for B. Justice, Jr., et ano. etc. (1969, 418 F. 2d 1162, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

Filing of lis pendens is not required against one who has actual notice of suit or petition. Id.

TITLE 22.—CRIMINAL OFFENSES

Chap. Sec.
18. Burglary 22–1801
20. Obscenity 22–2001

Chapter 1.—GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec.
22–104a. Punishment of persons convicted of a felony with a prior record of at least two felony convictions—Definitions—Effect of convictions pardoned on the ground of innocence.
22–105a. Punishment of persons convicted of conspiracies to commit crimes—Proof—Conspiracies to commit crimes within or outside of the District.

§ 22–103. Attempts to commit crime.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle

Attempted unauthorized use of a motor vehicle is a crime under statutes prohibiting the taking, use, operation, or removal of a vehicle without owner's consent and calling for punishment of whoever shall attempt to commit any crime, which attempt is not otherwise punishable. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Continuance

The granting or refusal of a continuance is largely left to discretion of the trial judge, and his decision will not be disturbed without a clear showing of abuse in the exercise of that discretion. W. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 235 A. 2d 574).

Corroborating witness

Failure of prosecution to produce second officer who as a corroborating witness could only have testified to time and place of defendant's arrest for attempted procuring because he did not hear conversation between arresting officer and defendant was not error in view of prosecution's effort to secure a continuance because second officer was in another court and defendant's then counsel's willingness to proceed to trial in second officer's absence. R. Blakney v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 654).

Elements of offense

The elements of the crime of false pretenses are a false representation, knowledge of its falsity, an intent to defraud, reliance on the misrepresentation by the defrauded party, and the obtaining of something of value. J. R. Marganella v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 803).

Evidence

Evidence supported conviction for attempted unauthorized use of automobile. N. Dickson v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 364).

Evidence supported conviction for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence, including testimony identifying defendant as one of two men attempting to pry open window with crowbar, is sufficient to sustain convictions for attempted second-degree burglary, destroying property and attempted petit larceny H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

The evidence sustained conviction for attempted false pretenses involving misuse of a credit card. J. R. Marganella v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 803).

In prosecution for attempted false pretenses involving misuse of credit card in connection with motel registration, the necessity of producing motel desk clerk was obviated by introduction of motel's records. Id.

In this case, the court held that testimony as to ownership of damaged vending machine, purportedly based on witness' own knowledge, was not hearsay and was sufficient to prove ownership as alleged in information charging malicious injuring of property and attempted petit larceny. L. Killens v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 44).

In this case the evidence in prosecution of defendant for attempted burglarly permitted inference of an intent to commit a crime to be made by the jury who was found in warehouse amongst scattered papers, opened desk drawers and office machinery which had been moved into hall. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 483).

Evidence that tenant of apartment heard what sounded like someone attempting to enter vacant apartment and that defendant and companion were seen leaving building and fled when pursued by officer was sufficient to sustain conviction of attempted housebreaking. T. H. Adams v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 245 A. 2d 640).

Evidence that fingerprints of defendant appeared on glass surface, which had once been outside surface of drugstore entrance was insufficient to sustain conviction of attempted housebreaking, destroying property, and petit larceny. A. W. Townsley v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 236 F. 2d 63).

The record contains sufficient evidence from which the jury could have found or inferred that the car left by owner in the parking garage and the one driven onto the parking lot by appellant were one and the same. F. E. Wesley v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 233 A. 2d 514).

Cigarettes found in defendants' possession, with same "wholesale numbers" as cigarettes left in store, but not otherwise identified as having come from store, had little, if any, probative value. S. C. Davis and C. L. Colbert v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 485).

Evidence of defendants' physical and chronological proximity to scene of housebreaking, and their leaving at a trot, was insufficient to sustain conviction for attempted housebreaking and petit larceny. Id.

Inconsistent verdict

The trial court could have found defendant, who was carrying goods stolen from an apartment building, which he later abandoned when he attempted to flee, guilty of both attempted burglarly and petit larceny charges on inference of guilt raised by defendant's unexplained possession of recently stolen property or even on the basis of this inference the trier of the facts could have had a reasonable doubt that defendant had necessary criminal intent upon entering apartment building to be convicted of attempted burglarly, and thus verdicts of acquittal on attempted burglary charge and guilty on petit larceny charge were not necessarily inconsistent or irreconcilable. H. Barnes v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 724).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain petit larceny conviction. Id.

Information—Amendment

Where amendment of information charging attempted second-degree burglary, destroying private property, and petit larceny to reflect that property in question belonged to corporation in care and custody of individual, as opposed to individual alone as charged in original information, conformed to testimony at trial and no prejudice was occasioned by the defense, permitting the amendment was not error. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Instructions

In a prosecution for attempted procuring involving contents of conversation that concededly took place between defendant and officer at street corner, instruction that if witness testified falsely concerning any material fact, about which the witness could not be reasonably mistaken, all testimony of such witness could be disregarded, except such parts as were corroborated by other testimony, was not plain error requiring reversal in absence of objection. W. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 446).

In this case, instruction by trial court, in prosecution for attempted procuring, that jury must decide whether defendant had intent to procure female for immoral purposes, was proper when placed in context with entire charge as obviously referring to illegal sexual immoralities. J. R. Langley v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 503).

In this case, since the jury had convicted defendant of more serious crime of attempted burglarly, any error in instruction on lesser included offense of unlawful entry was not demonstrated to be prejudicial. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 483).

Lapse of time between theft and arrest

Lapse of five days between theft of automobile and arrest of defendant operating it did not insulate him from criminal liability for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Lesser included offense

Except for the requirement of intent to commit crime, unlawful entry is substantially identical to and hence lesser included offense of burglarly in second degree. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 483).

Procuring

In this case the evidence was sufficient to sustain convictions for attempted procuring. J. R. Langley v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 503).

Proof of ownership

Any failure of prosecution to show who owned automobile involved in prosecution for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle did not preclude conviction where it was established that ownership was in some third party. D. Dickson v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 364).

Prostitution

Showing that defendant and complaining witness bargained until they had agreed upon exchange of money, although uncertain in amount, for services of prostitute, and that immediately thereafter defendant led complaining witness a considerable distance to hotel unknown to witness where prostitute was supposedly waiting was sufficient evidence to sustain conviction for attempted procuring. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 187).

Review

Defendant could not be heard to complain on appeal of conviction for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle in view of proof of completion of offense of unauthorized use of the vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Sentences

Rule of lenity is to be applied, and concurrent sentences imposed for destruction of property and attempted second-degree burglary, since in this case both offenses involved single course of conduct, i.e., prying of window. H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

Consecutive sentences could properly be imposed for attempted second-degree burglary and attempted petit larceny, since it is apparent from facts of case, including use of panel truck, that defendant intended to invade two distinct societal interests. Id.

Statutory provision for two-year mandatory minimum sentence for burglary do not operate to prevent prosecution and sentencing for lesser misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, for which offenses the defendant was actually sentenced for one-half year more than two-year felony minimum. J. J. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

In this case the court held that since the District of Columbia Code expressly limits maximum prison sentence for attempted burglary to one year and crimes of attempted second-degree burglary and malicious destruction of property are offenses against same societal interest and since there was nothing to show that offenses were animated by different criminal intents, defendant's convictions for attempted second-degree burglary and for malicious destruction of property with respective consecutive sentences of one year and six months are not appropriate case for cumulative punishment and case would be remanded for resentencing. M. A. Johnson, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 265 A. 2d 780).

Under the facts of this case where defendant's true crime was burglary in the second degree, a felony carrying a mandatory minimum sentence of two years, and prosecution reduced felony to the three separate misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, trial judge did not abuse discretion in imposing two consecutive one-year sentences and one concurrent one-year sentence following defendant's conviction on all three separate misdemeanors. R. M. Weeks v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 907).

Store breaking

Evidence warranted conviction for attempted store breaking, where defendant's fingerprints were on top of paper bag which contained burglary tools and which was found beside broken skylight over store, that area was generally inaccessible to public, and that bag was dry although roof was damp. E. Patten v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 182).

§ 22–104. Second conviction.

(a) If any person—

(1) is convicted of a criminal offense (other than a non-moving traffic offense) under a law applicable exclusively to the District of Columbia, and

(2) was previously convicted of a criminal offense under any law of the United States or of a State or territory of the United States which offense, at the time of the conviction referred to in paragraph (1), is the same as, constitutes, or necessarily includes, the offense referred to in that paragraph, such person may be sentenced to pay a fine in an amount not more than one and one-half times the maximum fine prescribed for the conviction referred to in paragraph (1) and sentenced to imprisonment for a term not more than one and one-half times the maximum term of imprisonment prescribed for that conviction. If such person was previously convicted more than once of an offense described in paragraph (2), he may be sentenced to pay a fine in an amount not more than three times the maximum fine prescribed for the conviction referred to in paragraph (1) and sentenced to imprisonment for a term not more than three times the maximum term of imprisonment prescribed for that conviction. No conviction with respect to which a person has been pardoned on the ground of innocence shall be taken into account in applying this section.

(b) This section shall not apply in the event of conflict with any other provision of law which provides an increased penalty for a specific offense by reason of a prior conviction of the same or any other offense. (Nov. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 907; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 201(a), title II, 84 Stat. 598.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 201(a) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358, amended section to read as above set out. For provisions of this section prior to this amendment, see 1967 edition of the code, and supplement III, thereto.

APPLICABILITY OF AMENDMENT

Section 901(b)(3) of Pub. L. 91–358, provided as follows: (3) The amendments made by sections 201 [sections 22–104 and 22–104a] and 205 [sections 22–3202 and 22–3213] of this Act shall apply with respect to any person who commits an offense after the effective date of this Act. [For effective date see note preceding § 11–101.]

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 33–423.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Notice

Defendant has right to be given notice of government's intention to prosecute as second offender and ask for heavier penalties under second offender statute; the notice should be formal; and informal notice, originating with court, acquiesced in by prosecution, with burden on defendant's counsel to convey notice to defendant, is insufficient. S. Brandon, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 159).

Practice with respect to second offender prosecutions

The practice of district attorney's office, when intending to prosecute as second offender, to file written notice to that effect, specifically referring to former conviction, its nature and date, and to deliver copy of such notice to defendant personally is approved. S. Brandon, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 159).

The practice of prosecuting defendant as second offender only on suggestion of trial court and not at suggestion of district attorney's office is disapproved. Id.

Proof of prior conviction

The admission of defendant's counsel, in answer to court's question, that defendant had prior conviction of either petit larceny or attempted petit larceny was not waiver of proof of prior conviction. S. Brandon, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 159).

Trial court's reference at bench conference to grand larceny in 1964, apparently based on information obtained from paper produced by prosecuting attorney, did not constitute proof of former conviction. Id.

Sentence

Sentence of defendant as second offender was invalid where defendant had no proper notice that he would be prosecuted as second offender, prosecutor did not intend to prosecute defendant as second offender and did so only at suggestion of trial court, an there was no proof of former conviction. S. Brandon, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 159).

(a) If—

(1) any person (A) is convicted in the District of Columbia of a felony, and (B) before the commission of such felony, was convicted of at least two felonies; and

(2) the court is of the opinion that the history and character of such person and the nature and circumstances of his criminal conduct indicate that extended incarceration or lifetime supervision, or both, will best serve the public interest, the court may, in lieu of any sentence otherwise authorized for the felony referred to in clause (A) of paragraph (1), impose such greater sentence as it deems necessary, including imprisonment for the natural life of such person.

(b) For purposes of paragraph (1) of subsection (a)—

(1) a person shall be considered as having been convicted of a felony if he was convicted (A) of a felony in a court of the District of Columbia or of the United States, or (B) in any other jurisdiction of a crime classified as a felony under the laws of that jurisdiction or punishable by imprisonment for more than two years; and

(2) a person shall be considered as having been convicted of two felonies if his initial sentencing under a conviction of one felony preceded the commission of the second felony for which he was convicted.

No conviction with respect to which a person has been pardoned on the ground of innocence shall be taken into account in applying this section. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 907A; as added July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 201(b), title II, 84 Stat. 599.)

APPLICABILITY OF AMENDMENT

Section 901(b)(3) of Pub. L. 91–358, provided as follows: (3) The amendments made by sections 201 [sections 22–104 and 22–104a] and 205 [sections 22–3202 and 22–3213] of this Act shall apply with respect to any person who commits an offense after the effective date of this Act. [For effective date, see note preceding § 11–101.]

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 33–423.

§ 22–105. Persons advising, inciting, or conniving at criminal offense to be charged as principals.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Aid and abet

To sustain conviction of an aider and abettor for commission of the crime, it is only necessary that the defendant was associated with the principal offender in the venture and made a conscious effort to help it succeed. In the matter of Reeder (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 893).

Evidence—Sufficiency

In this case, the evidence was sufficient to support juvenile court's finding that juvenile participated as an aider and abettor in assault with intent to commit robbery on a school teacher. In the matter of Reeder (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 893).

Evidence was not sufficient to sustain a conviction for aiding and abetting petit larceny on a showing that at time officer observed suspected criminal activity defendant was standing near the right side of automobile at a point somewhere between automobile, which contained wine and beer allegedly stolen from store, and the store. T. Williams and B. L. Short v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 722).

Evidence did not sustain conviction of petit larceny of wine and beer in violation of District Code. Id.

The evidence portrayed in a view most favorable to the Government, of defendant's presence at scene of crime, his slight association with actual perpetrator, and subsequent flight, did not sustain conviction for robbery. J. L. Bailey v. United States (1969, 416 F. 2d 1110, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 95).

Information—Validity of Evidence was sufficient to prove that defendant aided and abetted the principal offender in sales and deliveries of drugs, in violation of law, and was not prejudiced by informations charging him alone as principal where there was adequate evidence to establish that principal offender committed violations charged, since statute provided that all persons aiding or abetting principal were to be charged as principals and not as accessories. R. W. Mason v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 565).

Prosecution of aider and abettor

In this jurisdiction, an aider and abettor is prosecuted as a principal, and conviction of principal offender is not prerequisite to conviction of the aider and abettor. J. L. Bailey v. United States (1969, 416 F. 2d 1110, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 95).

§ 22–105a. Punishment of persons convicted of conspiracies to commit crimes—Proof—Conspiracies to commit crimes within or outside of the District.

(a) If two or more persons conspire either to commit a criminal offense or to defraud the District of Columbia or any court or agency thereof in any manner or for any purpose, each shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both, except that if the object of the conspiracy is a criminal offense punishable by less than five years, the maximum penalty for the conspiracy shall not exceed the maximum penalty provided for that offense.

(b) No person may be convicted of conspiracy unless an overt act is alleged and proved to have been committed by one of the conspirators pursuant to the conspiracy and to effect its purpose.

(c) When the object of a conspiracy contrived within the District of Columbia is to engage in conduct in a jurisdiction outside the District of Columbia which would constitute a criminal offense under an Act of Congress applicable exclusively to the District of Columbia if performed therein, the conspiracy is a violation of this section if (1) such conduct would also constitute a crime under the laws of the other jurisdiction if performed therein, or (2) such conduct would constitute a criminal offense under an Act of Congress exclusively applicable to the District of Columbia even if performed outside the District of Columbia.

(d) A conspiracy contrived in another jurisdiction to engage in conduct within the District of Columbia which would constitute a criminal offense under an Act of Congress exclusively applicable to the District of Columbia if performed within the District of Columbia is a violation of this section when an overt act pursuant to the conspiracy is committed within the District of Columbia. Under such circumstances, it is immaterial and no defense to a prosecution for conspiracy that the conduct which is the object of the conspiracy would not constitute a crime under the laws of the other jurisdiction. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 908 A; as added July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 202, title II, 84 Stat. 599.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

§ 22–109. Prosecutions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Information—Sufficiency of

Defendants, who were arrested after refusing to move out of corridor in House wing of Capitol building when ordered to do so by Capitol police, were entitled to know with certainty offense with which they were charged and possible penalty threatened and were entitled to definite reference to the law which they had allegedly violated, and thus where, notwithstanding request of defense, no one had given citation of statute under which prosecution was being had, other than statement of prosecutor that two sections were involved, convictions under section carrying lighter sentence, as requested by prosecutor, were required to be set aside. D. Smith et al. v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 233, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 275).

Chapter 2.—ABORTION

§ 22–201. Definition and penalty.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 11–502.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Congressional police power

Congress has the police power to outlaw abortions that are not performed under a qualified licensed practitioner of medicine. United States v. M. Vuitch and S. A. Boyd (1969, 305 F. Supp. 1032).

Constitutionality

Provisions in this section making the inducing of an abortion a felony unless it is done as necessary for preservation of mother's life or health, is invalid for failure to give that certainty which due process of law considers essential in criminal statute and for impinging to an appreciable extent on significant constitutional rights of individuals. United States v. M. Vuitch and S. A. Boyd (1969, 305 F. Supp. 1032).

Construction

In the case, the court held that neither this section nor the rules and regulations governing therapeutic abortions at general hospital of district precludes D.C. General Hospital from making available its facilities for performance of therapeutic abortions for mental health reasons whether or not patient has had previous history of mental defects. M. Doe et al. v. General Hospital of the District of Columbia et al. (1970, 313 F. Supp. 1170).

Equal protection of the laws

Principles of equal protection under our Constitution require that abortion policies in public hospitals be liberalized and it is legally proper that uniform medical abortion services be provided to all segments of the population, the poor as well as the rich. United States v. M. Vuitch and S. A. Boyd (1969, 305 F. Supp. 1032).

Severability of statute

The valid provision of this section outlawing abortions except when performed under the direction of competent physician is severable from invalid provision prohibiting abortion unless it is done as necessary for preservation of mother's life or health and entire statute is not invalid. United States v. M. Vuitch and S. A. Boyd (1969, 305 F. Supp. 1032).

Chapter 4.—ARSON

§ 22–401. Definition and penalty.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22–2401, 23–546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Defendant's absence during trial

Where record on appeal from convictions for housebreaking, arson, and malicious destruction of personal property failed to show that defendant's absence during trial, after trial had commenced in his presence, constituted deliberate failure to appear without reason that might bear on court's latitude to have continued trial, case would be remanded for development of such issue including circumstances in which defendant was taken into custody after trial. M. Cureton v. United States (1968, 396 F. 2d 671, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 22).

§ 22–402. Burning one's own property with intent to defraud or injure another.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22–2401, 23–546.

§ 22–403. Malicious burning, destruction, or injury of another's movable property.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Arrest without warrant

Police officer may arrest without a warrant for misdemeanor of destroying private property only when that crime is committed, or attempt is made to commit it, in his presence or view. S. Smith and W. Jeffries v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 247 A. 2d 293).

Officer had probable cause to arrest defendant who had been observed tearing up back seat of automobile which he admitted was not his on charge of destroying private property. Id.

Defendant's absence during trial

Where record on appeal from convictions for housebreaking, arson, and malicious destruction of personal property failed to show that defendant's absence during trial, after trial had commenced in his presence, constituted deliberate failure to appear without reason that might bear on court's latitude to have continued trial, case would be remanded for development of such issue including circumstances in which defendant was taken into custody after trial. M. Cureton v. United States (1968, 396 F. 2d 671, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 22).

Evidence—Sufficiency of

Evidence, including testimony identifying defendant as one of two men attempting to pry open window with crowbar, is sufficient to sustain convictions for attempted second-degree burglary, destroying property and attempted petit larceny. H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

In this case, the court held that testimony as to ownership of damaged vending machine, purportedly based on witness' own knowledge, was not hearsay and was sufficient to prove ownership as alleged in information charging malicious injuring of property and attempted petit larceny. L. Killens v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 44).

Possession by defendant of stolen television set, in alley at rear of store which was broken into and from which television set was taken, within a few minutes after the breaking of window and theft was sufficient evidence from which the trial court could infer breaking of the window, as predicate for conviction for destroying property. F. Green v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 652).

Evidence that fingerprints of defendant appeared on glass surface, which had once been outside surface of drugstore entrance was insufficient to sustain conviction of attempted housebreaking, destroying property, and petit larceny. A. W. Townsley v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 236 A. 2d 63).

Information—Amendment

Where amendment of information charging attempted second-degree burglary, destroying private property, and petit larceny to reflect that property in question belonged to corporation in care and custody of individual, as opposed to individual alone as charged in original information, conformed to testimony at trial and no prejudice was occasioned by the defense, permitting the amendment was not error. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Sentences

Rule of lenity is to be applied, and concurrent sentences imposed for destruction of property and attempted second-degree burglary, since in this case both offenses involved single course of conduct, i.e., prying of window. H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

Consecutive sentences could properly be imposed for attempted second-degree burglary and attempted petit larceny, since it is apparent from facts of case, including use of panel truck, that defendant intended to invade two distinct societal interests. Id.

Statutory provision for two-year mandatory minimum sentence for burglary do not operate to prevent prosecution and sentencing for lesser misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, for which offenses the defendant was actually sentenced for one-half year more than two-year felony minimum. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Action of trial court, taken while appeal was pending, in purportedly granting motion to correct sentence by making one-year sentence for petit larceny and six-month sentence for destroying property run concurrently rather than consecutively was beyond the court's power at that time and order purporting to reduce sentence would be vacated without prejudice to reentry if subsequently deemed appropriate, Id.

In this case the court held that since the District of Columbia Code expressly limits maximum prison sentence for attempted burglary to one year and crimes of attempted second-degree burglary and malicious destruction of property are offenses against same societal interest and since there was nothing to show that offenses were animated by different criminal intents, defendant's convictions for attempted second-degree burglary and for malicious destruction of property with respective consecutive sentences of one year and six months are not appropriate case for cumulative punishment and case would be remanded for resentencing. M. A. Johnson, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 265 A. 2d 780).

Under the facts of this case where defendant's true crime was burglary in the second degree, a felony carrying a mandatory minimum sentence of two years, and prosecution reduced felony to the three separate misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, trial judge did not abuse discretion in imposing two consecutive one-year sentences and one concurrent one-year sentence following defendant's conviction on all three separate misdemeanors. R. M. Weeks v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 907).

Chapter 5.—ASSAULT—MAYHEM—THREAT OF BODILY HARM

§ 22–501. Assault with intent to kill, rob, rape, or poison.

Every person convicted of any assault with intent to kill or to commit rape, or to commit robbery, or mingling poison with food, drink, or medicine with intent to kill, or wilfully poisoning any well, spring, or cistern of water, shall be sentenced to imprisonment for not less than two years or more than fifteen years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 803; Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, § 601, title VI, 81 Stat. 736.)

AMENDMENT

1967—Section 601, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, amended section by inserting after "for not" the words "less than two years or".

Section 1101, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, provided:

Whoever, prior to the date of enactment of this Act [Pub. L. 90–226] commits any act or engages in any conduct which constitutes an offense under provision of law amended by this Act, [Amendments of sections, 4–140, 15–714, 15–716, 22–501, 22–703, 22–1513, 22–1801, 22–2001, 22–2901, 22–3105, 22–3201, 22–3202, 23–610, 23–901, 23–903, 24–301 and enactments of sections 4–140a, 4–150a and 22–1122, and amendments of 18 U.S.C. 4122, 5024 and 5025] shall be sentenced in accordance with the law in effect on the date he commits such acts or engages in such conduct.

SEPARABILITY OF PROVISIONS

Section 1102, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, provided:

If any provision of or any amendment made by this Act [Pub. L. 90–226; for provisions and amendments made by this Act, see enumeration in note above under heading, "Sentence for offenses committed prior to Dec. 27, 1967."] or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the other provisions of or other amendments made by this Act and the application of such provisions and amendments to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 11–502, 24–203.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Admissibility of prior convictions

Permitting introduction of theft conviction and attempted larceny by trick conviction as to defendant who had been convicted on some 7 prior occasions and permitting introduction of evidence of narcotics conviction as to defendant who acknowledged some 17 earlier convictions was not error in prosecution in which both defendants elected not to testify. C. W. Payne and H. Blue v. United States (1968, 392 F. 2d 820, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Corroboration

In prosecution for assault with intent to commit rape, complainant's dress with torn shoulder strap offered enough independent corroboration of complainant's account to avoid requirement that verdict be directed for defendant. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

Without corroboration of testimony of eleven-year-old prosecutrix as to defendant's alleged attempts to kiss prosecutrix, his exposure of himself and his attempts to remove her clothing, corpus delicti of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge was not established. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Elements of assault

The essential elements of an assault with intent to commit rape, each of which government must prove beyond reasonable doubt, are: (1) that defendant made an assault upon complainant; (2) that he did so with specific intent to have intercourse with the complainant; and (3) that he intended to achieve penetration of complainant's sexual organ against her will and by using such force or threat of force as might be necessary to overcome resistance or make further resistance useless. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

Absent an element of intended force, an assault with intent to have sexual intercourse is not an assault with intent to commit rape. Id.

The material elements of an assault with intent to commit rape are an assault, an intent to have carnal knowledge of a female, and a purpose to carry into effect this intent with force and against consent of the female unless intended victim is child under age of 16, in which case intent to use force need not be alleged or proved. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence in this case, including evidence of defendant's in-trial identification and testimonial references to pretrial forerunners, sustained conviction for robbery and assault with dangerous weapon. United States v. T. McNair (1970, 433 F. 2d 1132 — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Testimony that defendant carried a gun while walking over to victim, that he fired at victim and hit her while she was in front of her residence, and that he left without rendering any aid justified denial of motions for acquittal on charge of assault with intent to kill made at end of government's case and after all of the evidence; and this testimony together with testimony that defendant stated almost simultaneously with firing of the gun that he would kill victim was sufficient for jury to find beyond reasonable doubt that defendant was guilty of assault with intent to kill. United States v. W. Bridges (1970, 432 F. 2d 692. — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In this case the court held that the identification testimony of victim and chief prosecution witness was sufficient to sustain conviction of assault with intent to kill and convictions of assault with a deadly weapon. R. M. Allen and W. D. Caldwell v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 223, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 381).

Testimony of complainant, in combination with other evidence, was sufficient to warrant submission of assault with intent to commit rape case to jury. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

In a prosecution for assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge, the evidence sufficiently corroborated complainant's testimony that such offense had been committed. United States v. T. Terry (1970, 422 F. 2d 704, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 267).

In a prosecution for assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge, the evidence sufficiently corroborated identification testimony of complainant. Id.

In this case, the evidence was sufficient to support juvenile court's finding that juvenile participated as an aider and abettor in assault with intent to commit robbery on a school teacher. In the matter of Reeder (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 893).

Former jeopardy protection

A jury which was specifically prohibited from considering a charge of taking indecent liberties with minor child if defendant were to be found guilty of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge, and defendant was found guilty of the latter charge, its verdict of not guilty of the former charge was a nullity and did not clothe defendant with former jeopardy protection or preclude reviewing court from directing entry of judgment of guilty on indecent liberties charge upon finding that evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction for assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Identification

In a prosecution under this section for assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge, trial court did not err in ruling that two impermissible identifications of defendant by complainant did not preclude complainant from making independent in-court identification based upon her observation of attacker at time of assault, since complainant was in close proximity to attacker for about 15 minutes on public street in broad daylight and in well-lighted room and since complainant gave police consistent description of attacker and had not wavered in her identification at any stage of proceeding. United States v. T. Terry (1970, 422 F. 2d 704, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 267).

Instructions

In prosecution for assault with intent to commit rape, where independent corroboration evidence was minimal rather than strong, plain error in failing to instruct jury on its responsibility to determine whether there was corroborative evidence, which it credited, of all elements of the offense was prejudicial, and required reversal. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

Where conviction for assault with intent to commit rape must be reversed for failure to instruct on need for corroboration of testimony of victim on elements of offense, trial court correctly instructed jury on elements of assault, and evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for assault, it was in interest of justice to avoid automatic requirement of new trial because of erroneous charge, and case would be remanded to district court with instructions either to grant new trial, or if prosecutor consented and court considered it in interest of justice, to enter judgment of assault. Id.

The phrase "specific intent to have sexual intercourse" in instruction on essential elements of assault with intent to commit rape was sufficiently meaningful to jury to avoid condemnation as plain error; the term without the word "specific" was clear enough, and addition of "specific" connoted a requirement of definiteness of intention which was the essence of the matter. Id.

Defendant was convicted of an assault on a female under age of 16 with intent to commit carnal knowledge and with taking immoral, improper and indecent liberties with a female under age of 16, in violation of Miller

Act, and the court should have given requested instruction that jury should consider count based on Miller Act only if they acquitted on the other count and, although failure to so instruct did not impair verdict under Miller Act, conviction for other offense must be set aside. H. C. Dozier v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 482, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Failure of court to instruct on simple assault as less offense under count charging taking immoral, improper, and indecent liberties with female under age of 16 furnished no basis for reversal, as jury was instructed on simple assault as less offense under count charging assault on female under age of 16 with intent to commit carnal knowledge. Id.

Intent

There is no intent to commit rape on the part of a defendant who intends to use the kind of "force" that is enough in his mind to test existence or persistence of complainant's true intentions, but not enough to achieve sexual intercourse if she "really" rejects him. There is no intent to commit rape. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

A defendant who handles a lady vigorously and with some force (against her will) is guilty of an indecent assault; but he does not have an intent to commit rape if his actions are taken in hope or expectation of thereby awakening desire, and with further intention of desisting if his approach does not arouse desire or lead to acquiescence, but rather encounters continued resistance. Id.

Where a defendant is charged with assault with intent to commit rape, intent may be inferred from his conduct. H. E. Higgins v. United States (1968, 401 F. 2d 396, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 331).

Judge's comments

Since defendant referred to the merits, on allocution, as a reason for clemency, judge's comment that prosecution witness testified he had seen defendant at scene of assault and comment, after defendant related that he had presented three witnesses, and that judge had a feeling some witnesses had been threatened, were at most a reference to the judge's view of credibility as an explanation of refusal to accord clemency and did not establish that the judge was referring to possibility of threats as additional offense heightening sentence. R. M. Allen and W. D. Caldwell v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 223, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 381).

Jury trial—waiver

In this case the court held that, on the record of appeal from conviction for assault with intent to kill and assault with dangerous weapon, the waiver of a jury trial was not shown to be involuntary. However, the passive nature of role played by trial court in inquiry as to defendant's understanding was subject to criticism on appeal. United States v. S. L. Straite (1970, 425 F. 2d 594, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Lesser included offense

The crime of assault is a lesser included offense under assault with intent to commit rape. United States v. M. J. Bryant (1969, 420 F. 2d 1327, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

The crime of taking indecent liberties is a lesser included offense of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Motion for judgment of acquittal

To withstand a motion for judgment of acquittal of charge of assault with intent to have carnal knowledge, evidence need not exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than intent to have intercourse. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Review

Issues as to whether trial court erred in permitting prosecutor to impeach defendant with cross-examination respecting prior conviction of assault and in permitting prosecutor to impeach defense witness with cross-examination respecting her chastity would not be noticed for the first time on appeal from conviction for assault with intent to commit robbery. C. E. Green v. United States (1968, 397 F. 2d 643, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 82).

Reviewing court's authority

Where evidence does not sustain conviction of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge but was sufficient to establish all elements of taking indecent liberties with minor child, reviewing court in remanding with directions to enter judgment of guilty of taking indecent liberties would accord permission to trial judge to grant new trial if he should deem it to be in the best interest of justice. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Sentence

Facts of this case, in which defendant convicted of assault with intent to kill and two counts of assault with dangerous weapon received general sentence of 5 to 15 years, which was maximum permitted for assault with intent to kill, but more than maximum limits in respect to other two counts of indictment, presented especially appealing case for careful and precise sentencing, and, though conviction is affirmed, sentence will be vacated and case remanded for resentencing. United States v. S. L. Straite (1970, 425 F.2d 594, —U.S. App. D.C.—).

§ 22–502. Assault with intent to commit mayhem or with dangerous weapon.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

The decision of the trial court, rendered after hearing on admissibility, that 1959 conviction of one defendant for housebreaking and larceny and 1962 conviction of another defendant for attempted housebreaking could be brought out on cross-examination in robbery prosecution unless either defendant could satisfy court that since conviction he had led legally blameless life, was not an abuse of discretion. United States v. J. L. Bailey et ano. (1970, 426 F. 2d 1236, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In a case where a juvenile had killed his father, and several witnesses had testified to juvenile's fear of his father, exclusion of testimony of juvenile's probation officer, that the juvenile had come to the officer several days before the shooting in order to seek his advice concerning the violent outbreaks of the father and that the officer had told the juvenile to contact police whenever such outbreaks occurred, was not an abuse of discretion and was not prejudicial since proffered evidence was cumulative and more remote than the evidence already admitted which dealt with juvenile's state of mind on the day in question. In the Matter of M. Bumphus, Jr. (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 400).

Trial court did not abuse its discretion when it concluded that alleged molesting of defendant's son one month prior to charged assault was too attenuated to warrant reception in evidence, in prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon. T. M. Harley v. United States (1967, 377 F. 2d 172, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 287).

Bifurcated trial

Refusal of trial court to grant bifurcated trial, sought on ground that defendant would defend on ground of want of criminal responsibility, was not reversible error where defense assured trial court that there was no defense on merits, and evidence to prove that defendant was one who robbed filling station was very strong. United States v. R. A. Grimes (1969, 421 F. 2d 1119, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 184).

Consecutive sentences

It is proper to increase punishment where there have been convictions under the conventional robbery statute and under statute prohibiting assaults with a dangerous weapon by imposing consecutive sentences. United States v. J. L. Suggs and C. Blair (1967, 269 F. Supp. 732).

Defendant, who allegedly committed crime of assault with a dangerous weapon in parking lot of store or near door to store, and who allegedly committed a robbery in office of store could be given consecutive sentences upon being convicted for both crimes. Id.

Double jeopardy

In this case the court held that the record established that defendant, whose counsel never thought of nor discussed with him the possibility of a plea of double jeopardy in connection with prosecution for assault after defendant had been sentenced for contempt for having thrown ice-filled water pitcher at prosecuting attorney, did not deliberately abandon known right or privilege. United States v. R. Rollerson (1970, 308 F. Supp. 1014).

Fact that defendant had been sentenced for contempt for having thrown ice-filled bucket at prosecuting attorney did not preclude subsequent prosecution on counts charging assault with a deadly weapon and assault on Assistant United States Attorney engaged in performance of his duties. Id.

Defendant who during his trial for robbery threw water pitcher filled with ice at assistant United States attorney and who was sentenced to one year for contempt and who was thereafter convicted and sentenced for assault could not assert double jeopardy on his motion to vacate, set aside or correct assault sentence, where every fact necessary to formulation of double jeopardy claim was known prior to trial for criminal assault. R. Rollerson v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1078, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 10; remanded 394 U.S. 575, 89 S. Ct. 1300, see also 308 F. Supp. 1014).

Evidence—Sufficiency

In this case there was adequate evidence to support convictions of assault and carrying a dangerous weapon. United States v. L. White (1970, 429 F. 2d 711, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

That the weapon allegedly used by defendant in holding up complaining witness was not recovered and put in evidence at trial did not raise a reasonable doubt as a matter of law as to defendant's guilt of assault with dangerous weapon. United States v. J. Curtis (1970, 427 F. 2d 630, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

From the visual evidence presented in this case, and particularly a demonstration in which the prosecutor assisted by standing on a courtroom table to simulate defendant's position on a ledge above assault victim, it was possible with great accuracy to determine projectory of bullet and hence to furnish a basis from which court and jury could conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant fired bullet that hit victim, that defendant had a dangerous weapon in his possession at time victim was shot and that defendant fired shot from a pistol; thus, the court held that the evidence, though visual, was sufficient to sustain defendant's conviction of assault with a dangerous weapon. H. Skinner v. United States (1970, 425 F.2d 552, —U.S. App. D.C.—).

In this case the court held that the identification testimony of victim and chief prosecution witness was sufficient to sustain conviction of assault with intent to kill and convictions of assault with a deadly weapon. R. M. Allen and W. D. Caldwell v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 223, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 381).

In this case in light of the evidence on issue of whether offense was product of mental illness, conviction for robbery of property belonging to United States, assault with a dangerous weapon and carrying dangerous weapon would be affirmed. T. H. Adams v. United States (1969, 413 F. 2d 411, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 137).

Impeachment

Cross-examination of defendant during which the prosecution was permitted to develop that for some time prior to date of offense defendant had been absent from his military post without leave was improper, and the prejudice was magnified by the erroneous admission of government's rebuttal evidence as to defendant's absence from military post. United States v. W. A. Shumate et ano (1970, 429 F. 2d 777, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Intent to commit other crime

There is no statutory requirement for either robbery or assault with a dangerous weapon, that there be a specific intent to commit the other. United States v. J. L. Suggs and C. Blair (1967, 269 F. Supp. 732).

Judge's comments

Since defendant referred to the merits, on allocution, as a reason for clemency, judge's comment that prosecution witness testified he had seen defendant at scene of assault and comment, after defendant related that he had presented three witnesses, and that judge had a feeling some witnesses had been threatened, were at most a reference to the judge's view of credibility as an explanation of refusal to accord clemency and did not establish that the judge was referring to possibility of threats as additional offense heightening sentence. R. M. Allen and W. D. Caldwell v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 223, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 381).

Jury trial—waiver

In this case the court held that, on the record of appeal from conviction for assault with intent to kill and assault with dangerous weapon, the waiver of a jury trial was not shown to be involuntary. However, the passive nature of role played by trial court in inquiry as to defendant's understanding was subject to criticism on appeal. United States v. S. L. Straite (1970, 425 F. 2d 594, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

One man showup

Where an intruder broke into the apartment of two women, and shortly thereafter was arrested as a suspect, and about 30 minutes after the attack the women were asked to come down to the street in front of their apartment and view defendant who was the sole occupant of patrol wagon, use of "one-man showup" did not deny defendant due process of law. G. W. Bates v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1104, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 36).

Photographic identification

In a prosecution for robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon, where robbery victim on morning after robbery was shown 15 photographs depicting males of various ages, including one photograph of defendant that was not highlighted so as to prompt its selection and victim identified defendant's photograph, which was sixth photograph shown to him, as that of robber and remained firm in such identification after examining remaining photographs, such identification did not deny due process and did not vitiate subsequent in-court identification. United States v. E. L. Hamilton (1969, 420 F. 2d 1292, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 89).

Prejudicial error

In this case, assuming that failure of the trial judge to inform defendant's counsel of larceny charge before he summed up constituted error, where defendant was indicted for robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, however, that failure lacked the prejudice necessary to constitute reversible error where, inter alia, defendant's admission in open court established his intention and his attempt to trick complainants, so that damage was done when defendant took the stand and it was not likely that a variation in summation would have changed the verdict. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 1116, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Question for Jury

In prosecution for robbery and assault with dangerous weapon, whether the defendant was one of holdup men in robbery of shoe store was question for jury. United States v. J. E. York (1969, 426 F. 2d 1191, —U.S. App. D.C.—).

Release on personal recognizance

Appellant, who was convicted of robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, and whose appeal presented a substantial claim that he was wrongfully identified, was ordered released on personal recognizance on certain enumerated conditions which were so structured as to allow for a maximum amount of supervision over appellant while still allowing for his freedom from incarceration. W. Banks v. United States (1969, 414 F. 2d 1150, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

Remand

Since counsel for defendant, convicted of robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon, was not appointed until almost one year after offense, counsel was appointed slightly more than one month before trial, although counsel's failure to appear on date case was first set was allegedly due to misunderstanding case was not removed from ready calendar, and it was alleged that counsel had inadequate time in which to obtain specified physical evidence and interview specified witnesses, reviewing court remanded case to trial court for determination whether new trial should be granted on ground of ineffective assistance of counsel. United States v. W. D. Weaver (1970, 422 F. 2d 711, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 274).

Sentence

Facts of this case, in which defendant convicted of assault with intent to kill and two counts of assault with dangerous weapon received general sentence of 5 to 15 years, which was maximum permitted for assault with intent to kill, but more than maximum limits in respect to other two counts of indictment, presented especially appealing case for careful and precise sentencing, and, though conviction is affirmed, sentence will be vacated and case remanded for resentencing. United States v. S. L. Straite (1970, 425 F. 2d 594, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Sufficiency of record on appeal

Record showed a preponderance of competent evidence to sustain conviction of juvenile of manslaughter and assault with a deadly weapon, and decision of juvenile court that juvenile was within its jurisdiction and should be committed to custody of Department of Public Welfare for indeterminate period was proper. In the Matter of M. Bumphus, Jr. (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 400).

§ 22–504. Assault or threatened assault in a menacing manner.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23–581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appeal and error

Court of Appeals, on appeal from conviction for disorderly conduct and simple assault, was reluctant to determine whether police department form containing information as to time, place and date of offense, name of complainant, names and addresses of witnesses, and description of details of offense was produceable under Jencks Act but would give trial court opportunity in first instance to decide issue of produceability under established guidelines. C. Duncan, Jr. v. United States and District of Columbia (1967, 379 F. 2d 148, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 371).

If trial court, in determining issue of produceability of police report form under Jencks Act, found that statement should have been made available, error in failing to require production of statement would not be harmless and would require new trial on charges of disorderly conduct and simple assault. Id.

Applicability of Jencks rule

Jencks rule of evidence applies in District of Columbia Court of General Sessions whether case is prosecuted by District of Columbia or by United States. C. Duncan, Jr. v. United States and District of Columbia (1967, 379 F. 2d 148, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 371).

Assistance of counsel

The record did not sustain the claim of ineffective assistance of counsel who was a defense attorney with many years of experience and who presented all substantial defenses, made appropriate motions and objections, attempted to suppress the evidence on the charge of unlawful possession of a pistol after conviction of a felony, and was able to obtain acquittal on a charge of threats to do bodily harm and directed verdict in defendant's favor on a charge of assault by threatening in a menacing manner. I. Gressette v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 418).

In this case the record did not show that defendant's trial counsel who declined to cross-examine either complainant or arresting officer ineffectively assisted defendant who himself testified and denied assault. J. J. Scott v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 353).

Cause for arrest

Where a police officer had a conversation with the victim of an assault and petit larceny and proceeded in patrol car in search of the assailants, and the stolen articles were in plain view of officer in defendant's hand and at his feet in the gutter, an arrest was authorized when the officer saw the stolen articles. R. L. Thompkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 636).

Where in making an initial stop of the defendant, the officer was engaged in routine on-the-street investigation in nearby area of a crime minutes after it occurred in an early hour of the morning in his effort to find perpetrator while the trail was still warm, and under these circumstances the initial stop of defendant was neither an arrest nor an arbitrary detention, but arrest occurred after officer saw the articles which fit description of stolen property, which gave sufficient cause to arrest, and seizure was not invalid. Id.

Collateral attack on judgment

Bringing of motion for trial court to exercise its inherent power to vacate a sentence and to resentence defendant, thereby restoring him to status of one upon whom sentence has just been passed and who is allowed ten days thereafter in which to note his appeals is the correct procedure for the initiation of a collateral attack upon a judgment or sentence. G. A. Hines v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 827).

Consecutive sentences for two separate offenses

The distinctions that assault and petit larceny are separate and distinct offenses requiring different elements of proof, and that one is a crime of general intent against the person, and the other a crime of specific intent against property, are no longer conclusive in determining the legality of consecutive sentences for two crimes committed in a single course of conduct. G. Mahoney v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 684).

The compelling reasons which call for the application of the rule of lenity are absent in this case, and there is no substantial doubt Congress would have intended, in the discretion of the court, that consecutive punishment be imposed for historically separate offenses, against different societal interests, for which it has provided separate deterrents. Id.

Continuance

The granting or refusal of a continuance is largely left to discretion of the trial judge, and his decision will not be disturbed without a clear showing of abuse in the exercise of that discretion. W. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 235 A. 2d 574).

Defense of property

In a prosecution for assault on neighbor who went upon defendant's parking lot to retrieve a pet cat which had escaped from the neighbor's house and had hidden in an air shaft in defendant's building, a charge that, if defendant acted in honest belief under the circumstances that there would be injury to his property by virtue of what took place and he used no more force than was necessary to prevent injury to his property, then he would have right to do what he did was erroneous but was beneficial to complaining defendant. R. R. Shehyn v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 404).

Delay in prosecution

In this case the lapse of time which could be attributed to the government did not justify dismissal of assault informations, though defendant did take the stand to testify that he could not remember the circumstances of his arrest, since his lack of memory was not due to the passage of time but to the fact that he had been drinking prior to the alleged assault, and any delay charged the government could thus have no prejudicial effect on defendant's defense, and there were no other circumstances to support a finding of the trial court of vexatious, oppressive, chicanerous or harassing conduct on the government's part. United States v. E. L. Jefferson (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 225).

Double jeopardy

Judgments were required to be vacated and nolle prosequis entered in cases which had been pending before Court of General Sessions where government's action in entering the nolle prosequis could not be characterized as an abuse of its power, and to allow government to file new informations at a subsequent date would not violate double jeopardy clause of Fifth Amendment. United States v. B. H. Foster (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 164).

Effective assistance of counsel

The court held that, record on appeal from a conviction for petit larceny and assault did not establish denial of effective assistance of counsel. J. Bell, Jr., v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 260 A. 2d 690).

Evidence of assault

Evidence that heavy bag of coins was taken from victim's hand supported a finding of an interference with person of another sufficient to constitute an assault. G. Mahoney v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 684).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence sustained conviction of assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct in violation of District of Columbia Code. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

Identification

Question of identification was one of fact for jury in prosecution for assault and for carrying a deadly weapon. J. J. Durham v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 830).

Inconsistent verdict

In this case, the court held that since there was evidence that defendant not only struck officer with nightstick but also hit him and engaged in general scuffling, finding by jury that defendant was not guilty of charge involving possession of nightstick did not preclude conviction on charge of simple assault. C. T. Matthews v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 826).

Ineffective assistance of counsel

Fact that new counsel was appointed not more than 60 minutes before trial did not amount to ineffective assistance of counsel of defendant charged with simple assault, unlawful entry and petit larceny where no continuance was requested and defendant announced he was ready for trial, factual situation was not so complex as to necessitate any extensive investigation and there were no witnesses for the defense who could have been called, new counsel was experienced and diligent and made no claim that he was hampered by appointment shortly before trial. S. A. Tuttle v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 238 A. 2d 590).

Issue of fact

Whether a defendant, who was charged with assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct in violation of District of Columbia Code, had mental disease which should have excused him from criminal responsibility was issue of ultimate fact for the trier thereof. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

Probation report

Where record clearly showed that court had inquired into defendant's record prior to imposing sentence following conviction for assault and learned that defendant had committed offense while on probation from previous conviction, trial court, which felt that it had all information that was needed for sentencing, did not abuse discretion in failing to order either a preliminary screening or probation report prior to imposing sentence. W. A. Thomas, W. B. Preston and E. C. Singleton v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 155).

Timely notice of appeal

Failure to file timely notice of appeal deprived the District of Columbia Court of Appeals of jurisdiction over a direct appeal. G. A. Hines v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 827).

Weight of evidence

Weight to be given testimony of witnesses who related that the conduct of the defendant at time of alleged assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct, in violation of District of Columbia Code, and shortly thereafter was bizarre and the weight to be given testimony of government witness who related that the defendant was intoxicated at the time of the alleged offenses and that assault was triggered by refusal to serve him beer was for the trier of fact. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

§ 22–505. Assault on member of police force.

(a) Whoever without justifiable and excusable cause, assaults, resists, opposes, impedes, intimidates, or interferes with any officer or member of any police force operating in the District of Columbia, or any officer or employee of any penal or correctional institution of the District of Columbia, or any officer or employee of the government of the District of Columbia charged with the supervision of juveniles being confined pursuant to law in any facility of the District of Columbia, whether such institution or facility is located within the District of Columbia or elsewhere, while engaged in or on account of the performance of his official duties, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years or both. It is neither justifiable nor excusable cause for a person to use force to resist an arrest when such arrest is made by an individual he has reason to believe is a law enforcement officer, whether or not such arrest is lawful.

(b) Whoever in the commission of any such acts uses a deadly or dangerous weapon shall be imprisoned not more than ten years. (R.S., D.C., § 432; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 95, ch. 159, § 205; Oct. 20, 1965, 79 Stat. 1011, Pub. L. 89–277, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 206, title II, 84 Stat. 601.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 206 of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358 amended subsection (a) by adding the following sentence at the end thereof: "It is neither justifiable nor excusable cause for a person to use force to resist an arrest when such arrest is made by an individual he has reason to believe is a law enforcement officer, whether or not such arrest is lawful."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 23–524, 24–203.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Double jeopardy

There was no double jeopardy when a defendant, after having been convicted of disorderly conduct, was prosecuted for assaulting a police officer, notwithstanding fact that both incidents occurred in relatively short span of time and at same place. H. Harris v. United States (1968, 402 F. 2d 205, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 64).

Escape as justified by improper conviction

Attempt to escape and assault on a prison guard was indefensible, and arguments that appellant was not guilty of attempted escape or assault on correctional officer because he had been improperly convicted of attempted burglarly and wrongfully confined at workhouse instead of youth correction center were without merit. United States v. J. H. Haley (1969, 417 F. 2d 625).

Evidence—Admissibility of

Refusal to admit into evidence a docket entry indicating that victim of shooting had been convicted of assault on a police officer was not improper on basis that the entry had relevance as showing victim's propensity for violence and aggressive behavior thus bolstering defendant's claim of self-defense, where the docket entry disclosed only that victim had been convicted under this section making criminal nonviolent obstruction of police officer in performance of his duty as well as assault and physical interference; and the proffer was inadequate to apprise the court of the relevance of the evidence. A. Jones v. United States of America (1967, 385 F. 2d 296, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 36).

Impeachment

In the case, the court held that a prior conviction of attempted housebreaking was properly used for impeachment of defendant charged with unauthorized use of vehicle and assault on police officer. United States v. C. E. White (1970, 427 F. 2d 634, —U.S. App. D.C.—).

Jurisdiction

United States District Court for Eastern District of Virginia had jurisdiction of an assault charge resulting from assault upon a correctional officer at District of Columbia Workhouse at Occoquan, Virginia. United States v. J. H. Haley (1969, 417 F. 2d 625).

Sentence

In this case, the court held that the fact that had defendant, convicted before United States District Court for Eastern District of Virginia of assaulting a guard at District of Columbia Reformatory at Lorton, Virginia, been sentenced under District of Columbia law rather than under general federal law he might have received benefit of more liberal treatment after sentencing did not constitute denial of equal protection or due process since there is no essential difference between sentencing alternatives. United States v. T. Horton (1970, 423 F. 2d 474.)

§ 22–507. Threats to do bodily harm.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Assistance of counsel

The record did not sustain the claim of ineffective assistance of counsel who was a defense attorney with many years of experience and who presented all substantial defenses, made appropriate motions and objections, attempted to suppress the evidence on the charge of unlawful possession of a pistol after conviction of a felony, and was able to obtain acquittal on a charge of threats to do bodily harm and directed verdict in defendant's favor on a charge of assault by threatening in a menacing manner. I. Gressette v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 418).

Collateral attack on judgment

Bringing of motion for trial court to exercise its inherent power to vacate a sentence and to resentence defendant, thereby restoring him to status of one upon whom sentence has just been passed and who is allowed ten days thereafter in which to note his appeals is the correct procedure for the initiation of a collateral attack upon a judgment or sentence. G. A. Hines v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 827).

Evidence—admissibility

The trial court properly refused to allow defendant to testify to events occurring after date of the offense, since defendant made no proffer of excluded testimony other than that he wished "to cast disparity on the elements of the offense," and testimony concerning wife's conduct at a later time would not shed light on whether or not offense was committed and testimony concerning defendant's conduct after offense would have been merely self-serving. P. F. Wilson v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 261 A. 2d 513).

Timely notice of appeal

Failure to file timely notice of appeal deprived the District of Columbia Court of Appeals of jurisdiction over a direct appeal. G. A. Hines v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 827).

Chapter 7.—BRIBERY—OBSTRUCTING JUSTICE

§ 22–702. Offering or receiving money, property, or valuable consideration to procure office or promotion from District of Columbia Commissioners.

Every person who directly or indirectly takes, receives, or agrees to receive any money, property, or other valuable consideration whatever from any person for giving, procuring, or aiding to give or procure any office, place, or promotion in office from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, or from any officer under them, and every person who, directly or indirectly, offers to give, or gives any money, property, or other valuable consideration whatever for the procuring or aiding to procure any such office, place, or promotion in office shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or imprisonment in the jail for not more than twelve months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. 591, ch. 1352; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENT

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23–546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Since under reorganization of government of District of Columbia, a single commissioner was assigned executive functions while council was assigned quasi-legislative functions and, under former law, both functions had been exercised by three-member board of commissioners, 1 U.S.C. 1 providing that, in determining meaning of act, words imparting plural include singular is not applicable to permit prosecution under section 22–702 prohibiting receiving money for procuring any office or promotion from the commissioners of District of Columbia. United States v. T. W. Bishton (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 139).

Since there was not a single commissioner of District of Columbia as provided by government reorganization when section 22–702 was drafted prohibiting receiving money for procuring any office or promotion from commissioners of District of Columbia, defendant cannot be prosecuted under section 22–702 which had not been amended to conform to change to single commissioner by the reorganization. Id.

§ 22–703. Obstructing justice.

(a) Whoever corruptly, by threats or force, endeavors to influence, intimidate, or impede any juror, witness, or officer in any court in the District in the discharge of his duties, or, by threats or force, in any other way obstructs or impedes or endeavors to obstruct or impede the due administration of justice therein, or whoever willfully endeavors by means of bribery, misrepresentation, intimidation, or force or threats of force, to obstruct, delay, or prevent the communication to an investigator of the District of Columbia government by any person of information relating to a violation of any criminal statute in effect in the District of Columbia, or injures any person or his property on account of the giving by such person or by any other person of such information to any such investigator in the course of the conduct of any criminal investigation, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or be imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

(b) As used in this section, the term "criminal investigation" means an investigation relating to a violation of any criminal statute in effect in the District of Columbia, and the term "investigator" means an individual duly authorized by the Commissioner or his designated agent to conduct or engage in such an investigation. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 862; Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, § 401, title IV, 81 Stat. 736.)

AMENDMENT

1967—Section 401, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, amended section to read as above set out. For provisions of section prior to this amendment, see main edition of the code.

SENTENCE FOR OFFENSES COMMITTED PRIOR TO DEC. 27, 1967

Section 1101, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, provided: Whoever, prior to the date of enactment of this Act, [Pub. L. 90–226] commits any act or engages in any conduct which constitutes an offense under provision of law amended by this Act, [Amendments of sections, 4–140, 15–714, 15–716, 22–501, 22–703, 22–1513, 22–1801, 22–2001, 22–2901, 22–3105, 22–3201, 22–3202, 23–610, 23–901, 23–903, 24–301 and enactments of sections 4–140a, 4–150a and 22–1122, and amendments of 18 U.S.C. 4122, 5024 and 5025] shall be sentenced in accordance with the law in effect on the date he commits such acts or engages in such conduct.

SEPARABILITY OF PROVISIONS

Section 1102, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, provided: If any provision of or any amendment made by this Act [Pub. L. 90–226; for provisions and amendments made by this Act, see enumeration in note above under heading, "Sentence for offenses committed prior to Dec. 27, 1967."] or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the other provisions of or other amendments made by this Act and the application of such provisions and amendments to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

§ 22–704. Corrupt influence—Officials.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence was sufficient to show a mutual knowledge of a common criminal enterprise. L. Wallace et al. v. United States (1969, 412 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 50).

Recorded evidence—admissibility

Defendant who was charged with conspiracy to violate bribery statute was not in a position to challenge manner in which recordings, which contained admissions by codefendants through use of informer, were obtained. L. Wallace et al. v. United States (1969, 412 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 50).

This section is referred to in sections 22–802, 22–806, 22–807, 22–809, 22–811 to 22–813.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency

In this case the court held the evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction for failing to provide full grown German shepherd dog, which was tied by three-foot chain on open concrete back porch of defendant's home during tempatures ranging from 23 degrees to 27 degrees Fahrenheit, with proper shelter or protection from weather, in absence of testimony by someone experienced in care of dog of this type, not necessarily a veterinarian, that shelter or protection from weather supplied this dog on this occasion would tend to cause dog to suffer. A. F. Jordan, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 848).

Expert testimony

In a prosecution under this section for failing to provide dog with proper shelter or protection from weather, stipulation that the physician who observed the dog was a qualified physician did not have effect of qualifying the physician as expert on care and handling of dogs. A. F. Jordan, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 848).

Findings

A defendant can be convicted of unnecessarily failing to provide a dog with proper food, drink, shelter, or protection from weather without a finding that he inflicted unnecessary cruelty upon the dog. A. F. Jordan, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 848)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Advisory opinions on appeal

Where Court of General Sessions of the District of Columbia granted motion to dismiss disorderly conduct charge on several grounds but subsequently vacated dismissal with respect to jurisdictional ground only and question of prosecutorial authority was certified to Court of Appeals, any action Court of Appeals might take on certified question could not alter dismissal of charges and hence certificate was dismissed. District of Columbia v. M. S. Barry et al. (1967, 387 F. 2d 860, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 295).

Appeal and error

Court of Appeals, on appeal from conviction for disorderly conduct and simple assault, was reluctant to determine whether police department form containing information as to time, place and date of offense, name of complainant, names and addresses of witnesses, and description of details of offense was produceable under Jencks Act but would give trial court opportunity in first instance to decide issue of produceability under established guidelines. C. Duncan, Jr. v. United States and District of Columbia (1967, 379 F. 2d 148, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 371).

If trial court, in determining issue of produceability of police report form under Jencks Act, found that statement should have been made available, error in failing to require production of statement would not be harmless and would require new trial on charges of disorderly conduct and simple assault. Id.

Applicability of Jencks rule

Jencks rule of evidence applies in District of Columbia Court of General Sessions whether case is prosecuted by District of Columbia or by United States. C. Duncan, Jr. v. United States and District of Columbia (1967, 379 F. 2d 148, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 371).

Arrest, validity of Arrest of defendant for use toward officer of abusive, insulting, obscene language in protest against direction that he and a group of others on sidewalk move on was valid. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 60; rev'd, remanded and dismissed 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

Congregating and assembling

Defendant could not have been convicted of engaging in loud and boisterous talking and other disorderly conduct since requisite element of congregating and assembling was neither charged nor proved. W. R. Franklin v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 677).

Defendant could not have been convicted of fighting in street since proof was that incident occurred inside police station. Id.

The "Congregate and assemble" provision of this section requires presence of three or more persons acting in concert for an unlawful purpose. A. Kinoy v. District of Columbia (1968, 400 F. 2d 761, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 290).

Under this section making it illegal for person or persons to congregate and assemble and to engage in loud and boisterous talking or disorderly conduct, a "congregation" requires at least three persons. Id.

Under this section there can be no "unlawful assembly" where only two persons at the most are assembled. Id.

At common law the mere act of assembling was not unlawful, unless it was for an unlawful purpose. Neither is a peaceful assembly unlawful under this section. It does not condemn the mere act of assembling on the street, but prohibits assembling and congregating, coupled with the doing of the forbidden acts. In other words, at common law the assembly must be for an unlawful purpose, and when three or more persons so assembled the offense was complete without the commission of any additional overt criminal act; but here it requires both the assembly and the commission of one of the acts forbidden by the statute to constitute unlawful assembly. Both the assembling and the overt act are essential to make the offense. G. S. Hunter et al. v. District of Columbia (1918, 47 App. D.C. 406).

Construction

This section prohibiting use of profane or obscene language in public would be valid if interpreted to require that language be spoken in circumstances which threaten a breach of the peace. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (1969, 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56; rev'g 227 A. 2d 60).

Corporation Counsel's authority to prosecute

Under statute restricting corporation counsel's authority to cases in which punishment is fine only or imprisonment not to exceed one year, corporation counsel lacked authority to initiate prosecution for disorderly conduct which was punishable by fine of not more than $250 or imprisonment of not more than 90 days, or both. District of Columbia v. Mark Grimes (1968, 404 F. 2d 1337, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 360).

Double jeopardy

There was no double jeopardy when a defendant, after having been convicted of disorderly conduct, was prosecuted for assaulting a police officer, notwithstanding fact that both incidents occurred in relatively short span of time and at same place. H. Harris v. United States (1968 402 F. 2d 205, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 64).

Element of offense

The opinion in a prior case suggested that it was not necessary to a conviction for disorderly conduct that the words used have tended to provoke a breach of the peace, but even assuming that such requirements existed, it was satisfied by showing that defendant had stated to police officers "You m____r f____s keep out of this" since words uttered were indecent, obscene and patently offensive "fighting words" whose very use not only inflicted injury but tended to provoke an immediate breach of peace. W. R. Franklin v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 677).

Consequential or probable breach of the peace is not an element of offense under statute making it unlawful to curse, swear, or use profane language or indecent or obscene words in any public way. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 60; rev'd, remanded and dismissed 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

Dismissal of charge under general disorderly conduct statute removed need for finding that breach of the peace was threatened by offensive language of defendant, who was also charged with use of profane language or indecent or obscene words on public sidewalk. Id.

Evidence—Admissibility

Where evidence had been admitted that a telephone line identifier had been connected to defendant's telephone, testimony of a security officer of telephone company that the records of the company showed that the number from which harassing calls to complainant originated was private listing registered to the defendant was merely cumulative and its admission, if error, was harmless, on a charge of disorderly conduct consisting of making harassing telephone calls to the home of complainant. J. Coleman v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 250 A. 2d 555).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence sustained conviction of assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct in violation of District of Columbia Code. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

Evidence supported conviction of defendant for using profane language, indecent and obscene words, on public sidewalk. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 60; rev'd, remanded and dismissed 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

—— Suppression

In this case, the court held that the trial judge did not err in denying motion to suppress heroin properly seized from defendant, one judge being of the opinion that the defendant was properly "seized" in rapidly moving on-street investigation and discarding of narcotics was not product of illegal police action, and second judge being of the opinion that the officer had probable cause to arrest defendant for disorderly conduct and seizure of heroin was therefore lawful. W. Von Sleichter v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 336).

Information—Sufficiency of

In a case where the information charged a violation of a statute forbidding persons to congregate and assemble on public street and crowd, obstruct, or incommode the free use of the street failed to charge that the act was done under circumstances threatening a breach of peace, it did not charge an offense and conviction on it could not stand. J. P. Adams v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 563).

An information charging defendants with congregating and assembling on a certain avenue, and then and there crowding, obstructing, and incommoding the free use of the sidewalk thereof, contrary to and in violation of this section, is insufficient, though drawn in the language of the statute, because it fails to set out the facts constituting the offense with sufficient clearness to apprise defendants of the charge they are to meet, or to inform the court of their sufficiency to sustain a conviction. G. S. Hunter et al. v. District of Columbia (1918, 47 App. D.C. 406).

Information charging defendant during peace demonstration with disorderly conduct in that she did with intent to provoke breach of peace congregate with others on public street and on grounds of United States Capitol, and did refuse to move, which failed to specify which of several potentially applicable statutes was basis of prosecution, was insufficient. D. Feeley v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 216, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

Defendants, who were arrested after refusing to move out of corridor in House wing of Capitol building when ordered to do so by Capitol police, were entitled to know with certainty offense with which they were charged and possible penalty threatened and were entitled to definite reference to the law which they had allegedly violated, and thus where, notwithstanding request of defense, no one had given citation of statute under which prosecution was being had, other than statement of prosecutor that two sections were involved, convictions under section carrying lighter sentence, as requested by prosecutor, were required to be set aside. D. Smith et al. v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 233, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 275).

Issues of fact

The accuracy of telephone company's procedure in registering harassing telephone calls made to complainant's home was for the trial court, on a charge of disorderly conduct consisting of making harassing telephone calls. J. Coleman v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 250 A. 2d 555).

Whether a defendant, who was charged with assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct in violation of District of Columbia Code, had mental disease which should have excused him from criminal responsibility was issue of ultimate fact for the trier thereof. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

Preservation of community moral standards

The prohibition of and, if required, prosecution for use of obscene and profane language in public may be upheld upon interest of state in preserving community moral standards. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 60; rev'd, remanded and dismissed 419 F. 2d 638, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Unlawful assembly, defined

An attorney representing a client who had been subpoenaed to appear before the House Un-American Activities Committee could not be convicted of a violation of this section for conduct which led to his forceful removal from committee room by order of subcommittee chairman acting alone in violation of committee rules, where attorney could not have been properly charged with assembling and congregating, an essential element of offense, and an attorney representing a client could not come within the definition of unlawful assembly. A. Kinoy v. District of Columbia (1968, 400 F. 2d 761, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 290).

Validity of information

The information in this case charging that defendant used profane language and indecent and obscene words was defective for failure to allege that such conduct threatened breach of peace. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (1969, 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56, rev'g 227 A. 2d 60).

Weight of evidence

Weight to be given testimony of witnesses who related that the conduct of the defendant at time of alleged assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct, in violation of District of Columbia Code, and shortly thereafter was bizarre and the weight to be given testimony of government witness who related that the defendant was intoxicated at the time of alleged offenses and that assault was triggered by refusal to serve him beer was for the trier of fact. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of court's discretion

Denial of defendant's motion to vacate a judgment of conviction on a plea of guilty on the ground that manifest injustice occurred because court appointed same counsel to represent both defendants was not an abuse of discretion under the record. M. E. Lord Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 235 A. 2d 322.)

Admission by defendant

Admission by defendant that he was present in washroom when officer entered eliminated necessity for corroboration of presence of officer and defendant at the time and place of alleged lewd, obscene, and indecent act in the washroom, in case wherein there was testimony of only one witness to the act, namely, the officer. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

Assumption by reviewing court

In view of citation to court of general sessions of decision laying down rule that testimony of a single witness to verbal invitation to sodomy should be received and considered with great caution, in case wherein there was testimony of only one witness to the charged lewd, obscene, and indecent act, reviewing court was required to assume that Court of General Sessions was fully aware of the rules announced in that decision and that the testimony of the witness had been received and considered with great caution. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

Burden of proof

The evidence adduced at habeas corpus proceeding did not support the trial court's finding that petitioner, who had originally been committed under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act, was likely to inflict injury, loss, pain or other evil on others by his sexual misconduct if he were released. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Habeas corpus petitioner who had been committed under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act had the burden to show that his past behavior, examined under the illumination provided by psychiatric evaluation of those actions, did not justify conclusion that he fell within statutory definition of one who was likely to inflict injury on others. Id.

Whether habeas corpus petitioner who was committed under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act should be released on habeas corpus would be determined on likelihood that he would, if released, be dangerous to others because of sexual misconduct. Id.

Petitioner who was confined in hospital pursuant to proceeding under District of Columbia Sexual Psycho-path Act had the burden to show by a preponderance of the evidence that his continued confinement as sexual psychopath was not justified. Id.

Character evidence

Trial court, which expressly commented on evidence of good character of defendant convicted of committing lewd, obscene, and indecent act in department store restroom, had given due consideration to the character evidence. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

Conditions justifying commitment

Predictions of dangerousness which would justify commitment under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act requires determination of type of conduct of which individual may engage; likelihood or probability that he will indulge in that conduct; and effect that such conduct if engaged in will have on others. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

In determining what acts may be considered in applying District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act, court must read "sexual" in common meaning of that term. Id.

Corroboration of single witness

In cases wherein testimony of only one witness to verbal invitation to sodomy is introduced, the trial court should require corroboration of the circumstances surrounding the parties at the time, such as presence at the alleged time and place and similar provable circumstances. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

In cases wherein testimony of only one witness to verbal invitation to sodomy is introduced, evidence of good character is particularly applicable. Id.

Testimony of a single witness to a verbal invitation to sodomy should be received and considered with great caution. Id.

Due Process

Since a proceeding under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act is closely related to behavior of person rather than to his mental condition considered apart from his behavior, constitutional guaranties implicit in due process of law must come into play. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Entrapment

Evidence did not support contention made for first time on appeal from conviction for committing lewd, obscene, and indecent act that defendant had been entrapped. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

Evidence

Failure of the trial court in habeas corpus proceeding to distinguish between petitioner's sexual and nonsexual misconduct as a reason for his commitment under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act and trial court's failure to evaluate the likelihood, as opposed to mere possibility, that petitioner would engage in sexual misconduct if released constituted reversible error. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Evidence in habeas corpus proceeding established that if released, the petitioner, who had been committed under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act, would be unlikely to engage in sexual misconduct other than exhibitionism. Id.

Evidence at habeas corpus proceeding established that likelihood of serious injury to a child who might see the petitioner expose himself in public was too remote to justify commitment under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act. Id.

Evidence at habeas corpus proceeding established that future sexual misconduct of petitioner, if any, was not sufficiently likely to cause kind of harm required by District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act to justify further commitment. Id.

Nonproduction of possible witness

That an unidentified man left washroom immediately prior to arrest of defendant for committing lewd, indecent, and obscene act there and that arresting officer did not detain the man or obtain his name and address did not give rise to presumption that the unidentified man's testimony would not have supported officer's testimony, in absence of solid foundation indicating that unidentified man had witnessed the acts and conduct of defendant. L. D. Reed v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 581).

"Not insane" construed

The words "not insane" as used in District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act means "not mentally ill." M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

When words "not insane" in District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath law is read to mean "not mentally ill" the sole justification for commitment under the act is the patient's dangerousness. Id.

§ 22–1114. Disturbing religious congregation.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Forfeiture of collateral

Forfeitures of collateral security could not be vacated on application made more than 30 days after forfeiture, despite claim that defendants had misunderstood or were misinformed as to date set for trial or were under impression that cases were further continued, where there was no testimony by defendants to this effect and counsel were fully aware of situation. District of Columbia v. H. Evans et al. (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 309).

§ 22–1115. Interference with foreign diplomatic and consular offices, officers, and property.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 22–1116.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

Since this section prohibiting protest demonstration nearer to embassy than 500 feet when protest is directed against foreign government operating embassy had once been held constitutional, and since failure to grant temporary restraining order against enforcement of the section would preclude plaintiffs from protesting in front of embassy but not 500 feet away and that such order would have effect of striking down statute as unconstitutional, the court will not grant such order. Jews for Urban Justice, et al. v. J. W. Wilson (1970, 311 F. Supp. 1158).

The contention that this section making it unlawful to bring into public disrepute any officer of any foreign government within 500 feet of any building used or occupied by foreign government or its representatives for official purposes is unconstitutional is without merit. S. Zaimi v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 261 A. 2d 233).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Appellants contention that the evidence was insufficient to make out prima facie case of bringing into public disrepute any officer of any foreign government, merely because there was no warning to desist before arrest, and because there was no showing that statements were untrue or made with actual malice or that there was threat of breach of peace is not valid, since section under which defendant was convicted does not include those elements. S. Zaimi v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 261 A. 2d 233).

Defendant, who shouted that Shah of Iran had come to Washington to purchase bombs to suppress people of Iran, brought Shah into public disrepute as proscribed by this section. Id.

§ 22–1116. Penalties for interference with foreign diplomatic and consular offices, officers, and property.

The Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction of offenses committed in violation of section 22–1115, and any person convicted of violating any of the provisions of said section shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $100 or by imprisonment not exceeding sixty days, or both: Provided, however, That nothing contained in said section shall be construed to prohibit picketing, as a result of bona fide labor disputes regarding the alteration, repair, or construction of either buildings or premises occupied, for business purposes, wholly or in part, by representatives of foreign governments. (Feb. 15, 1938, 52 Stat. 30, ch. 29, § 2; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENT

§ 22–1117. Flying fire balloons or parachutes forbidden.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to set up or fly any fire balloon or parachute in or upon or over any street, avenue, alley, open space, public enclosure, or square within the limits of the city of Washington, under a penalty of not more than ten dollars for each and every such offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 322, ch. 320, § 4; Feb. 11, 1895, 28 Stat. 650, ch. 79; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 802, title VIII, 84 Stat. 667.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 802 of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358 amended section by striking out "set up or fly any kite, or".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF AMENDMENT

Section 901(b)(2) of Pub. L. 91–358, provided in part: "Title VIII [amending secs. 1–820 and 22–1117] shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act [July 29, 1970]."

§ 22–1119. False alarm of fire—Prosecution.

It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to wilfully or knowingly give a false alarm of fire within the District of Columbia, and any person or persons violating the provisions of this section shall upon conviction, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Prosecutions for violation of the provisions of this section shall be on information filed in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia by the corporation counsel of the District of Columbia or by any of his assistants. (June 8, 1906, 34 Stat. 220, ch. 3055; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENT

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

§ 22–1121. Disorderly conduct—Generally.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 22–109.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Amendment of information

Amendment of information charging that defendant did interfere with person by jostling against such person and by placing hand in proximity of such person's pocket book and handbag by addition of statutory language of intent to provoke breach of peace or under circumstances that breach of peace may be occasioned thereby was not prejudicial to defendant's defense and was properly allowed. K. M. Sams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 244 A. 2d 479).

Construction

The qualifying language of the general disorderly conduct statute—"under circumstances such that a breach of the peace may be occasioned thereby"—need not be read into statute making it unlawful to curse, swear, or make use of profane language or indecent or obscene words in any public way. G. A. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 60; rev'd, remanded and dismissed 419 F. 2d 638, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

Enactments like statute prohibiting cursing, swearing, or using profane language or indecent or obscene words in public ways must contain qualifying language, and the qualifications must be applied within the framework of the clear and present danger test; otherwise they violate First Amendment. Id.

Elements of offense

While one of the elements of offense of disorderly conduct under statute is that the conduct must occur with intent to provoke a breach of the peace or occur under circumstances such that a breach of the peace may be occasioned thereby, it is not necessary in every case for the information to follow the precise language of the statute. District of Columbia v. T. Jordan (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 298).

Evidence—Sufficiency of Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction of disorderly conduct. K. M. Sams v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968. 244 A. 2d 479).

Indictment

Allegation of information charging that defendant was then and there a peeping Tom sufficiently charged that defendant's conduct was under circumstances such that a breach of the peace might be occasioned thereby, and information was not defective on grounds that it did not charge that defendant acted with an intent to provoke a breach of the peace or under circumstances such that a breach of the peace might be occasioned thereby. District of Columbia v. T. Jordan (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 298).

Information—Sufficiency of

Informations charging defendants with jostling which failed to set forth names of the alleged victims was not a fatal omission. K. M. Sams et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 230).

Informations which charged defendants with jostling and failed to allege that jostling was with intent to provoke a breach of peace or under circumstances such that a breach of the peace may be occasioned thereby did not require reversal where no objection to informations on this ground was made, and no showing of prejudice to either defendant was made. Id.

Information charging defendant arrested during peace demonstration with disorderly conduct in that she did with intent to provoke breach of peace congregate with others on public street and on grounds of United States Capitol, and did refuse to move, which failed to specify which of several potentially applicable statutes was basis of prosecution, was insufficient. D. Feeley v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 216, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

Defendants, who were arrested after refusing to move out of corridor in House wing of Capitol building when ordered to do so by Capitol police, were entitled to know with certainty offense with which they were charged and possible penalty threatened and were entitled to definite reference to the law which they had allegedly violated, and thus where, notwithstanding request of defense, no one had given citation of statute under which prosecution was being had, other than statement of prosecutor that two sections were involved, convictions under section carrying lighter sentence, as requested by prosecutor, were required to be set aside. D. Smith et al. v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 233, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 275).

§ 22–1122. Rioting or inciting to riot—Penalties.

(a) A riot in the District of Columbia is a public disturbance involving an assemblage of five or more persons which by tumultuous and violent conduct or the threat thereof creates grave danger of damage or injury to property or persons.

(b) Whoever willfully engages in a riot in the District of Columbia shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or a fine of not more than $1,000, or both.

(c) Whoever willfully incites or urges other persons to engage in a riot shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or a fine of not more than $1,000, or both.

(d) If in the course and as a result of a riot a person suffers serious bodily harm or there is property damage in excess of $5,000, every person who willfully incited or urged others to engage in the riot shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than ten years or a fine of not more than $10,000, or both. (Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, § 901, title IX, 81 Stat. 742.)

CODIFICATION

It appears that section 601 of title VI of Pub. L. 91–358, would have repealed title IX (classified as § 22–1122) of Pub. L. 90–226. Apparently it was the intent to repeal title X of Pub. L. 90–226. To correct this error, Congress enacted section 2(b) of Pub. L. 91–530. The applicable sections read as follows:

PUBLIC LAW 91–358, JULY 29, 1970

TITLE VI—ABOLITION OF COMMISSION ON REVISION OF THE CRIMINAL LAWS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

ABOLITION OF COMMISSION

SEC. 601. Title IX of the Act entitled "An Act relating to crime and criminal procedure in the District of Columbia", approved December 27, 1967 (Public Law 90–226), is repealed.

PUBLIC LAW 91–530, DEC. 7, 1970

Sec. 2(a) * * *

(b)(1) Section 601 of the Act of July 29, 1970 (84 Stat. 667), is amended by striking out "IX" and inserting in lieu thereof "X".

(2) It is the intent of Congress that the amendment made by paragraph (1) of this subsection shall (A) revive title IX of the Act of December 27, 1967 (81 Stat. 742), as of the date of enactment of this Act, and (B) repeal title X of such Act of December 27, 1967 (81 Stat. 742), as of the date of enactment of this Act.

Section 1101, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, provided:

Whoever, prior to the date of enactment of this Act [Pub. L. 90–226], commits any act or engages in any conduct which constitutes an offense under provision of law amended by this Act [Amendments of sections, 4–140, 15–714, 15–716, 22–501, 22–703, 22–1513, 22–1801, 22–2001, 22–2901, 22–3105, 22–3201, 22–3202, 23–610, 23–901, 23–903, 24–301, and enactments of sections 4–140a, 4–150a, and 22–1122, and amendments of 18 U.S.C. 4122, 5024, and 5025], shall be sentenced in accordance with the law in effect on the date he commits such acts or engages in such conduct.

Section 1102, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, provided:

If any provision of or any amendment made by this Act [Pub. L. 90–226; for provisions and amendments made by this Act, see enumeration in note above under heading, "Sentence for offenses committed prior to Dec. 27, 1967."] or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the other provisions of or other amendments made by this Act and the application of such provisions and amendments to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

This section is not unconstitutional as being unduly vague in its employment of words such as "public disturbance," "tumultuous and violent conduct," and "grave danger of damage or injury." United States v. C. Mathews (1969, 419 F. 2d 1177, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

The word "engages" as used in statute prohibiting willfully engaging in a riot was not so vague as to make statute unconstitutional. United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 110).

Where indictments uniformly accused the defendants in other counts with burglary and often larceny as well, which took place at same time and same place, riot statute that was basically concerned with conduct rather than free expression did not unconstitutionally intrude on defendants' First Amendment rights. Id.

A riot statute may limit speech under certain circumstances. Id.

Construction

The court concluded that any person who, on encountering a riot, openly seizes goods he knows to have been looted or accessible to him only by virtue of disturbance will be deemed to have aided, encouraged and furthered the riot and, by so doing, to have engaged in it within meaning of this section. United States v. C. Mathews (1969, 419 F. 2d 1177, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

The public disturbance with which this section deals is undoubtedly compounded of unlawful conduct variously deriving from purposeful destructiveness and foolish greed, and the fact that latter does not offer as ugly a face does not mean that the two do not interact upon each other and make a common, albeit perhaps unequal, contribution to the evil against which the statute is aimed. Id.

Evidence

The defendants need not have been acting in concert in order to be convicted of engaging in a riot and proof as to conduct of each defendant was proof as to other two. United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 119).

Since evidence of a riot includes proof of assemblage, proof of acts of other two defendants would be admissible with respect to acts of any one defendant. Id.

Indictment

A failure to allege an unlawful entry in count charging second-degree burglary amounted to no more than harmless error. United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 110).

Since no indictment for a violation of riot statute had been returned charging engaging in riot alone but rather always that count was coupled with counts charging burglary and grand or petty larceny, the grand jury considered engaging in a riot in violation of statute in conjunction with separate but immediately related criminal conduct and there was no loose, unguided approach to indictments returned by grand jury under riot statute that would deprive defendants of their constitutional rights. Id.

Instructions

The court's refusal to give defendant's requested instruction that jury must acquit him of riot if they believed his testimony that he was not within store being burglarized in riot district was not error, inasmuch as one who knowingly participates in looting phase of a riot can, without constitutional transgression, be comprehended by Congress within those identified by this section as engaging in the proscribed "violent and tumultuous conduct." United States v. C. Mathews (1969, 419 F. 2d 1177, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

Joint trial

By participating in a mob-like action, defendants had made themselves liable to a joint trial on count charging engaging in a riot. United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 119).

Partial acquittal

Although the defendant was acquitted on charge of burglarizing a liquor store in a riot district did not of itself establish that jury accepted defendant's testimony that he did not enter store, thereby making it erroneous for trial court to interpret anti-riot statute as permitting jury to find defendant guilty of engaging in a riot, since, absent an instruction to the effect that jury should acquit defendant of riot count if it accepted his testimony as true, it was impossible to make any assumption as to precisely how jury viewed facts. United States v. C. Mathews (1969, 419 F. 2d 1177, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

§ 22–1201. Embezzlement of property of District of Columbia.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 22–1204.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Impeachment

In this case, the court held that, inasmuch as the defendant's prior convictions of unauthorized use of vehicle and petit larceny were introduced in evidence on his own direct examination in effort to support contention that he was framed with respect to grand larceny charge by one of government's witnesses, he could not successfully complain of alleged error in permitting him to be impeached by prior convictions, notwithstanding decisions stating that the offense of taking property without right does not bear on credibility. United States v. G. W. Lucas (1970, 426 F. 2d 664, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

§ 22–1208. Conversion by commission merchant, consignee, person selling goods on commission, and auctioneers.

If any factor, commission merchant, consignee, or any person selling goods on commission, or the agent clerk, or servant of such person, shall convert to his own use in the District of Columbia any provisions, fruits, flour, meat, butter, cheese, or any other goods, merchandise, or property, or the proceeds of the same, and shall fail to pay over the avails or proceeds less his proper charges, within five days after receiving the money or its equivalent from the purchaser or purchasers of said goods or produce, and after demand made therefor by the person entitled to receive the same, or his or her duly-authorized agent, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon information and conviction in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars or be imprisoned not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. The provisions of this section shall be applicable to all licensed auctioneers, their agents and employees. (Mar. 21, 1892, 27 Stat. 10, ch. 19; July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. 623, ch. 1352, § 7, par. 8; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

§ 22–1211. Taking property without right.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Statute relating to taking and carrying away of another's property without right to do so describes a misdemeanor and can be violated without specific intent, and provides a deterrent to self-help by a winning gambler without rejecting principle that specific intent turns on actor's state of mind, not upon an objective fact. J. W. Richardson v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 574, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

Lesser included offense rule

Lesser included offense rule was properly applied when court instructed jury that the offense of larceny from interstate commerce, for which offense appellant was charged, included the lesser offense of taking property without right, an offense for which appellant was not charged, and, since sentence for taking property without right ran concurrently with sentence for unlawful entry, court need not consider claim of error predicated on the instruction. W. E. Humphrey v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 236 A. 2d 438).

Thief

"Thief" is used generically in vagrancy statute and may be defined as one who takes property of another without knowledge or consent of latter; and a conviction under this section making it a misdemeanor to take and carry away property of another without right to do so rendered convict a "known thief" for purposes of vagrancy statute. Harris v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 132 A. 2d 152; reversed 251 F. 2d 913, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 202).

The word "thief" as used in section 22–3302 does not cover a person who has been guilty only of unauthorized borrowing. Harris v. District of Columbia (1958, 251 F. 2d 913, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 202).

Chapter 13.—FALSE PRETENSES—FALSE PERSONATION

§ 22–1301. False pretenses.

(a) Whoever, by any false pretense, with intent to defraud, obtains from any person any service or anything of value, or procures the execution and delivery of any instrument of writing or conveyance of real or personal property, or the signature of any person, as maker, indorser, or guarantor, to or upon any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, or check, or any other evidence of indebtedness, and whoever fraudulently sells, barters, or disposes of any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, or check, or other evidence of indebtedness, for value, knowing the same to be worthless, or knowing the signature of the maker, indorser, or guarantor thereof to have been obtained by any false pretense, shall, if the value of the property or the sum or value of the money, property, or service so obtained, procured, sold, bartered, or disposed of is $100 or upward, be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than three years; or, if less than that sum, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both.

(b) (1) Whoever obtains, at a hotel, motel, or other establishment which provides lodging to transient guests—

(A) lodging, food, or any other item of value, with intent to defraud the proprietor or manager of such establishment, or

(B) credit by the use of false pretenses, shall, if the unpaid amount of such lodging, food, or other item of value is $100 or more, be guilty of a felony and fined not more than $3,000 or imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than three years, or both; or if such unpaid amount is less than $100, be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

(2) Proof that a person—

(A) obtained lodging, food, any other item of value, or credit, at a hotel, motel, or other establishment which provides lodging to transient guests and failed to pay in full upon demand any amount then due for such credit or item of value, or

(B) departed or removed his baggage from a hotel, motel, or other establishment which provides lodging to transient guests without the express consent of the proprietor or manager of such establishment and without first paying in full any amount due for food, lodging, any other item of value, or credit, shall be prima facie evidence that the acts specified in clause (A) of paragraph (1) were committed with fradulent intent.

(c) Whoever, in the District of Columbia, registers at a hotel, motel, or other establishment which provides lodging to transient guests, under any name or address other than his actual name or address, with intent to defraud the proprietor or manager of such establishment, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than six months, or both. (Mar 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1326, ch. 854, § 842; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329; Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 628, ch. 599; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 99, ch. 159, § 215(e); July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1; Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91–497, § 1, 84 Stat. 1093.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 1 of Act Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91–497, amended section—

(1) by inserting "(a)" immediately before "Whoever";

(2) by inserting "any service or" immediately before "anything of value";

(3) by striking out "value of the money or property" and inserting in lieu thereof "value of the money, property, or service";

(4) by striking out "$200" and inserting in lieu thereof "$1,000";

(5) by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof new subsecs. (b) and (c) to read as above set out. For provisions of section before this amendment, see 1967 edition of the Code.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Direct evidence

Direct evidence by a victim is not necessary to prove the elements of obtaining and reliance as required by this section. D. T. Hymes v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 260 A. 2d 679).

In this case the introduction into evidence of seven purchase receipts for gasoline sales would support inference that gasoline was provided with reliance on validity of the credit card and authorized use thereof and the judgment of conviction was affirmed. Id.

Elements of crime

Elements of false pretenses are false representation, knowledge of falsity, intent to defraud, reliance by defrauded party, and obtaining something of value. R. A. Willgoos v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 635).

Elements of offense

The elements of the crime of false pretenses are a false representation, knowledge of its falsity, an intent to defraud, reliance on the misrepresentation by the defrauded party, and the obtaining of something of value. J. R. Marganella v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 803.)

Evidence

Evidence did not sustain conviction of obtaining hotel lodging under false pretenses, notwithstanding defendant's failure to pay within one week after checking out, in view of showing of defendant's efforts to pay. R. A. Willgoos v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 635).

—— Sufficiency

The evidence sustained conviction for attempted false pretenses involving misuse of a credit card. J. R. Marganella v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 803.)

In prosecution for attempted false pretenses involving misuse of credit card in connection with motel registration, the necessity of producing motel desk clerk was obviated by introduction of motel's records. Id.

Knowledge of falsity

Finding of knowledge of falsity may be based on reasonable inferences from concrete facts in evidence, including conduct of parties to transaction, their utterances, the position occupied by accused, and all circumstances surrounding the transaction. R. A. Willgoos v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 635).

Unauthorized use of credit card

The unauthorized use of a credit card could be a violation of this section provided all elements of false pretenses are proven. D. T. Hymes v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 260 A. 2d 679).

Waiver of trial by jury

In this prosecution for false pretenses where defendant had a right to trial by jury, but neither defendant nor his counsel objected to proceeding to trial without jury, and there was discussion in open court at prior hearing in case concerning a jury trial for defendant and official court entry on information stated "Jury Trial Demand Withdrawn," absence from transcript of any express waiver of defendant's right to jury trial was cured. C. Banks v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 110).

The court held that, in criminal prosecution, where trial is had without jury, trial court is responsible for seeing to it by inquiry of defendant himself that he understands and knowingly and voluntarily waives his right to trial by jury and trial judge must also assure that such waiver is contained in the record as it occurred rather than merely as a rubber stamp entry on back of information. Id.

§ 22–1303. False personation before court, officers, notaries.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Requiring defendant to be sworn as witness

By requiring defendant, prior to trial judge's ruling on extent to which trial judge would permit defendant to be impeached by his past record, to take witness stand and be sworn as a witness before jury, trial judge pre-empted defendant's discretion regarding his decision whether to testify in his own behalf and, therefore, committed prejudicial error. J. H. Jones v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 674).

§ 22–1304. Falsely impersonating public officer or minister.

Whoever falsely represents himself to be a judge of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, notary public, police officer, or other public officer, or a minister qualified to celebrate marriage, and attempts to perform the duty or exercise the authority pertaining to any such office or character, or having been duly appointed to any of such offices shall knowingly attempt to act as any such officers after his appointment or commission has expired or he has been dismissed from such office, shall suffer imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than three years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 860; Feb. 17, 1909, 35 Stat. 623, ch. 134; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENT

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Reversal on grounds of inadequate defense

Conviction for impersonating an officer was reversed and new trial ordered in view of defense's failure to call defendant to stand to rebut government's evidence that badge displayed by defendant who contended that he had exhibited a special police officer badge was not of the type officially issued to special police officers, failure to subpoena an allegedly material witness, presence of hearsay testimony and closeness of case. E. E. Dyer v. United States (1967, 379 F. 2d 89, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 312).

It shall be unlawful for any person in the District of Columbia to falsely represent himself or herself as being an inspector of the health department of said District, or an inspector of any department of the District government; and any person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars for the first offense, and for each subsequent offense by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the jail of the District not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Mar 2, 1897, 29 Stat. 619, ch. 364; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8; 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

AMENDMENT

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

Chapter 14.—FORGERY—FRAUDS

§ 22–1401. Forgery.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appeal and error

In prosecution for forging and uttering department store charge slips, although the trial court charged that falsity was an element of the offense, it erred in refusing to advise jury that proof of lack of authority to sign for another was required to establish falsity; in view of overwhelming evidence, however, the error was harmless. United States v. J. H. Gilbert (1970, 433 F. 2d 1172, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Burden of proof

The Government has the burden of proving all elements of offense of forging and uttering department store charge slips, and there is no obligation on defendant to offer proof of authority to sign name of another. United States v. J. H. Gilbert (1970, 433 F. 2d 1172, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Evidence

Testimony and manner in which it was given, with defendant's acquiescence, in forgery prosecution, supported inference that signatures had not been authorized by person whose signatures they purported to be. W. E. Hough v. United States (1968, 397 F. 2d 708, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 147).

Any error in forgery prosecution in permitting store manager to testify to policy store had adopted in effort to catch people who had been stealing money orders and checks was harmless in light of all evidence. Id.

Instructions

Whether lack of authority to sign name of another is considered separate element of offense of forgery and uttering department store charge slips or part of element of falsity, the jury must be advised that without proof of lack of authority, the prosecution may not succeed. United States v. J. H. Gilbert (1970, 433 F. 2d 1172, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

§ 22–1405. Taking away or concealing writings.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Copies of former wills

The court held that it is the clear import of existing statutes, that copies of former wills, whether executed or unexecuted, must be made available to the court under threat of criminal penalty. C. H. Doherty, Sr., et al. v. V. Fairall, et al. (1969, 413 F. 2d 381, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 107).

§ 22–1408. Manufacture, sale, offer for sale, possession of slugs or device to operate coin-controlled mechanism.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 22–1409.

§ 22–1410. Making, drawing, or uttering check, draft, or order with intent to defraud—Proof of intent—"Credit" defined.

Any person within the District of Columbia who, with intent to defraud, shall make, draw, utter, or deliver any check, draft, order, or other instrument for the payment of money upon any bank or other depository, knowing at the time of such making, drawing, uttering, or delivering that the maker or drawer has not sufficient funds in or credit with such bank or other depository for the payment of such check, draft, order, or other instrument in full upon its presentation, shall, if the amount of such check, draft, order, or other instrument is $100 or more, be guilty of a felony and fined not more than $3,000 or imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than three years, or both; or if the amount of such check, draft, order, or other instrument is less than $100, be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. As against the maker or drawer thereof the making, drawing, uttering, or delivering by such maker or drawer of a check, draft, order, or other instrument, payment of which is refused by the drawee because of insufficient funds of the maker or drawer in its possession or control, shall be prima facie evidence of the intent to defraud and of knowledge of insufficient funds in or credit with such bank or other depository, provided such maker or drawer shall not have paid the holder thereof the amount due thereon, together with the amount of protest fees, if any, within five days after receiving notice in person, or writing, that such check, draft, order, or other instrument has not been paid. The word "credit," as used herein, shall be construed to mean arrangement or understanding, express or implied, with the bank or other depository for the payment of such check, draft, order, or other instrument. (July 1, 1922, 42 Stat. 820, ch. 273; Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91–497, § 3, 84 Stat. 1094.)

AMENDMENT

(1) by striking out "or order" in each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "order, or other instrument";

(2) by striking out "shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for not more than one year or fined not more than $1,000, or both." and inserting in lieu thereof "shall, if the amount of such check, draft, order, or other instrument is $100 or more, be guilty of a felony and fined not more than $3,000 or imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than three years, or both; or if the amount of such check, draft, order, or other instrument is less than $100, be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.";

(3) by inserting, in the second sentence, after "notice in person, or writing, that such" the following: "check,".

Chapter 15.—GAMBLING

§ 22–1501. Lotteries—Promotion—Sale or possession of tickets.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22–1502, 22–1505, 23–546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Admissibility

Even if documents which the defendant, charged with violation of lottery laws, sought to introduce into evidence showed that others were engaging in activities which the defendant considered to be lotteries uncondemned by law, the offer was insufficient to show statutory discrimination in violation of statute and court properly refused to admit same. J. S. Washington v. United States (1968, 401 F. 2d 915, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 374).

Possession of tickets

Possession of number slips is prima facie evidence of possessor's involvement in an illegal lottery. $1,407.00 in United States Currency, et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 217).

Prima facie evidence

The appellant's possession of numbers paraphernalia on premises was prima facie evidence of her participation in illegal lottery. $3,265.28 in United States Currency, et al. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 516).

§ 22–1502. Possession of lottery or policy tickets.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Condemnation and forfeiture

Condemnation and forfeiture of moneys seized from defendant's person at time of his arrest was warranted by evidence, including evidence that defendant attempted to conceal the money from the arresting officers and that, although he claimed that moneys seized represented savings which he intended to use to purchase a business, he was admittedly unfamiliar with business which he claimed to be planning to purchase, the person from whom he expected to make the purchase and the terms of the purchase. $1,407.00 in United States Currency, et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 217).

Court's failure to rule on admissibility of evidence

In a case where there was considerable oral testimony from arresting officers that number slips were found in the front bedroom occupied by defendant, trial court's failure to rule on government's exhibits consisting of seized number slips and other documents in bedrooms and hallway of house occupied by defendant prior to beginning of defendant's case, although constituting error, was not prejudicial because of defendant's failure to bring the matter to court's attention and obtain a ruling. L. Harris v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 726).

To prove defendant's possession of number slips it is not essential that the slips be received in evidence. Id.

Evidence—Admissibility

Since the police officers had what they believed was credible information that defendant who fit description given officers had a gun in his pocket, since the defendant was reluctant to remove his hand from his pocket, and since there was obvious large bulge in pocket when he did remove his hand, officers were justified in conducting a limited protective search for weapons, and removal of currency and numbers slips by officer who claimed to have found gun was reasonable and fact numbers slips and money rather than gun were removed from pocket did not render those items inadmissible. United States v. M. Dowling (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 406).

—— Sufficiency of Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for possession of numbers slips. B. R. Burrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 897).

Ruling of district court as binding on Court of General Sessions

United States district court decision, in prosecution for narcotics violation, which suppressed certain evidence as products of illegal search and seizure was not binding on District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, where defendant was charged with possession of prohibited weapon and possession of numbers slips, and which had held previously to United States District Court ruling that certain evidence, which was seized under same circumstances as evidence in federal prosecution, was admissible. B. R. Burrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 897).

Search and seizure

A defendant, who was lawfully arrested for operating automobile without valid permit, was taken to police station in his own automobile, and charged with driving without a valid permit, possession of prohibited weapon and possession of numbers slips, but did not protest or withhold his consent to use by police of his automobile to drive him to police station and was not coerced in any way, there was no seizure of defendant's automobile by police prior to arrival at police station. B. R. Burrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 897).

(c) All moneys, vehicles, furnishings, fixtures, equipment, stock (including, without limitation, furnishings and fixtures adaptable to nongambling uses, and equipment and stock for printing, recording, computing, transporting, safekeeping, or communication), or other things of value used or to be used—

(1) in carrying on or conducting any lottery, or the game or device commonly known as a policy lottery or policy, contrary to the provisions of section 22–1501;

(2) in setting up or keeping any gaming table, bank, or device contrary to the provisions of 22–1504; or

(3) in maintaining any gambling premises, shall be subject to seizure by any member of the Metropolitan Police force, or the United States Park Police, or the United States marshal, or any deputy marshal, for the District of Columbia, and any property seized regardless of its value shall be proceeded against in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia by libel action brought in the name of the District of Columbia by the Corporation Counsel or any of his assistants, and shall, unless good cause be shown to the contrary, be forfeited to the District of Columbia and shall be made available for the use of any agency of the government of the District of Columbia, or otherwise disposed of as the Commissioners of the District of Columbia may, by order or by regulation, provide: Provided, That if there be bona fide liens against the property so forfeited, then such property shall be disposed of by public auction. The proceeds of the sale of such property shall be available, first, for the payment of all expenses incident to such sale; and, second, for the payment of such liens; and the remainder shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. To the extent necessary, liens against said property so forfeited shall, on good cause shown by the lienor, be transferred from the property to the proceeds of the sale of the property.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Condemnation and forfeiture

Condemnation and forfeiture of moneys seized from defendant's person at time of his arrest was warranted by evidence, including evidence that defendant attempted to conceal the money from the arresting officers and that, although he claimed that money seized represented savings which he intended to use to purchase a business, he was admittedly unfamiliar with business which he claimed to be planning to purchase, the person from whom he expected to make the purchase and the terms of the purchase. $1,407.00 in United States Currency, et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 217).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence was sufficient to support forfeiture judgment in relation to money allegedly used in carrying on or conducting a lottery. $6,200.00 in United States Currency v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 250 A. 2d 551).

A showing by preponderance of the evidence that moneys found on defendant were in fact used or to be used in an unlawful gambling operation is sufficient to meet statutory test required for forfeiture of property $1,407.00 in United States Currency et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 217).

Nature of libel action

Libel actions for forfeiture of monies used or to be used in carrying on lottery are civil in nature and government need only prove its case by preponderance of the evidence. $3,265.28 in United States Currency, et al. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 516).

The continuing of the keeping of a bucket-shop by any person after the first conviction therefor shall be deemed a second offense under sections 22–1509 to 22–1512. If a domestic corporation shall be convicted of a second offense, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction, upon an information in equity in the name of the United States attorney for the District of Columbia, on the relation of the commissioners of the District of Columbia, to dissolve the corporation; and if a foreign corporation shall be convicted of a second offense, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction, in the same manner, to restrain the corporation from doing business in the District of Columbia. AMENDMENT

Section 1101, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, provided:

Whoever, prior to the date of enactment of this Act, [Pub. L. 90–226] commits any act or engages in any conduct which constitutes an offense under provision of law amended by this Act, [Amendments of sections, 4–140, 15–714, 15–716, 22–501, 22–703, 22–1513, 22–1801, 22–2001, 22–2901, 22–3105, 22–3201, 22–3202, 23–610, 23–901, 23–903, 24–301 and enactments of sections 4–140a, 4–150a and 22–1122, and amendments of 18 U.S.C. 4122, 5024 and 5025] shall be sentenced in accordance with the law in effect on the date he commits such acts or engages in such conduct.

Section 1102, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, provided:

If any provision of or any amendment made by this Act [Pub. L. 90–226; for provisions and amendments made by this Act, see enumeration in note above under heading, "Sentence for offenses committed prior to Dec. 27, 1967."] or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the other provisions of or other amendments made by this Act and the application of such provisions and amendments to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

§ 22–1515. Presence in illegal establishments.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

If defendant charged under this section with knowing presence in narcotics or other illegal establishment chooses not to testify to attempt to establish defense of "good account," this in no way lessens government's burden of proving knowing presence in illegal establishment and does not expose defendant to added criminal responsibility; and thus, section defining such offense does not violate privilege against self-incrimination. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

Presence in illegal establishment, unlike standing or "loitering" on street corner, is not presumptively innocent behavior, and thus a defendant may constitutionally be called upon to explain such presence. Id.

Good account

In context of this section defining as crime one's knowing presence in illegal narcotics, gambling or liquor establishment, if defendant is unable to give good account of his presence, culpable intent being necessary element of the offense, "good account" takes on narrow meaning of demonstrating that one's knowing presence in the illegal establishment was for lawful purpose and not as participant in the illegal activity taking place there. United States v M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

If defendant cannot give good account of his presence in a prosecution under this section, failure to give "good account" is not element of the crime and does not create presumption of knowledge of illegality of premises, which must be proved by the government as separate element of the crime, or presumption of any other element of the crime; rather provision for giving good account merely establishes affirmative defense to otherwise completed and adequately described crime of knowingly being present in illegal establishment. Id.

Defendant is entitled to present to jury explanations of such presence in addition to those given to police. Id.

Narcotics establishment

Illegal "narcotic establishment" is not merely place where addicts may be present, but is place where pushers, addicts and unaddicted neophytes can easily transact business, and thus effect of this section making it crime to knowingly be present in such establishment on status of being addicted to narcotics is merely incidental to section's major thrust against narcotics traffic, and elimination of such establishments was proper subject for Congressional action. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

Presumptions

The amount of narcotics paraphernalia easily visible in apartment plus fresh needle marks on codefendant's arm supported the presumption that narcotic drugs were being administered and that defendant was knowingly present in establishment where narcotic drugs were admistered. C. Jones v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 559).

Purpose

Purpose of Congress in enacting this section, making unlawful knowing presence in illegal narcotics, gambling, or liquor establishment, was to lead to eradication of such illegal establishments by making presence or employment therein crime. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

Search and seizure

Defendant in prosecution for being present in illegal establishment, who had been arrested in basement in which narcotics paraphernalia was found and whose presence there was as a trespasser, did not have standing to challenge search and seizure of paraphernalia since possession of paraphernalia was not an element of offense charged, so as to estop government from denying its possessory interest. F. L. Brooks v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 45).

22–1801. Burglary—Penalties.

§ 22–1801. Burglary—Penalties.

(a) Whoever shall, either in the nighttime or in the daytime, break and enter, or enter without breaking, any dwelling, or room used as a sleeping apartment in any building, with intent to break and carry away any part thereof, or any fixture or other thing attached to or connected thereto or to commit any criminal offense, shall, if any person is in any part of such dwelling or sleeping apartment at the time of such breaking and entering, or entering without breaking, be guilty of burglary in the first degree. Burglary in the first degree shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than five years nor more than thirty years.

(b) Except as provided in subsection (a) of this section, whoever shall, either in the night or in the daytime, break and enter, or enter without breaking, any dwelling, bank, store, warehouse, shop, stable, or other building or any apartment or room, whether at the time occupied or not, or any steamboat, canalboat, vessel, or other watercraft, or railroad car or any yard where any lumber, coal, or other goods or chattels are deposited and kept for the purpose of trade, with intent to break and carry away any part thereof or any fixture or other thing attached to or connected with the same, or to commit any criminal offense, shall be guilty of burglary in the second degree. Burglary in the second degree shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than two years nor more than fifteen years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 823; Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. Section 1102, Act Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, Provided:

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 11–502, 23–546, 23–581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Arrest and search

Examination of the trunk of defendant's automobile did not constitute an illegal search by the police where it occurred contemporaneously with and at place of defendant's arrest under circumstances indicating convincingly defendant's participation in burglary. R. Wright, Jr. v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1256, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 279).

Concurrent sentences

There was no resulting prejudice to a defendant in a case where concurrent sentences were imposed for crimes of carnal knowledge and housebreaking, as a result of error, if any, in failing to make out a prima facie case of housebreaking. P. E. A. Duckett v. United States (1969, 410 F. 2d 1004, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Defendant's absence during trial

Where record on appeal from convictions for housebreaking, arson, and malicious destruction of personal property failed to show that defendant's absence during trial, after trial had commenced in his presence, constituted deliberate failure to appear without reason that might bear on court's latitude to have continued trial, case would be remanded for development of such issue including circumstances in which defendant was taken into custody after trial. M. Cureton v. United States (1968, 396 F. 2d 671, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 22).

Elements of offense

Entry into closed store constitutes burglary if entry coincides, in point of time, with intent to steal once therein, even though intended theft was not consummated. United States v. R. F. Fox (1970, 433 F. 2d 1235, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Evidence—Sufficiency

In absence of specific evidence as to the value of items taken, defendant's conviction for grand larceny would be reversed, but since trial judge gave lesser included offense charge as to petit larceny and there was sufficient evidence on which jury could find defendant guilty thereof, case would be remanded for resentencing. United States v. E. E. Thweatt (1970, 433 F. 2d 1226, — U.S. App. D.C.—).

Evidence, including evidence that, at time stores in neighborhood were being looted, the defendant was found by officer in store with broken window and that defendant dropped cartons of cigarettes, sustained burglary conviction. United States v. R. F. Fox (1970, 433 F. 2d 1235, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Evidence, including testimony identifiying defendant as one of two men attempting to pry open window with crowbar, is sufficient to sustain convictions for attempted second-degree burglary, destroying property and attempted petit larceny. H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

In this case the court held that the Government failed to sustain its burden of proving that the defendant was present in the house at time of entry, and that the evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction for first-degree burglary. United States v. C. Hammonds (1970, 425 F. 2d 597, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In this case the court found that testimony concerning defendant's offer to sell the goods, leading the prospective buyers to where they were stored, and remaining with the goods during an interval when others had departed was sufficient evidence to allow a jury to find that defendant was in possession of recently stolen property and to infer larceny and housebreaking. D. E. Garris, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 467, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 251).

In this case the evidence in prosecution of defendant for attempted burglary permitted inference of an intent to commit a crime to be made by the jury who was found in warehouse amongst scattered papers, opened desk drawers and office machinery which had been moved into hall. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 483).

In this case the evidence presented by the government in a prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny was so compelling that, even if the police station confrontation between defendant and two prosecution witnesses was improper and in-court identification of defendant was not shown by clear and convincing evidence to have an independent source, error, if any, in the in-court identifications was harmless. G. R. Taylor v. United States (1969, 414 F. 2d 1142, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 246).

Evidence was sufficient in juvenile court proceeding to support finding that the minor was guilty of housebreaking and petty larceny. In the Matter of N. M. Ellis (D.C. App. 1969, 253 A. 2d 789; remanded 429 F. 2d 214, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Defendant's responsibility for housebreaking was established by being with those who broke store window coupled with his flight with stolen goods. Id.

Evidence that tenant of apartment heard what sounded like someone attempting to enter vacant apartment and that defendant and companion were seen leaving building and fled when pursued by officer was sufficient to sustain conviction of attempted housebreaking. T. H. Adams v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 245 A. 2d 640).

Evidence of eyewitness, corroborated by physical details otherwise in evidence, supported verdicts finding defendants guilty of first-degree murder and housebreaking. R. T. Brown, J. D. Irby and R. L. Jones v. United States (1967, 375 F. 2d 310, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 134).

Examination of witnesses

In prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny, the court's questioning of defense witnesses on certain aspects of testimony which they had given in support of alibi claim in order to obtain much needed clarification of their testimony rather than challenges thereto did not amount of advocacy against alibi theory in presence of jury, and in any event was not prejudicial where it was not significantly different in nature from court's questioning of a vital government witness. United States v. H. W. Barbour (1969, 420 F. 2d 1319, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 116).

Impeachment

Cross-examination of defendant during which the prosecution was permitted to develop that for some time prior to date of offense defendant had been absent from his military post without leave was improper, and the prejudice was magnified by the erroneous admission of government's rebuttal evidence as to defendant's absence from military post. United States v. W. A. Shumate et ano. (1970, 429 F. 2d 777, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In this case, the Court held that, inasmuch as the defendant's prior convictions of unauthorized use of vehicle and petit larceny were introduced in evidence on his own direct examination in effort to support contention that he was framed with respect to grand larceny charge by one of government's witnesses, he could not successfully complain of alleged error in permitting him to be impeached by prior convictions, notwithstanding decisions stating that the offense of taking property without right does not bear on credibility. United States v. G. W. Lucas (1970, 426 F. 2d 664, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In this case the court held that under the circumstances the defendant, who was convicted of housebreaking and grand larceny, was entitled to nonjury hearing to determine whether defendant would be allowed to take stand in front of jury without prosecution introducing evidence of defendant's prior convictions. United States v. J. Coleman (1969, 420 F. 2d 1313, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 110).

Inconsistent verdict

Verdicts acquitting defendant of larceny while convicting him of burglary are not fatally inconsistent in prosecution in which officer testified that he found defendant in looted store holding cigarettes. United States v. R. F. Fox (1970, 433 F. 2d 1235, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

The trial court could have found defendant, who was carrying goods stolen from an apartment building, which he later abandoned when he attempted to flee, guilty of both attempted burglary and petit larceny charges on inference of guilt raised by defendant's unexplained possession of recently stolen property or even on the basis of this inference the trier of the facts could have had a reasonable doubt that defendant had necessary criminal intent upon entering apartment building to be convicted of attempted burglary, and thus verdicts of acquittal on attempted burglary charge and guilty on petit larceny charge were not necessarily inconsistent or irreconcilable. H. Barnes v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 724).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain petit larceny conviction. Id.

Indictment

A failure to allege an unlawful entry in count charging second-degree burglary amounted to no more than harmless error United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 110).

Since no indictment for a violation of riot statute had been returned charging engaging in riot alone but rather always that count was coupled with counts charging burglary and grand or petty larceny, the grand jury considered engaging in a riot in violation of statute in conjunction with separate but immediately related criminal conduct and there was no loose, unguided approach to indictments returned by grand jury under riot statute that would deprive defendants of their constitutional rights. Id.

Information—Amendment

Where amendment of information charging attempted second-degree burglary, destroying private property, and petit larceny to reflect that property in question belonged to corporation in care and custody of individual, as opposed to individual alone as charged in original information, conformed to testimony at trial and no prejudice was occasioned by the defense, permitting the amendment was not error. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Instructions

In this case, since the jury had convicted defendant of more serious crime of attempted burglary, any error in instruction on lesser included offense of unlawful entry was not demonstrated to be prejudicial. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 843).

Charge to jury fairly covered alibi defense of defendant, who was charged on counts of housebreaking and grand larceny, and also adequately indicated substance of defendant's position that he had no obligation to show that another was actually the transgressor. R. Wright, Jr. v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1256, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 279).

Where defense counsel, in response to inquiry by federal District Court in prosecution for housebreaking, expressed satisfaction with instructions given, and defendant was convicted on strong evidence, defendant could not require Court of Appeals to exercise discretion available under provision of Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure that plain errors or defects affecting substantial rights may be noticed though they were not brought to attention of court. H. Manning v. United States (1966, 371 F. 2d 353, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 256).

Intent

Crucial element of offense of second-degree burglary is the specific intent which impelled entry and not the lawful or unlawful manner of entry. United States v. J. Jeffries et al. (1968, 45 F.R.D. 110).

Unlawful entry bears heavily on question of defendant's intent to commit second-degree burglary but it is not a prerequisite to the establishment of such an intent. Id.

Lesser included offense

"Criminal offense", within burglary statute prohibiting entry with intent to commit any criminal offense, includes petit larceny. United States v. R. F. Fox (1970, 433 F. 2d 1235, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Except for the requirement of intent to commit crime, unlawful entry is substantially identical to and hence lesser included offense of burglary in second degree. P. E. Hebble v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 483).

One man showup

Where an intruder broke into the apartment of two women, and shortly thereafter was arrested as a suspect, and about 30 minutes after the attack the women were asked to come down to the street in front of their apartment and view defendant who was the sole occupant of patrol wagon, use of "one-man showup" did not deny defendant due process of law. G. W. Bates v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1104, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 36).

Partial acquittal

Although the defendant was acquitted on a charge of burglarizing a liquor store in a riot district, did not of itself establish that jury accepted defendant's testimony that he did not enter store, thereby making it erroneous for trial court to interpret antiriot statute as permitting jury to find defendant guilty of engaging in a riot, since, absent an instruction to the effect that jury should acquit defendant of riot count if it accepted his testimony as true, it was impossible to make any assumption as to precisely how jury viewed facts. United States v. C. Mathews (1969, 419 F. 2d 1177, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

Probable cause

In this case, since the police officers were investigating reported burglary, and defendants were seen carrying coffee table, and their distinctive clothing matched clothing of men seen in vicinity of burglary, and there was a furtive disposal of instrumentalities of burglary by one defendant, and other defendant attempted to get his gun out of pocket as officers approached, there was probable cause for arrest of defendants and for their search and search of their automobile. United States v. R. Cunningham et ano. (1970, 424 F. 2d 942, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

The record in this case which discloses that one of two boys apprehended at the scene of housebreaking accompanied officers to apartment and identified the defendant as person who had entered store across street from apartment disclosed so small a probability that probable cause for arrest was lacking that unraised issue of probable cause would not be considered as plain error. J. Washington v. United States (1969, 414 F. 2d 1119, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 223).

Prosecutor's remarks to jury

Record disclosed uncontested facts so confirming the defendant's guilt of second-degree burglary and petit larceny consisting in theft of money from coin-operated laundry machines located in locked basement room of an apartment building that any impropriety in the prosecuting attorney's argument must be classed as harmless error. United States v. R. K. Jones (1970, 433 F. 2d 1107, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In this case, the court held that the statement of prosecuting attorney that if jury believed testimony of defendants, who were charged with burglary II and petit larceny, they must conclude that police officers were "out-and-out liars," was not so prejudicial as to require reversal. United States v. Stevenson et ano. (1970, 424 F. 2d 923, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

The use by prosecuting attorney of phrase "lucky enough to catch somebody right in the act," and to "catch them red-handed" was not so prejudicial as to constitute plain error. Id.

Review—Remand

In a case in which guilty verdict was ambiguous for failure to state whether it referred to offense of housebreaking or to offense of unlawful entry, the court held that remand for new trial was appropriate remedy. K. F. Glenn v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 1323, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

Sentences

Rule of lenity is to be applied, and concurrent sentences imposed for destruction of property and attempted second-degree burglary, since in this case both offenses involved single course if conduct, i.e., prying of window. H. Manning v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 504).

Consecutive sentences could properly be imposed for attempted second-degree burglary and attempted petit larceny, since it is apparent from facts of case, including use of panel truck, that defendant intended to invade two distinct societal interests. Id.

Statutory provision for two-year mandatory minimum sentence for burglary do not operate to prevent prosecution and sentencing for lesser misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, for which offenses the defendant was actually sentenced for one-half year more than two-year felony minimum. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Under the facts of this case where defendant's true crime was burglary in the second degree, a felony carrying a mandatory minimum sentence of two years, and prosecution reduced felony to the three separate misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, trial judge did not abuse discretion in imposing two consecutive one-year sentences and one concurrent one-year sentence following defendant's conviction on all three separate misdemeanors. R. M. Weeks v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 907).

Severance of counts

It was within trial court's discretion to grant government's motion for severance of counts in prosecution for grand larceny and housebreaking where government made at least a threshold showing of prejudice, in that, unexpectedly, the necessary witnesses as to two transactions could not be available at the same time, and where there was a lack of any specific prejudice claimed by defendant. D. E. Garris, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 467, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 251).

Verdict

Where defendant was charged with housebreaking and jury was instructed on elements of both housebreaking and on lesser included offense of unlawful entry and returned one word verdict of "guilty" without specifying to which offense this finding related, the verdict is ambiguous and conviction for housebreaking cannot be founded upon it. K. F. Glenn v. nUited States (1969, 420 F. 2d 1323, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

Chapter 20.—OBSCENITY

Sec.
22–2001. Certain obscene activities and conduct declared unlawful—Definitions—Penalties—Affirmative defenses—Exception.

§ 22–2001. Certain obscene activities and conduct declared unlawful—Definitions—Penalties—Affirmative defenses—Exception.

(a)(1) It shall be unlawful in the District of Columbia for a person knowingly—

(A) to sell, deliver, distribute, or provide, or offer or agree to sell, deliver, distribute, or provide any obscene, indecent, or filthy writing, picture, sound recording, or other article or representation;

(B) to present, direct, act in, or otherwise participate in the preparation or presentation of, any obscene, indecent, or filthy play, dance, motion picture, or other performance;

(C) to pose for, model for, print, record, compose, edit, write, publish, or otherwise participate in preparing for publication, exhibition, or sale, any obscene, indecent, or filthy writing, picture, sound recording, or other article or representation;

(D) to sell, deliver, distribute, or provide, or offer or agree to sell, deliver, distribute or provide any article, thing, or device which is intended for or represented as being for indecent or immoral use;

(E) to create, buy, procure, or possess any matter described in the preceding subparagraphs of this paragraph with intent to disseminate such matter in violation of this subsection;

(F) to advertise or otherwise promote the sale of any matter described in the preceding subparagraphs of this paragraph; or

(G) to advertise or otherwise promote the sale of material represented or held out by such person to be obscene.

(2)(A) For purposes of subparagraph (E) of paragraph (1) of this subsection, the creation, purchase, procurement, or possession of a mold, engraved plate, or other embodiment of obscenity specially adapted for reproducing multiple copies or the possession of more than three copies, of obscene, indecent, or filthy material shall be prima facie evidence of an intent to disseminate such material in violation of this subsection.

(B) For purposes of paragraph (1) of this subsection, the term "knowingly" means having general knowledge of, or reason to know, or a belief or ground for belief which warrants further inspection or inquiry of, the character and content of any article, thing, device, performance, or representation described in paragraph (1) of this subsection which is reasonably susceptible of examination.

(3) When any person is convicted of a violation of this subsection, the court in its judgment of conviction may, in addition to the penalty prescribed, order the confiscation and disposal of any materials described in paragraph (1), which were named in the charge against such person and which were found in the possession or under the control of such person at the time of his arrest.

(b)(1) It shall be unlawful in the District of Columbia for any person knowingly—

(A) to sell, deliver, distribute, or provide, or offer or agree to sell, deliver, distribute, or provide to a minor—

(i) any picture, photograph, drawing, sculpture, motion picture film, or similar visual representation or image of a person or portion of the human body, which depicts nudity, sexual conduct, or sado-masochistic abuse and which taken as a whole is patently offensive because it affronts prevailing standards in the adult community as a whole with respect to what is suitable material for minors; or

(ii) any book, magazine, or other printed matter however reproduced or sound recording, which depicts nudity, sexual conduct, or sado-masochistic abuse or which contains explicit and detailed verbal descriptions or narrative accounts of sexual excitement, sexual conduct, or sado-masochistic abuse and which taken as a whole is patently offensive because it affronts prevailing standards in the adult community as a whole with respect to what is suitable material for minors; or

(B) to exhibit to a minor, or to sell or provide to a minor an admission ticket to, or pass to, or to admit a minor to, premises whereon there is exhibited, a motion picture, show, or other presentation which, in whole or in part, depicts nudity, sexual conduct, or sado-masochistic abuse and which taken as a whole is patently offensive because it affronts prevailing standards in the adult community as a whole with respect to what is suitable material for minors.

(2) For purposes of paragraph (1) of this subsection:

(A) The term "minor" means any person under the age of seventeen years.

(B) The term "nudity" includes the showing of the human male or female genitals, pubic area or buttocks with less than a full opaque covering, or the showing of the female breast with less than a full opaque covering of any portion thereof below the top of the nipple, or the depiction of covered male genitals in a discernibly turgid state;

(C) The term "sexual conduct" includes acts of sodomy, masturbation, homosexuality, sexual intercourse, or physical contact with a person's clothed or unclothed genitals, pubic area, buttocks, or, if such person be a female, breast.

(D) The term "sexual excitement" includes the condition of human male or female genitals when in a state of sexual stimulation or arousal.

(E) The term "sado-masochistic abuse" includes flagellation or torture by or upon a person clad in undergarments or a mask or bizarre costume, or the condition of being fettered, bound, or otherwise physically restrained on the part of one so clothed.

(F) The term "knowingly" means having a general knowledge of, or reason to know, or a belief or ground for belief which warrants further inspection or inquiry or both of—

(i) the character and content of any material described in paragraph (1) of this subsection which is reasonably susceptible of examination by the defendant; and

(ii) the age of the minor.

(c) It shall be an affirmative defense to a charge of violating subsection (a) or (b) of this section that the dissemination was to institutions or individuals having scientific, educational, or other special justification for possession of such material.

(d) Nothing in this section shall apply to a licensee under the Communications Act of 1934 while engaged in activities regulated pursuant to such Act.

(e) A person convicted of violating subsection (a) or (b) of this section shall for the first offense be fined not more than $3,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. A person convicted of a second or subsequent offense under subsection (a) or (b) of this section shall be fined not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000 or imprisoned not less than six months or more than three years, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1332, ch. 854, § 872; Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, § 606, title VI, 81 Stat. 738.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

This section is not so unconstitutionally vague as to deprive a defendant of equal protection or due process. United States v. T. Gower (1970, 316 F. Supp. 1390).

Construction

This section making it unlawful for a person knowingly to present, direct, act in, or otherwise participate in preparation or presentation of obscene, indecent, or filthy play, dance, motion picture or other performance requires no more than that appellants had sufficient knowledge of performance such that they should have suspected its impropriety and inspected or inquired as to its character and content. R. Morris and B. C. Carroll, etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

Congress did not intend that the question of obscenity of the performance should depend upon the opinion or belief or the person who, with knowledge or notice of his acts, assumed the responsibility for putting on the performance. Id.

This section allows appellants to remain ignorant of illegality of performance only at their peril, once they know or have reason to know they might be violating statute. Id.

Evidence—Admissibility

Since this section required proof that defendants had knowledge of character and contents of material, which constituted sufficient proof of scienter trial judge properly excluded testimony that defendant had received advice of competent counsel that material could be legally sold. V. W. Huffman and D. E. Pryba v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 342).

—— of community standards

Where there is ruling of obscenity per se, as in this case, defense is entitled to offer evidence of national community standards to prove that material or performance is not obscene; such proof, if established, would be good defense. R. Morris and B. C. Carroll, etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

In this case the exhibits which consisted of magazines containing photographs of nudes and, where certain of them had been declared nonobscene in per curiam opinions by United States Supreme Court were not admissible as proof of contemporary community standards, even if they were sold all over United States, where tendered exhibits were not comparable to material possessed and sold by defendants. V. W. Huffman and D. E. Pryba v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 342).

—— Sufficiency

In this case the evidence in prosecution for knowingly selling certain obscene, indecent and filthy articles was sufficient for jury to properly conclude that defendants were aware of content and character of materials. V. W. Huffman and D. E. Pryba v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 342).

Government's burden of proof

In obscenity case involving question of whether a local burlesque show was obscene, Government was required to offer competent evidence to prove relevant community standards prevailing in nation generally, and by failing to do so, Government failed to establish an essential element of the crime charged. L. M. Hudson et al. v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 903).

Hard-core pornography

Photographs and films depicting nude males and females engaged in sexual intercourse, fellatio, cunnilingus, and masturbation constitute hard-core pornography and as such the government is not required to produce expert testimony about appeal to prurient interest and contemporary community standards, in prosecution for violation of this section making it crime to knowingly sell or possess with intent to sell obscene material. United States v. T. Gower (1970, 316 F. Supp. 1390).

Management's burden

In this case the court held that the trial judge could infer that defendant, who was manager of theater, knew or had reasonable opportunity to know character and content of performer's act, and had burden under this section, of ascertaining whether performer's performance might have been obscene, and neglect to do so was not adequate defense. R. Morris and B. C. Carroll etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

"Obscene" defined

As used in statutory language, the word "obscene" is intended to have a meaning that varies from time to time as general notions of decency in attire and conduct of exhibitions for public entertainment tend to change. L. M. Hudson et al. v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 903).

In the District of Columbia, community standards in obscenity cases shall be determined by a reference to contemporary community standards in the nation as a whole. Id.

Obscene per se

In this case the record established and the court held that reasonable men could only conclude that performer's acts simulated fellatio and intentional exposure of the vaginal area, and which was performed on stage and runway while lying on stage and repeating act to other side of stage while at same time yelling "Let's see it all" was obscene per se. R. Morris and B. C. Carroll etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

Review of evidence de novo

In this case the District of Columbia Court of Appeals reviewed the evidence de novo in a prosecution for knowingly presenting, directing and participating in presentation of obscene, indecent and filthy performance. R. Morris and B. C. Carroll etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

Scienter

In this case the performer knew or should have known that her performance might violate this section since she was the performer, and had enough knowledge about the performance to properly hold her responsible for further inquiry or inspection into act's character and content, and that was all that was needed to satisfy requirement of scienter under this section R. Morris and B. C. Carroll etc. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 337).

This section required proof that defendants had knowledge of character and content of the alleged obscene material, and that constituted sufficient proof of scienter; if defendants knew what they were doing, their personal belief that they were not violating the law was no defense. V. W. Huffman and D. E. Pryba v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 342).

Search and seizure

Since undercover police officer asked defendant bookstore owner about purchasing films similar to ones he had already purchased and policeman accompanied bookstore owner to his automobile where defendant opened trunk and selected films from bag in trunk, there was no need for prior adversary hearing to determine obscenity before seizing films pursuant to a search warrant. United States v. T. Gower (1970, 316 F. Supp. 1390).

The fact that defendant bookstore owner kept photographs and films under the counter or in trunk of his automobile could properly be considered in determining whether there must be an adversary hearing prior to issuance of search warrant authorizing seizure of the alleged obscene materials. Id.

Chapter 21.—KIDNAPING

§ 22–2101. Definition and penalty—Conspiracy.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 11–502, 23–546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Conduct of counsel

In this case, the court held that the conduct of prosecution in preliminary hearing, wherein, after testimony of complaining witness had been taken, government moved to dismiss when defendant sought to test credibility of complainant by calling her mother, and magistrate granted motion, did not warrant dismissal of kidnaping indictment or, in the alternative, suppression of complainant's testimony. United States v. D. Regisser (1970, 309 F. Supp. 879).

Chapter 22.—LARCENY—RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

§ 22–2201. Grand larceny.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 23–546, 23–581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Arrest and search

Examination of the trunk of defendant's automobile did not constitute an illegal search by the police where it occurred contemporaneously with and at place of defendant's arrest under circumstances indicating convincingly defendant's participation in burglary. R. Wright, Jr. v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1256, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 279).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Conviction of either grand larceny of automobile or unauthorized use of automobile entails evidence having enough probative power to convince the jury beyond reasonable doubt of every essential element, and also on identity of the accused as participant. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Evidence, in prosecution for grand larceny of automobile, unauthorized use of such automobile, and for grand larceny of engine from another automobile, warranted the finding that the character of possession of stolen property, united with other evidence in case, would authorize inference attributing guilt to defendant. Id.

In prosecution for grand larceny, government had to introduce probative evidence of each and every element of crime charged, including value of property which was taken and failure to offer such proof would be fatal to government's case. United States v. E. E. Thweatt (1970, 433 F. 2d 1226, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

When there is a possibility of convicting the defendant of either grand or petit larceny, offenses which carry significantly different penalties and which are distinguished solely by value of property taken, it is essential that government introduce evidence of that value in order to give jury a firm basis upon which it can render a verdict. Id.

In absence of specific evidence as to the value of items taken, defendant's conviction for grand larceny would be reversed, but since the judge gave lesser included offense charge as to petit larceny and there was sufficient evidence on which jury could find defendant guilty thereof, case would be remanded for resentencing. Id.

In this case the evidence presented by the government in a prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny was so compelling that, even if the police station confrontation between defendant and two prosecution witnesses, was improper and in-court identification of defendant was not shown by clear and convincing evidence to have an independent source, error, if any, in the in-court identifications was harmless. G. R. Taylor v. United States (1969, 414 F. 2d 1142, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 246).

In this case the court found that testimony concerning defendant's offer to sell the goods, leading the prospective buyers to where they were stored, and remaining with the goods during an interval when others had departed was sufficient evidence to allow a jury to find that defendant was in possession of recently stolen property and to infer larceny and housebreaking. D. E. Garris, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 467, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 251).

Examination of witnesses

In prosecution for housebreaking and grand larceny, the court's questioning of defense witnesses on certain aspects of testimony which they had given in support of alibi claim in order to obtain much needed clarification of their testimony rather than challenges thereto did not amount to advocacy against alibi theory in presence of jury, and in any event was not prejudicial where it was not significantly different in nature from court's questioning of a vital government witness. United States v. H. W. Barbour (1969, 420 F. 2d 1319, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 116).

Impeachment

In this case, the Court held that, inasmuch as the defendant's prior convictions of unauthorized use of vehicle and petit larceny were introduced in evidence on his own direct examination in effort to support contention that he was framed with respect to grand larceny charge by one of government's witnesses, he could not successfully complain of alleged error in permitting him to be impeached by prior convictions, notwithstanding decisions stating that the offense of taking property without right does not bear on credibility. United States v. G. A. Lucas (1970, 426 F. 2d 664, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In this case the court held that under the circumstances the defendant, who was convicted of housebreaking and grand larceny, was entitled to nonjury hearing to determine whether defendant would be allowed to take stand in front of jury without prosecution introducing evidence of defendant's prior convictions. United States v. J. Coleman (1969, 420 F. 2d 1313, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 110).

Included offense

Larceny is a necessarily included offense of robbery. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 1116, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Inconsistent verdict

Verdict whereby defendant was convicted of and codefendant was acquitted of grand larceny of automobile, unauthorized use of the automobile, and grand larceny of engine from another automobile, was not inconsistent since the jury rather than determining that codefendant lacked possession of stolen property, could have derived doubt as to whether codefendant collaborated in commission of charged offenses. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Instructions

Fact that the jury was instructed, in prosecution for grand larceny of automobile and of automobile engine and for unauthorized use of motor vehicle, that if prerequisite to inference of guilt for possession of recently stolen property exists beyond reasonable doubt it could be inferred that defendant was guilty of one or both of such offenses, but was not instructed that inference permissible was that defendant was person who committed such offense if government proved all of their essential elements beyond reasonable doubt, did not warrant reversal of conviction since, in other portions of charge, instruction was given on presumption of innocence and government's burden of proof beyond reasonable doubt. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Charge to jury fairly covered alibi defense of defendant, who was charged on counts of housebreaking and grand larceny, and also adequately indicated substance of defendant's position that he had no obligation to show that another was actually the transgressor. R. Wright, Jr. v. United States (1968, 404 F. 2d 1256, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 279).

Prejudicial error

In this case, assuming that failure of the trial judge to inform defendant's counsel of larceny charge before he summed up constituted error, where defendant was indicted for robbery and assault with a deadly weapon. however, that failure lacked the prejudice necessary to constitute reversible error where, inter alia, defendant's admission in open court established his intention and his attempt to trick complainants, so that damage was done when defendant took the stand it was not likely that a variation in summation would have changed the verdict. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 1116, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Probable cause

In this case, since the police officers were investigating reported burglary, and defendants were seen carrying coffee table, and their distinctive clothing matched clothing of men seen in vicinity of burglary, and there was a furtive disposal of instrumentalities of burglary by one defendant, and other defendant attempted to get his gun out of pocket as officers approached, there was probable cause for arrest of defendants and for their search and search of their automobile. United States v. R. Cunningham et ano. (1970, 424 F. 2d 942, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Sentences

The single taking of an automobile can constitute both offense of grand larceny of automobile and offense of unauthorized use of automobile, and can authorize separate though concurrent sentences under each. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Severance of counts

It was within trial court's discretion to grant government's motion for severance of counts in prosecution for grand larceny and housebreaking where government made at least a threshold showing of prejudice, in that, unexpectedly, the necessary witnesses as to two transactions could not be available at the same time, and where there was a lack of any specific prejudice claimed by defendant. D. E. Garris, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 467, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 251)

Withholding of evidence by government

Record in proceeding for habeas corpus or new trial alleging that evidence in government's possession was not disclosed at petitioner's trial on charge of grand larceny by trick established that government was not negligent in not disclosing evidence consisting of check drawn by bank to replenish its supply of $1,000 bills and statement of bank officer relating to alleged exchange of $1,000 bills for $20 bills, but rather established that such information was not sufficiently probative or material to require disclosure to defense. M. M. Levin v. N. deB. Katzenbach (1966, 262 F. Supp. 951).

Record in proceeding for habeas corpus or new trial alleging that evidence in government's possession was not disclosed at petitioner's trial on charge of grand larceny by trick failed to establish that jury might have been led to entertain reasonable doubt as to petitioner's guilt had defense been able to show that bank officers did not remember changing $1,000 bills, which were subject of alleged larceny, into smaller ones. Id.

§ 22–2202. Petit larceny—Order of restitution.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23–581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Applicability of Miranda rule

Principles of Miranda did not apply to statements made by defendant, when he was stopped and asked if automobile was his, and if the property taken from the automobile belonged to him, and asked the license number of the automobile, where appellant was detained only because officer felt his conduct required investigation and defendant was questioned briefly and his answers were uncoerced and voluntary. This does not constitute custodial interrogation. T. A. Green v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 177).

Cause for arrest

Where a police officer had a conversation with the victim of an assault and petit larceny and proceeded in patrol car in search of the assailants, and the stolen articles were in plain view of officer in defendant's hand and at his feet in the gutter, an arrest was authorized when the officer saw the stolen articles. R. L. Thompkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 636).

Where in making an initial stop of the defendant the officer was engaged in routine on-the-street investigation in nearby area of a crime minutes after it occurred in an early hour of the morning in his effort to find perpetrator while the trail was still warm, and under these circumstances the initial stop of defendant was neither an arrest nor an arbitrary detention, but arrest occurred after officer saw the articles which fit description of stolen property, which gave sufficient cause to arrest, and seizure was not invalid. Id.

Consecutive sentences for two separate offenses

The distinctions that assault and petit larceny are separate and distinct offenses requiring different elements of proof, and that one is a crime of general intent against the person, and the other a crime of specific intent against property, are no longer conclusive in determining the legality of consecutive sentences for two crimes committed in a single course of conduct. G. Mahoney v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 684).

The compelling reasons which call for the application of the rule of lenity are absent in this case, and there is no substantial doubt Congress would have intended, in the discretion of the court, that consecutive punishment be imposed for historically separate offenses, against different societal interests, for which it has provided separate deterrents. Id.

Criminal intent

The fact that defendant placed meat in shopping bag in self-service store did not provide valid reason for trial court in prosecution for petit larceny to infer a criminal intent or a possession clearly adverse to interests of store, where an attempt by defendant to conceal the meat was not proven. S. A Durphy v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 235 A. 2d 326).

Effective assistance of counsel

The court held that, record on appeal from conviction for petit larceny and assault did not establish denial of effective assistance of counsel J. Bell, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 260 A. 2d 690).

Establishment of corpus delecti

To establish the corpus delicti of the crime of larceny, the Government must prove that the property was lost by the owner as a result of a felonious taking; the "corpus delicti" consists of proof that the crime charged was committed by someone. T. Williams and B. L. Short v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 722).

Evidence of prior conviction

Permitting impeachment by prior petit larceny conviction relating to defendant's credibility was a proper exercise of judicial discretion in subsequent petit larceny prosecution. A. E. Bullock v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 677).

Allowing government to question defendant accused of petit larceny as to his former larceny convictions did not constitute an abuse of discretion in view of fact that trial judge fully instructed jury that they were to consider such evidence only in connection with their evaluation of credence to be given defendant's testimony and that prior convictions were in no way evidence of defendant's guilt of present charge. F. Ginyard v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 590).

Evidence—Sufficiency

The lack of evidence that automobile was parked within the District of Columbia when the theft of license tags requires reversal of conviction for petit larceny for theft of license tags. United States v. C. R. Howard (1970, 433 F. 2d 505, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In this case, the court held that testimony as to ownership of damaged vending machine, purportedly based on witness' own knowledge, was not hearsay and was sufficient to prove ownership as alleged in information charging malicious injuring of property and attempted petit larceny. L. Killens v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 44).

Evidence was not sufficient to sustain a conviction for aiding and abetting petit larceny on a showing that at time officer observed suspected criminal activity defendant was standing near the right side of automobile at a point somewhere between automobile, which contained wine and beer allegedly stolen from store, and the store. T. Williams and B. L. Short v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 722).

Evidence did not sustain conviction of petit larceny of wine and beer in violation of District Code. Id.

Evidence was sufficient in juvenile court proceeding to suppport finding that the minor was guilty of housebreaking and petty larceny. In the Matter of N. M. Ellis (D.C. App. 1969, 253 A. 2d 789; remanded 429 F. 2d 214, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Defendant's responsibility for housebreaking was established by being with those who broke store window coupled with his flight with stolen goods. Id.

Evidence was sufficient to sustained conviction for petit larceny. L. L. Cooper v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 248 A. 2d 826).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction of petit larceny allegedly committed by obtaining money from complaining witness by trick through procedure variously known as "flimflam," "faith and trust," or "confidence game," whereby defendant and another, ostensibly strangers to each other, persuaded victim to turn over to one of them a sum of money to demonstrated victim's trustworthiness as a prerequisite to obtaining easy money, even though defendant's partner was never apprehended. J. J. Few v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 125).

Evidence that fingerprints of defendant appeared on glass surface, which had once been outside surface of drugstore entrance was insufficient to sustain conviction of attempted housebreaking, destroying property, and petit larceny. A. W. Townsley v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 236 A. 2d 63).

Evidence was insufficient to sustain petit larceny conviction of defendant who placed meat in shopping bag in self-service store. S. A. Durphy v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 235 A. 2d 326).

On the record the evidence was sufficient to sustain defendant's conviction of petit larceny in taking property from parked automobile. T. A. Green v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 177).

Evidence, including evidence as to exclusive control or possession of television in defendant, sustained conviction for unlawful entry and petit larceny. J. L. Benbow v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 772).

Cigarettes found in defendants' possession, with same "wholesale numbers" as cigarettes left in store, but not otherwise identified as having come from store, had little, if any, probative value. S. C. Davis and C. L. Colbert v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 485).

Evidence of defendants' physical and chronological proximity to scene of housebreaking, and their leaving at a trot, was insufficient to sustain conviction for attempted housebreaking and petit larceny. Id.

Conviction of petit larceny for taking money by means of "film-flam" operation in which alleged accomplice persuaded victim to give him his money to be hidden in a handkerchief was not supported by evidence in absence of showing that any words were spoken by defendant implicating him in the crime, that any inducements were made to victim by defendant, that defendant put any money in the handkerchief, that defendant had anything to do with the hiding or that there was any criminal association or conspiracy between purported accomplice and defendant. C. E. McMillan v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 715).

Evidence was ample to establish the offenses of petit larceny beyond a reasonable doubt. V. J. Bond, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 485).

—— Suppression

Denial of a motion to suppress evidence relating to stolen property and to narcotics paraphernalia found on the defendants after the arrest for a pedestrian traffic violation was proper. J. R. West et ano. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 740).

Fraud or trick

"Larceny" exists where there is a taking, against owner's will or without his consent, of thing which is subject of the crime. W. W. Reed v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 156).

Taking of property by person who obtains its possession by means of fraud or trickery with preconceived design to appropriate it to his own use constitutes "larceny". Id.

Defendant who, with a companion, invited prosecuting witness to join them on visit to a prostitute and, en route, induced prosecuting witness to demonstrate his trust in defendant and companion by turning over his money to them and permitting them to walk around the block, and who then failed to return, was guilty of petit larceny. Id.

Where defendant, after approaching complaining witness and another person on street suggested that defendant could take witness and other person to place where they could have good time, and witness was called upon to prove trust by giving his money to defendant who was to walk around block with money, and defendant after turning corner and being confronted by police detective ran away, offense of petit larceny by trick was completed when defendant deviated from agreed course around block. H. L. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 240 A. 2d 131).

Impeachment

Regardless of a claim of prejudice by reason of similarity between offenses of robbery and housebreaking, permitting impeachment of the defendant, charged with housebreaking but found guilty of petit larceny, by evidence as to one prior robbery conviction was not error. A. Moss v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 250 A. 2d 567).

Inconsistent verdict

The trial court could have found defendant, who was carrying goods stolen from an apartment building, which he later abandoned when he attempted to flee, guilty of both attempted burglary and petit larceny charges on inference of guilt raised by defendant's unexplained possession of recently stolen property or even on the basis of this inference the trier of the facts could have had a reasonable doubt that defendant had necessary criminal intent upon entering apartment building to be convicted of attempted burglary, and thus verdicts of acquittal on attempted burglary charge and guilty on petit larceny charge were not necessarily inconsistent or irreconcilable. H. Barnes v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 724).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain petit larceny conviction. Id.

Ineffective assistance of counsel

Fact that new counsel was appointed not more than 60 minutes before trial did not amount to ineffective assistance of counsel of defendant charged with simple assault, unlawful entry and petit larceny where no continuance was requested and defendant announced he was ready for trial, factual situation was not so complex as to necessitate any extensive investigation and there were no witnesses for the defense who could have been called, new counsel was experienced and diligent and made no claim that he was hampered by appointment shortly before trial. S. A. Tuttle v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 238 A. 2d 590).

Information—Amendment

Where amendment of information charging attempted second-degree burglary, destroying private property, and petit larceny to reflect that property in question belonged to corporation in care and custody of individual, as opposed to individual alone as charged in original information, conformed to testimony at trial and no prejudice was occasioned by the defense, permitting the amendment was not error. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Instructions

Trial court's failure to preface the "satisfactorily explained" clauses with the word "that" in instructions concerning inference of guilt arising from possession of recently stolen property, unless possession is satisfactorily explained, did not constitute a directed verdict for the government on the issue of satisfactory explanation and did not constitute plain error in prosecution for unauthorized use of automobile and interstate transportation of automobile. United States v. C. R. Howard (1970, 433 F. 2d 505, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Trial court's lack of explicitness, in defining "satisfactorily explained" within instructions on inference of guilt arising from recent possession of stolen property unless possession is satisfactorily explained, did not give rise to negative inference that issue of whether the explanation was satisfactory was out of the case in prosecution for unauthorized use and interstate transportation of automobile and did not constitute plain error. Id.

In the absence of a request for instruction on defense theory that defendant innocently borrowed stolen automobile from another and since the defendant had testified to that effect, trial court's failure to deliver sua sponte instruction on the defense theory was not plain error in prosecution for unauthorized use and interstate transportation of stolen automobile. Id.

Instructions given by trial judge in prosecution for petit larceny was comprehensive and clearly presented to jury the elements of asportation and intent. F. Ginyard v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 590).

Plea of guilty

In this case the court held that the defendant, who had pleaded guilty to charge of petit larceny, was entitled to withdraw guilty plea since the trial court, prior to accepting plea, informed defendant only that he could receive up to 360 days in jail, but did not inform him of possibility of being sentenced under Federal Youth Corrections Act for a longer confinement, even though the Rule in effect at time guilty plea was made did not expressly require the court to determine if defendant was aware of consequences of his plea. L. R. Curtis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 603).

Prejudgment of guilt

Record would not substantiate contention that trial judge had prejudged question of defendant's guilt of petit larceny by trick. H. L. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 240 A. 2d 131).

Prosecutor's remarks to jury

Record disclosed uncontested facts so confirming the defendant's guilt of second-degree burglary and petit larceny consisting in theft of money from coin-operated laundry machines located in locked basement room of an apartment building that any impropriety in the prosecuting attorney's argument must be classed as harmless error. United States v. R. K. Jones (1970, 433 F. 2d 1107, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In this case, the court held that the statement of prosecuting attorney that if jury believed testimony of defendants, who were charged with burglary II and petit larceny, they must conclude that police officers were "out-and-out liars," was not so prejudicial as to require reversal. United States v. Stevenson et ano. (1970, 424 F. 2d 923, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

The use by prosecuting attorney of phrase "lucky enough to catch somebody right in the act," and to "catch them red-handed" was not so prejudicial as to constitute plain error. Id.

Review

The question of appellant's guilt or innocence turned solely on credibility of witnesses, and issue was to be determined by trier of fact and was not subject to review. T. A. Green v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 177).

Right to stenographic record

Where reviewing court was supplied with statement which presented in considerable detail events of the trial, the testimony, and ruling of the trial judge, and furnished counsel with complete picture of proceedings, defendants were not prejudiced by failure to have the case stenographically reported and were not entitled to have their convictions for petit larceny and larceny from interstate shipment set aside. F. House and S. Brandon v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 805).

Sentences

Statutory provision for two-year mandatory minimum sentence for burglary do not operate to prevent prosecution and sentencing for lesser misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, for which offenses the defendant was actually sentenced for one-half year more than two-year felony minimum. J. L. King v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 556).

Action of trial court, taken while appeal was pending, in purportedly granting motion to correct sentence by making one-year sentence for petit larceny and six-month sentence for destroying property run concurrently rather than consecutively was beyond the court's power at that time and order purporting to reduce sentence would be vacated without prejudice to reentry if subsequently deemed appropriate. Id.

In this case the court held that a sentence of 360 days' imprisonment and fine of $200, or in default of payment an additional 360 days, for crime of petit larceny is, when applied to an indigent defendant, illegal as denial of equal protection under the law. D. L. Lucas v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 524).

It is an abuse of discretion to sentence an indigent defendant to 360 days' imprisonment and fine of $200, or in default of payment an additional 360 days, for crime of petit larceny, since maximum punishment for crime of petit larceny was set by Congress at fine of not more than $200 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. Id.

Under the facts of this case where defendant's true crime was burglary in the second degree, a felony carrying a mandatory minimum sentence of two years, and prosecution reduced felony to the three separate misdemeanors of attempted burglary in second degree, destroying private property, and petit larceny, trial judge did not abuse discretion in imposing two consecutive one-year sentences and one concurrent one-year sentence following defendant's conviction on all three separate misdemeanors. R. M. Weeks v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 907).

Validity of arrest

Whether a defendants' arrest on a charge of petit larceny was lawful depended upon arresting officer having probable cause to believe that they had in their possession "fruits of the crime". S. Smith and W. Jeffries v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 247 A. 2d 293).

Validity of verdict

When one juror, on poll of a jury, answered that her vote of guilty on petit larceny charge was conditional, the court should not have required juror to answer "guilty" or "not guilty" but should have returned the jury to jury room for further deliberation, and juror's subsequent response of "guilty" to court's directive did not remove uncertainty of her verdict. P. E. Matthews v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 505).

§ 22–2203. Larceny after trust.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Elements of offense

The fact that preconceived specific intent to deprive owner of possession is not an element of crime of larceny after trust does not preclude evidence which bears upon intent underlying the conversion. United States v. J. R. Gay (1969, 410 F. 2d 1036, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 337; rev'g and remanding 241 A. 2d 446).

"Larceny after trust" occurs when possession of property is entrusted to a person for purpose of applying property to owner's use and benefit. W. W. Reed v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 156).

"Larceny after trust" is committed when person to whom property has been entrusted wrongfully converts it to his own use. Id.

Preconceived specific intent to deprive property owner of possession of property is not an element of offense of larceny after trust. Id.

For larceny after trust to exist, person to whom possession of property is entrusted must be given actual dominion and control over the property for purpose set forth by owner; a mere temporary custodian cannot commit larceny after trust. Id.

Evidence—Sufficiency of Evidence supported jury finding that money received by defendant from religious order in connection with plan to acquire block of property for construction of house of studies for the order was not the proceeds of a loan, but was entrusted to the defendant for a specific purpose, and that defendant's conversion of the funds was larceny after trust. United States v. V. J. Orsinger (1970, 428 F. 2d 1105, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Evidence, including evidence that complainant entrusted money to defendant as real estate broker for express purpose of having it applied as rental on apartment, that apartment was in fact not available, and that defendant kept money and refused to return it, was sufficient for jury in prosecution for larceny after trust. J. R. Gay v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 241 A. 2d 446; rev'd and remanded 410 F. 2d 1036).

Evidence of other offenses

Testimony that defendant took deposit for apartment rental and thereafter neither made apartment available nor returned deposit on occasions other than that which was subject of prosecution for larceny after trust was not admissible within any exception to rule barring evidence of other offenses, and admission was reversible error. J. R. Gay v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 241 A. 2d 446; rev'd and remanded 410 F. 2d 1036).

Evidence of similar criminal acts

The testimony of the witnesses fitted well within the established rule, in this jurisdiction as elsewhere, that a trial judge may allow evidence of similar criminal acts to prove intent if the prejudicial effect of admission is "outweighed by the probative value" of the evidence. United States v. J. R. Gay (1969, 410 F. 2d 1036, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 337; rev'g and remanding 241 A. 2d 446).

Fraudulent purpose

The requisite fraudulent purpose may be conceived at various stages in a transaction, and one who takes property in good faith may be convicted if his illegal designs mature after the property is in his possession. However, the essential legislative proscription is of his having "fraudulently converted" the property. United States v. J. R. Gay (1969, 410 F. 2d 1036, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 337; rev'g and remanding 241 A. 2d 446).

Speedy trial

Fact that some five years elapsed between dates of offenses and date of indictment charging fraud by wire, mail fraud, interstate transportation of check taken by fraud and larceny after trust did not deprive the defendant of fair and speedy trial since the prosecution resulted from extended investigation into complicated affairs of defendant and his corporations and there was no suggestion of any purposeful or otherwise improper delay in conduct of investigation and there was no showing of prejudice caused by the delay. United States v. V. J. Orsinger (1970, 428 F. 2d 1105, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Statutory definition

The statutory provision for larceny after trust defines a violator as one who is shown to have "fraudulently converted" property entrusted to him. United States v. J. R. Gay (1969, 410 F. 2d 1036, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 337; rev'g and remanding 241 A. 2d 446).

Trust or debtor—creditor relationship

Whether a transaction creates trust relationship or that of debtor and creditor depends upon all facts and circumstances, including the intention of the parties. United States v. V. J. Orsinger (1970, 428 F. 2d 1105, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

The fact that interest is to be paid by person receiving money is evidence that debt is created as distinguished from trust obligation, but is not conclusive in prosecution for larceny after trust. Id.

Use and benefit

To establish offense of larceny after trust it must be proved that accused was entrusted with something of value, for the use and benefit of complainant, and that it was converted to accused's own use, with intent to deprive complainant of money or property. J. R. Gay v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 241 A. 2d 446; rev'd and remanded 410 F. 2d 1036).

§ 22–2204. Unauthorized use of vehicles.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23–581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle

Attempted unauthorized use of a motor vehicle is a crime under statutes prohibiting the taking, use, operation, or removal of a vehicle without owner's consent and calling for punishment of whoever shall attempt to commit any crime, which attempt is not otherwise punishable. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Circumstantial evidence

The court held that in a prosecution for driving a motor vehicle without the consent of owner, owner's nonconsent, like other elements of the offense, can be shown by circumstantial evidence so long as it meets the standards of proof accepted in the criminal law. L. M. Powell v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 470, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

In particular situations in a prosecution under this section making it an offense to drive motor vehicle without consent of owner, circumstances offered may be too impotent to attest nonconsent. Id.

Legal sufficiency of circumstantial evidence to support finding of nonconsent is necessarily a matter of degree to be gauged in terms of its potential impact on reasonable minds. Id.

Collateral estoppel

Since the defendant who had been acquitted on charges of reckless driving, speeding, and driving motor vehicle after his permit had been suspended failed to present defense of collateral estoppel to the trial court hearing prosecution for unauthorized use of motor vehicle, the reviewing court would not consider claim. R. Mahoney v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 253, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 3).

Dismissal with prejudice

Dismissal, with prejudice, of indictment charging defendant with unauthorized use of a vehicle constituted adjudication barring another prosecution for same offense. J. H. White, Jr. v. United States (1967, 377 F. 2d 948, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 309).

Evidence

Since the trial judge in prior trial at time of granting mistrial as to various offenses relating to robbery directed verdict of acquittal on count charging unauthorized use of vehicle, admission of evidence in subsequent trial as to theft of car which was subject of count as to which defendants had been acquitted and as to defendants' use of that car in robbery was reversible error under doctrine of collateral estopped. A. Green et ano. v. United States (1970, 426 F. 2d 661, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Evidence supported conviction for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Evidence supported conviction for attempted unauthorized use of automobile. N. Dickson v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 364).

—— Sufficiency

Conviction of either grand larceny of automobile or unauthorized use of automobile entails evidence having enough probative power to convince the jury beyond reasonable doubt of every essential element, and also on identity of the accused as participant. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Evidence, in prosecution for grand larceny of automobile, unauthorized use of such automobile, and for grand larceny of engine from another automobile, warrented the finding that the character of possession of stolen property, united with other evidence in case, would authorize inference attributing guilt to defendant. Id.

Finding by Juvenile Court that juvenile was a passenger in stolen automobile was insufficient to establish violation of this section forbidding unauthorized use of motor vehicle. In the matter of A. R. Davis (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 297).

The evidence in this case supported conviction of unauthorized use of automobile in violation of this section. C. S. Kee and W. J. Johnson v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 465, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 249).

More proof was necessary to support a conviction for transporting a stolen vehicle across state lines in violation of Dyer Act than for unauthorized use in violation of this section since Dyer Act charge is dependent on intent that requires a stealing. Id.

In this case the evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for driving a cab without the owner's consent. L. M. Powell v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 470, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

Evidence was sufficient in a prosecution for attempted and unauthorized use of vehicle to permit trier of fact to find that recovered automobile belonged to government witness and that defendant did not have permission to drive it. H. E. Waterstaat v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 507).

Evidence established that defendant was guilty of unauthorized use of vehicle. United States v. J. W. Carter (1967, 275 F. Supp. 769).

The record contains sufficient evidence from which the jury could have found or inferred that the car left by owner in the parking garage and the one driven onto the parking lot by appellant were one and the same. F. E. Wesley v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 233 A. 2d 514).

Impeachment

In the case, the court held that a prior conviction of attempted housebreaking was properly used for impeachment of defendant charged with unauthorized use of vehicle and assault on police officer. United States v. C. E. White (1970, 427 F. 2d 634, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Defendant who was accused of unauthorized use of automobile could be impeached by a showing of prior larceny convictions. United States v. W. T. Carr (1969, 418 F. 2d 1184, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 348, cert. denied 90 S. Ct. 590).

Inconsistent verdict

Verdict whereby defendant was convicted of and codefendant was acquitted of grand larceny of automobile, unauthorized use of the automobile, and grand larceny of engine from another automobile, was not inconsistent since the jury, rather than determining that codefendant lacked possession of stolen property, could have derived doubt as to whether codefendant collaborated in commission of charged offenses. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Instructions

Fact that the jury was instructed, in prosecution for grand larceny of automobile and of automobile engine and for unauthorized use of motor vehicle, that if prerequisite to inference of guilt for possession of recently stolen property exists beyond reasonable doubt it could be inferred that defendant was guilty of one or both of such offenses, but was not instructed that inference permissible was that defendant was person who committed such offense if government proved all of their essential elements beyond reasonable doubt, did not warrant reversal of conviction since, in other portions of charge, instruction was given on presumption of innocence and government's burden of proof beyond reasonable doubt. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Trial court's failure to preface the "satisfactory explained" clauses with the word "that" in instructions concerning inference of guilt arising from possession of recently stolen property, unless possession is satisfactorily explained, did not constitute a directed verdict for the government on the issue of satisfactory explanation and did not constitute plain error in prosecution for unauthorized use of automobile and interstate transportation of automobile. United States v. C. R. Howard (1970, 433 F. 2d 505, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Trial court's lack of explicitness, in defining "satisfactorily explained" within instructions on inference of guilt arising from recent possession of stolen property unless possession is satisfactorily explained, did not give rise to negative inference that issue of whether the explanation was satisfactory was out of the case in prosecution for unauthorized use and interstate transportation of automobile and did not constitute plain error. Id.

In the absence of a request for instruction on defense theory that defendant innocently borrowed stolen automobile from another and since the defendant had testified to that effect, trial court's failure to deliver sua sponte instruction on the defense theory was not plain error in prosecution for unauthorized use and interstate transportation of stolen automobile. Id.

Jury question

In this case the evidence raised jury question as to defendant's guilt of unauthorized use of an automobile which owner testified was taken from parking garage without her permission United States v. W. T. Carr (1969, 418 F. 2d 1184, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 348; cert. denied 90 S. Ct. 590).

Knowledge

Conviction under this section for unauthorized use of motor vehicle requires proof that accused had guilty knowledge of unauthorized use. In the matter of A. R. Davis (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 297).

Lapse of time between theft and arrest

Lapse of five days between theft of automobile and arrest of defendant operating it did not insulate him from criminal liability for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Limited affirmance

In this case where the evidence was sufficient to sustain a conviction of unauthorized use of automobile but the court had doubts as to its sufficiency to support convictions for robbery and for transporting stolen vehicle across state line in violation of Dyer Act, sentence of youthful offenders under Federal Youth Corrections Act would be affirmed in interest of justice limited to a conviction of unauthorized use of automobile. C. S. Kee and W. J. Johnson v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 465, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 249).

Proof of ownership

Any failure of prosecution to show who owned automobile involved in prosecution for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle did not preclude conviction where it was established that ownership was in some third party. N. Dickson v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 364).

Province of jury

In deciding whether secretaries of the owner had given their consent, in a prosecution for driving a motor vehicle without consent of owner, jury could legitimately have acknowledged that employees ordinarily observe restrictions on their authority and are obedient to employer mandates as to how their tasks are to be performed. L. M. Powell v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 470, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

Rented automobile

Evidence that defendant was afraid to return automobile to rental agency because he was unable to pay rent he owed and absence of evidence that defendant tried to disguise automobile, change license plates or in any other way appropriate it to his exclusive benefit and absence of evidence that rental agency notified defendant that it considered rental contract breached and that defendant would be charged with violation of criminal laws if he failed to return automobile did not establish violaton of statute prohibiting unauthorized use of automobile. United States v. H. B. McLaughlin, Sr. (1967, 278 F. Supp. 320).

Review

Defendant could not be heard to complain on appeal of conviction for attempted unauthorized use of motor vehicle in view of proof of completion of offense of unauthorized use of the vehicle. B. O. Greenwood III v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 878).

Sentences

The single taking of an automobile can constitute both offense of grand larceny of automobile and offense of unauthorized use of automobile, and can authorize separate though concurrent sentences under each. United States v. A. T. Johnson (1970, 433 F. 2d 1160, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Unauthorized use

Unauthorized use statute does not require that automobile be stolen in order to render its use unlawful. United States v. H. B. McLaughlin, Sr. (1967, 278 F. Supp. 320).

Under statute prohibiting unauthorized use of automobile, use of rented automobile in excess of express consent given in rental contract is not to be equated with use "without the consent of the owner." Id.

§ 22–2205. Receiving stolen goods.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 23–546, 23–581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence

Where evidence was merely impeaching and was not material to issues involved nor was it probable that in new trial appellant would be acquitted because of it, trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying motion for new trial based upon newly discovered evidence. W. D. Heard v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 245 A. 2d 125).

—— Admissibility

Since defendant dropped shopping bag containing stolen articles on street prior to his arrest, officers' recovery of bag was not a "seizure" in the Fourth Amendment sense but was merely a retrieval of abandoned property and, therefore, even if probable cause did not exist for subsequent arrest of the defendant, the shopping bag was admissible in prosecution for receiving stolen property. M. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 834).

—— Sufficiency

Evidence that defendant was in possession of recently stolen coat is sufficient to sustain conviction of receiving stolen property. H. Blue v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 508).

Instructions

The court held that in prosecution for receiving stolen property, viewed as a whole, instructions which mentioned the requirement that defendant must have received goods with intent to defraud and which explained meaning of intent were proper. M. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 834).

Where instruction on possession in prosecution for receiving stolen goods was full and complete, and defense counsel indicated that he would accept court's ruling on the question, refusal to instruct that defendant must have had exclusive possession was not ground for reversal. F. H. Scott v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 637).

Search and seizure

Where officers had valid search warrant and while making search officers found pistol which was not listed in warrant, seizure of pistol which subsequently turned out to be stolen and which formed basis of prosecution for receiving stolen property was legal. W. D. Heard v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 245 A. 2d 125).

§ 22–2206. Stealing property of District of Columbia.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Instructions

While facts in case resulting in conviction for stealing property belonging to District of Columbia may have justified a charge limited to elements of larceny, introduction of the words "steal" and "purloin" into the charge placed an obligation on trial judge to explain their meaning and relation to the larceny term. W. D. Mitchell et al. v. United States (1968, 394 F. 2d 767, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 292).

Trial judge would not be obligated to delineate the issues of each of the crimes covered by District of Columbia statute prohibiting the embezzlement, stealing or purloining of any property of the District, but he would be obliged to specify the elements of the crime or crimes most closely related to the factual situation. Id.

In prosecution for embezzlement, stealing and purloining of property of District of Columbia, while judge did speak of elements of property value and wrongful taking in his charge on robbery counts, it was inadequate to cover the shortcomings of the charge since the taking, constituting an element of robbery, was substantially different from a larceny taking, and trial judge did not refer jury to those portions of his earlier charge. Id.

Conviction of defendants under statute relating to the stealing, embezzling or purloining of any money, property, or writing of the District of Columbia, for stealing service revolver of officer, would be reversed where court's charge was inadequate to properly instruct jury upon all crucial elements of the offenses embraced within prosecution's evidence. Id.

Construction

Use of words "embezzle, steal or purloin", in District of Columbia statute relating to property of the District, indicated that Congress intended to include in the penalized conduct every offense falling between common-law larceny and embezzlement, so that, at the very least, robbery, embezzlement and larceny of property belonging to the District of Columbia are outlawed by the statute. W. D. Mitchell et al. v. United States (1968, 394 F. 2d 767, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 292).

Knowledge of government ownership is a necessary element of offense condemned by statute relating to the embezzlement, stealing or purloining of any money, property or writing of the District of Columbia, since the statute, which provides more severe penalties than other statutes relating to petit larceny and petit embezzlement, would be a greater deterrent only if potential wrongdoers were aware that property they were intending to steal belonged to the District. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Acquittal

Where government was unable to show any motive for killing of victim nor was there any showing of prior threats or quarrels which might supply inference of premeditation and deliberation in defendant's killing of victim by multiple stab wounds inflicted with knife defendant had been carrying with him that night, government's evidence was insufficient to warrant submission of an issue of premeditation and deliberation to jury and defendant's motion for acquittal of first-degree murder should have been granted at conclusion of prosecution's case. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Appreciable time

"Appreciable time" charge in homicide prosecution is a meaningful way to convey to jury the core meaning of premeditation and deliberation and for that reason should be given at least where specifically requested by defense. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Court's refusal in homicide prosecution to state that the time one must have for deliberation be "some appreciable period of time" rather than "some period of time" as originally proposed by judge was compounded by charge of court that the time to deliberate may be in the nature of hours, minutes or seconds. Id.

Authority of jury

A jury may consider issue of second-degree murder on an indictment of first-degree felony-murder only if it finds some defect with proof as to felony-murder. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Evidence—Admissibility

Suspicion of codefendants charged with first-degree murder that some understanding existed that witness, who had also participated in alleged murder, might not be prosecuted or that he believed he would not be, was not sufficient to exclude his otherwise admissible testimony as to details of crime. R. T. Brown, J. D. Irby and R. L. Jones v. United States (1967, 375 F. 2d 310, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 134).

—— Sufficiency

In prosecution for first-degree murder under this section, eyewitness testimony describing shooting together with notes written by defendant prior to shooting indicating he contemplated murder and suicide were sufficient to establish elements of premeditation and deliberation. United States v. A. Sutton (1969, 426 F. 2d 1202, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Evidence, including testimony of girl friend of one defendant as to incriminating statements which both defendants made to her, sustained convictions for felony murder and for attempted robbery. A. Calloway and T. L. S. McCowey v. United States (1968, 399 F. 2d 1006, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 273).

Proof in homicide prosecution was legally sufficient to support a verdict predicated on thesis that shotgun was discharged killing victim while a robbery was then being attempted. E. M. Harrison and O. G. White v. United States (1967, 387 F. 2d 203, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction of one defendant of felony murder. Id.

Accused who put on defense to first-degree murder case did not thereby waive earlier motion for acquittal or expose himself to death penalty which government was not entitled to pursue in view of fact that at close of prosecution's case defendant was entitled to acquittal of first-degree murder charge because evidence adduced by prosecution was not sufficient to permit a reasonable man to find that elements of first-degree murder existed beyond reasonable doubt. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Evidence of eyewitness, corroborated by physical details otherwise in evidence, supported verdicts finding defendants guilty of first-degree murder and housebreaking. R. T. Brown, J. D. Irby and R. L. Jones v. United States (1967, 375 F. 2d 310, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 134).

First degree murder defined

First-degree murder requires premeditation and deliberation and covers calculated and planned killings while homicides that are unplanned or impulsive, even though they are intentional and with malice aforethought, are murder in the second degree. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Intentional murder is in the first degree if committed in cold blood and is murder in the second degree if committed on impulse or in the sudden heat of passion. Id.

Instructions

Since the trial judge's charge contained two erroneous instructions equating intent with malice as essential ingredient of murder and stating that law infers or presumes malice from use of deadly weapon in commission of homicide and both instructions were later reread to jury and jury returned verdict, not of first-degree murder, but of murder in second degree and the jury did not accept whole of government's evidence bearing on degree of defendant's culpability, instructional errors will be noticed by Court of Appeals despite defendant's failure to object at trial and require reversal of conviction of murder in second degree. United States v. A. Wharton (1970, 433 F. 2d 451, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Charge to a jury that in absence of explanatory circumstances the law infers or presumes malice from use of deadly weapon was error. K. Green v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1368, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 98).

In homicide prosecution, charge to jury which submitted first-degree murder, second-degree murder, and manslaughter and which contained statement that wrongful act intentionally done was done with malice was prejudicial error. Id.

Jury may be instructed on second-degree murder as lesser included offense though indictment is solely for felony-murder, W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Where an indictment charged in separate counts both first-degree felony-murder and first-degree premeditated murder and the trial judge charged with respect to both felony-murder and second-degree murder, in the absence of any request, motion or objection by the defendant, failure to further charge that jury, which returned verdicts of guilty both as to felony-murder and as to manslaughter as lesser included offense, should consider question of second-degree murder only if it determined that government had not met its burden as to some element of first-degree murder charged, was not plain error and was not reversible error. Id.

Charge in homicide prosecution should focus primarily on defendant's actual thought processes in terms of meditation and conscious weighing of alternatives and the appreciable time element is subordinate, necessary for but not sufficient to establish deliberation. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Analysis of jury would be illuminated if it is first advised that a typical case of first-degree murder is the murder in cold blood while murder committed on impulse or in sudden passion is murder in the second degree, and then instructed that a homicide conceived in passion constitutes murder in the first degree only if jury is convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that there was an appreciable time after design was conceived and that in this interval there was further thought and a turning over in the mind and not mere persistence of an initial impulse of passion. Id.

Lesser included offense

Where an indictment charges felony-murder, a verdict of second-degree murder is appropriate if there is proof from which the jury might reasonably find that defendant did not commit one of the enumerated felonies but was guilty of an intentional killing on impulse, and on this state of proof a charge of second-degree murder as a lesser included offense may be requested by prosecution or defense. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Malice

A wrongful act intentionally done is not therefore done with malice. K. Green v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1368, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 98).

Multiple counts

If prosecutor files in two counts of first-degree murder, once a charge of premeditated murder is struck as unsupported by sufficient evidence and that count is reduced to second-degree murder, defendant is entitled, on motion, to have entire count struck and to have issue of guilt as to second-degree murder submitted only as lesser included offense and only in the event of reasonable doubt of guilt of greater offense. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Right to counsel

Government's introduction at third murder trial of crucial testimony given by defendant at his first trial at which he did not have the constitutionally guaranteed right to assistance of counsel, impinged on defendant's constitutional rights requiring a reversal of his conviction for felony murder. E. M. Harrison and O. G. White v. United States (1967, 387 F. 2d 203, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

Unlawful killing

Unlawful killing in sudden heat of passion, whether produced by rage, resentment, anger, terror or fear is reduced from murder to manslaughter only if there was adequate provocation, such as might naturally induce a reasonable man in passion of the moment to lose some self-control and commit act on impulse and without reflection. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Jury may be instructed on second-degree murder as lesser included offense though indictment is solely for felony-murder. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

In a case where a juvenile had killed his father, and several witnesses had testified to juvenile's fear of his father, exclusion of testimony of juvenile's probation officer, that the juvenile had come to the officer several days before the shooting in order to seek his advice concerning the violent outbreaks of the father and that the officer had told juvenile to contact police whenever such outbreaks occurred, was not an abuse of discretion and was not prejudicial since proffered evidence was cumulative and more remote than the evidence already admitted which dealt with juvenile's state of mind on the day in question. In the Matter of M. Bumphus, Jr. (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 400).

Accidental and unintentional

Even an accidental or unintentional killing will constitute second-degree murder if accompanied by malice. R. L. Logan v. United States (1969, 411 F. 2d 679, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

The defendant correctly asserted that the commission of an act, the natural and probable consequences of which are less than death or great bodily harm does not imply malice. Id.

Acquittal

Where government was unable to show any motive for killing of victim nor was there any showing of prior threats or quarrels which might supply inference of premeditation and deliberation in defendant's killing of victim by multiple stab wounds inflicted with knife defendant had been carrying with him that night, government's evidence was insufficient to warrant submission of an issue of premeditation and deliberation to jury and defendant's motion for acquittal of first-degree murder should have been granted at conclusion of prosecution's case. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Alternative charge of first- and second-degree murder

Statute defining crimes of first- and second-degree murder do not impel requirement that they be charged in the alternative, as their substantive elements do not conflict. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Appreciable time

"Appreciable time" charge in homicide prosecution is a meaningful way to convey to jury the core meaning of premeditation and deliberation and for that reason should be given at least where specifically requested by defense. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Court's refusal in homicide prosecution to state that the time one must have for deliberation be "some appreciable period of time" rather than "some period of time" as originally proposed by judge was compounded by charge of court that the time to deliberate may be in the nature of hours, minutes, or seconds. Id.

Authority of jury

A jury may consider issue of second-degree murder on an indictment of first-degree felony-murder only if it finds some defect with proof as to felony-murder. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Construction

Purpose and effect of the "except" clause in the provision which states that whoever with malice aforethought, except as provided in sections defining first-degree murder, kills another is guilty of second-degree murder is that all homicides with malice are murder and punishable by maximum of life imprisonment set forth for murder in second-degree, except that those particularly heinous murders listed in first-degree section are punishable capitally. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Second-degree murder statute does not define substantive offense of second-degree murder so as to exclude therefrom all crimes that also come within first-degree murder statutes. Id.

Cumulative punishment

Although defendant may be found guilty under the first-degree murder and second-degree murder statute does not mean that he is subject to cumulative punishment. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Evidence—Sufficiency

There was ample evidence to support a conviction for second degree murder by willful and malicious actions R. L. Logan v. United States (1969, 411 F. 2d 679, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

Accused who put on defense to first-degree murder case did not thereby waive earlier motion for acquittal or expose himself to death penalty which government was not entitled to pursue in view of fact that at close of prosecution's case defendant was entitled to acquittal of first-degree murder charge because evidence adduced by prosecution was not sufficient to permit a reasonable man to find that elements of first-degree murder existed beyond reasonable doubt. *B. First-degree murder requires premeditation and deliberation and covers calculated and planned killings while homicides that are unplanned or impulsive, even though they are intentional and with malice aforethought, are murder in the second degree. *B. Intentional murder is in the first degree if committed in cold blood and is murder in the second degree if committed on impulse or in the sudden heat of passion. Id.

Impeachment

Failure of judge to exercise his discretion in admitting or refusing to admit as impeaching evidence three prior assaults of appellant, will not be a basis for reversing conviction. T. D. Lewis v. United States (1967, 381 F. 2d 894, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 115).

Instructions

Instruction that if the Government had proved beyond reasonable doubt that defendant had indeed committed acts disclosed by the evidence as a result of which the victim died but that the Government had failed to prove element of malice necessary to second-degree murder, jury may consider whether defendant was guilty of lesser included offense of manslaughter, did not improperly permit the jury to infer requisite malice if they accepted defendant's version that his assault was only of minor dimensions and not by itself sufficient to disclose intent to cause great or serious bodily harm. R. L. Logan v. United States (1969, 411 F. 2d 679, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

Charge to a jury that in absence of explanatory circumstances the law infers or presumes malice from use of deadly weapon was error. K. Green v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1368, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 98).

In homicide prosecution, charge to jury which submitted first-degree murder, second-degree murder, and manslaughter and which contained statement that wrongful act intentionally done was done with malice was prejudicial error. Id.

Jury may be instructed on second-degree murder as lesser included offense though indictment is solely for felony-murder. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Lesser included offense

Instructing on elements of lesser included offense of manslaughter where judge defined only voluntary and not involuntary manslaughter, it was not prejudicial to defendant as improperly precluding jury from rendering a verdict of involuntary manslaughter when defendant did not request involuntary manslaughter instruction, and elements of voluntary manslaughter were properly defined, and trial judge properly emphasized essential distinction between murder and manslaughter and presence or absence of malice. R. L. Logan v. United States (1969, 411 F. 2d 679, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

Where an indictment charges felony-murder, a verdict of second-degree murder is appropriate if there is proof from which the jury might reasonably find that defendant did not commit one of the enumerated felonies but was guilty of an intentional killing on impulse, and on this state of proof a charge of second-degree murder as a lesser included offense may be requested by prosecution or defense. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Malice

A wrongful act intentionally done is not therefore done with malice. K. Green v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1368, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 98).

Multiple counts

If prosecutor files in two counts of first-degree murder, once a charge of premeditated murder is struck as unsupported by sufficient evidence and that count is reduced to second-degree murder, defendant is entitled, on motion, to have entire count struck and to have issue of guilt as to second-degree murder submitted only as lesser included offense and only in the event of reasonable doubt of guilt of greater offense. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Reckless conduct as manslaughter

The court held that reckless conduct resulting in death may constitute manslaughter; the difference between that recklessness which displays depravity and such extreme and wanton disregard for human life as to constitute "malice" and that recklessness which amounts only to manslaughter lies in the quality of awareness of the risk. United States v. W. M. Dixon (1969 419 F. 2d 288, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 401).

Sufficiency of record on appeal

Record showed a preponderance of competent evidence to sustain conviction of the juvenile of manslaughter and assault with a deadly weapon, and decision of juvenile court that juvenile was within its jurisdiction and should be committed to custody of Department of Public Welfare for indeterminate period was proper. In the Matter of M. Bumphus, Jr. (D.C. App. 1969, 254 A. 2d 400).

Unlawful killing

Unlawful killing in sudden heat of passion, whether produced by rage, resentment, anger, terror or fear is reduced from murder to manslaughter only if there was adequate provocation, such as might naturally induce a reasonable man in passion of the moment to lose some self-control and commit act on impulse and without reflection. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

§ 22–2404. Punishment for murder in first and second degrees.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 11–502.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Alternative charge of first- and second-degree murder

Statute defining crimes of first- and second-degree murder do not impel requirement that they be charged in the alternative, as their substantive elements do not conflict. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 407 U.S. App. D.C. 132; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Appreciable time

"Appreciable time" charge in homicide prosecution is a meaningful way to convey to jury the core meaning of premeditation and deliberation and for that reason should be given at least where specifically requested by defense. B. Austin v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 129, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Court's refusal in homicide prosecution to state that the time one must have for deliberation be "some appreciable period of time" rather than "some period of time" as originally proposed by judge was compounded by charge of court that the time to deliberate may be in the nature of hours, minutes or seconds. Id.

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in murder prosecution by denying motion for bifurcated trial with two juries on issues of insanity and defense to the merits. W. L. Parman v. United States (1968, 399 F. 2d 559, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

Constitutionality

Statute providing that punishment for first-degree murder should be death unless jury by unanimous vote recommends otherwise did not needlessly penalize assertion of constitutional right and was not unconstitutional. A. Calloway and T. L. S. McCowey v. United States (1968, 399 F. 2d 1006, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 273).

Construction

Purpose and effect of the "except" clause in the provision which states that whoever with malice aforethought, except as provided in sections defining first-degree murder, kills another is guilty of second-degree murder is that all homicides with malice are murder and punishable by maximum of life imprisonment set forth for murder in second-degree except that those particularly heinous murders listed in first-degree section are punishable capitally. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 407 U.S. App. D.C. 132; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Second-degree murder statute does not define substantive offense of second-degree murder so as to exclude therefrom all crimes that also come within first-degree murder statutes. Id.

Cumulative punishment

Although defendant may be found guilty under the first-degree murder and second-degree murder statute does not mean that he is subject to cumulative punishment. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 407 U.S. App. D.C. 132; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

Evidence—Sufficiency

On this motion to vacate sentence for first-degree murder, the only evidence that petitioner consumed large quantities of alcohol prior to his arrest was his own testimony, and the evidence including testimony by police officers which indicated petitioner was not intoxicated, established beyond a reasonable doubt that petitioner was not intoxicated when he made oral confessions to police. H. F. Jarmans, Jr. v. United States (1969, 303 F. Supp. 763).

On this motion to vacate sentence for first-degree murder, although expert testimony conflicted as to state of petitioner's mental health at time he made oral inculpatory statements, the evidence established beyond a reasonable doubt that petitioner was without mental illness and that his normal will to protect himself was not impaired when he made inculpatory statements. Id.

Proof in homicide prosecution was legally sufficient to support a verdict predicated on thesis that shotgun was discharged killing victim while a robbery was then being attempted. E. M. Harrison and O. G. White v United States (1967, 387 F. 2d 303, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction of one defendant of felony murder. Id.

Right to counsel

Government's introduction at third murder trial of crucial testimony given by defendant at his first trial at which he did not have the constitutionally guaranteed right to assistance of counsel, impinged on defendant's constitutional rights requiring a reversal of his conviction for felony murder. E. M. Harrison and O. G. White v. United States (1967, 387 F. 2d 203, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

§ 22–2405. Punishment for manslaughter.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 11–502, 40–609a.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency

The court held that in this case the inebriant atmosphere, the heated arguments and the bantering back and forth clearly established sufficient evidence for jury to be able to find defendant, who fired fatal shot in attempting to break up argument between two others, guilty of manslaughter. United States v. W. M. Dixon (1969, 419 F. 2d 288, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 401).

Instructions

Since the evidence in this case is insufficient to give rise to reasonable doubt that defendant intended to shoot one of the young men in group standing near corner, the trial court did not err in failing to instruct jury on involuntary manslaughter. T. W. Simon v. United States (1970, 424 F. 2d 796, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 308).

The question of whether a defendant is entitled to involuntary manslaughter instruction depends on existence of at least some evidence in the record fairly tending to bear on issue of that offense. Id.

Recklessness as to accuracy of defendant's aim in shooting toward group of men standing near corner is not type of recklessness that would justify an involuntary manslaughter instruction since defendant did intend to shoot one of the men. Id.

Evidence of reckless conduct unintentionally resulting in death may form the basis for an involuntary manslaughter instruction. Id.

Defendant may not complain on appeal of deficiencies in instructions given by trial judge in manslaughter prosecution where none of alleged shortcomings were brought to the attention of trial court by appropriate objection or request. United States v. E. Carter (1969, 420 F. 2d 150, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 308).

Reckless conduct as manslaughter

The court held that reckless conduct resulting in death may constitute manslaughter; the difference between that recklessness which displays depravity and such extreme and wanton disregard for human life as to constitute "malice" and that recklessness which amounts only to manslaughter lies in the quality of awareness of the risk. United States v. W. M. Dixon (1969, 419 F. 2d 288, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 401).

(July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 698, ch. 492, § 8; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 243, ch. 254, § 6(a); July 29, 1970, Pub L. 91–358, title I, § 157(b), 84 Stat. 574.)

(Dec. 15, 1941, 55 Stat. 800, ch. 572, § 1; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 29, 1970, Pub. § 22–2701. Prostitution—Inviting for purposes of, prohibited.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22–2703, 22–3203.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Double jeopardy

Judgments were required to be vacated and nolle prosequi entered in cases which had been pending before Court of General Sessions where government's action in entering the nolle prosequis could not be characterized as an abuse of its power, and to allow government to file new informations at a subsequent date would to violate double jeopardy clause of Fifth Amendment. United States v. B. H. Foster (D.C. App. 1967, 226 A. 2d 164).

Waiver of jury trial

A defendant, charged with solicitation for immoral and lewd purpose of committing oral sodomy, was not entitled to jury trial in view of fact that such offense was not indictable at common law and that penalty imposed was not more than $250 or imprisonment for not more than 90 days or both. H. Gaithor v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 644).

§ 22–2707. Procurer—Punishment for receiving money or other valuable thing for arranging assignation or debauchery—Penalty.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Attempt

In this case the evidence was sufficient to sustain convictions for attempted procuring. J. R. Langley v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 503).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for attempted procuring, which showed that defendant and complaining witness bargained until they had agreed upon exchange of money, although uncertain in amount, for services of prostitute, and that immediately thereafter defendant led complaining witness a considerable distance to hotel unknown to witness where prostitute was supposedly waiting. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 187).

Constitutionality

This section, prohibiting receiving value for arranging for or causing female to engage in prostitution, debauchery, or any other immoral act, is not void for vagueness or so vague as to violate due process. J. R. Langley v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 503).

Corroborating witness

Failure of prosecution to produce second officer who as a corroborating witness could only have testified to time and place of defendant's arrest for attempted procuring because he did not hear conversation between arresting officer and defendant was not error in view of prosecution's effort to secure a continuance because second officer was in another court and defendant's then counsel's willingness to proceed to trial in second officer's absence. R. Blakney v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 654).

Elements of crime

Two principal elements of crime of procuring are the receipt of money and the arranging of an assignation. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A. 2d 187).

Instructions

In a prosecution for attempted procuring involving contents of conversation that concededly took place between defendant and officer at street corner, instruction that if witness testified falsely concerning any material fact, about which the witness could not be reasonably mistaken, all testimony of such witness could be disregarded, except such parts as were corroborated by other testimony, was not plain error requiring reversal in absence of objection. W. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 446).

In this case, instruction by trial court, in prosecution for attempted procuring, that jury must decide whether defendant had intent to procure female for immoral purposes, was proper when placed in context with entire charge as obviously referring to illegal sexual immoralities. J. R. Langley v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 503).

If any person shall break and enter or use a building, erection, or place so directed to be closed he shall be punished as for contempt, as provided in section 22–2716. The assessment of said tax shall be made by the assessor of the District of Columbia and shall be made within three months from the date of the granting of the permanent injunction. SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 11–502, 22–3501, 24–203.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Composition of jury

A defendant, convicted of statutory rape, but who was not given death sentence, was not prejudiced by fact that his case was treated as a capital case and people opposed to capital punishment were systematically excluded from jury which found him guilty. T. M. Springfield v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 572, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

Concurrent sentences

There was no resulting prejudice to a defendant in a case where concurrent sentences were imposed for crimes of carnal knowledge and housebreaking, as a result of error, if any, in failing to make out prima facie case of housebreaking. P. E. A. Duckett v. United States (1969, 410 F. 2d 1004, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Constitutionality

Statute which authorized jury to add words "with the death penalty" to verdict in rape case violates constitutional guarantee of right to jury trial but holding affects only those defendants whose trial began after April 8, 1968; overruling Lindsey v. United States, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 1, 133 F. 2d 368. J. Bailey and R. Humphries v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1352, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 82).

The penalty provisions of rape statute which permits jury to inflict capital punishment are unconstitutional because they inhibit defendants from exercising Fifth Amendment right not to plead guilty and Sixth Amendment right to a jury trial. T. M. Springfield v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 572, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

Conviction for carnal knowledge and taking indecent liberties

A defendant may not properly be convicted of both carnal knowledge and taking indecent liberties with minor child as result of one incident. United States v. W. D. Heard (1969, 420 F. 2d 628, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 60).

Since the defendant was charged with both carnal knowledge and taking indecent liberties with minor child, jury should have been instructed to first consider carnal knowledge offense and, if they found defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, sole verdict should have been guilty of that offense, but if they acquitted defendant of carnal knowledge they should have proceeded to consider whether defendant was guilty or not guilty of the crime of indecent liberties. Id.

Corroboration

Testimony of the complaining witness must be corroborated with respect to fact of sexual assault and generally must be corroborated as to identification of accused by complainant; but in both instances, corroboration need not be by "direct evidence", but may consist of proven circumstances which tend to support complainant's story. W. A. Carter, Jr. v. United States (1970, 427 F. 2d 619, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

The need for corroboration of complainant's testimony depends upon danger of falsity and danger of erroneous identification in rape case is not of same magnitude as danger of fabricated rape. Id.

Corrobation of evidence by medical evidence sustained conviction for carnal knowledge of 15-year-old complainant. P. E. A. Duckett v. United States (1969, 410 F. 2d 1004, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

There were sufficient corroborative facts and circumstances to merit submission to jury of a prosecution for carnally knowing female under 16 years of age. J. Bailey and R. Humphries v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1352, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 82).

Independent proof must exist that points to probable guilt of the defendant or at least corroborates indirectly testimony of prosecutrix to warrant a conviction of carnally knowing female under 16 years of age. Id.

There existed ample corroboration of identification of defendant charged with carnal knowledge to warrant jury to reach the conclusion of guilt. T. F. Dade v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 692, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 229).

Since prosecutrix in carnal knowledge prosecution positively identified defendant the day following the crime, and her description of event was supported by her prompt report, condition of her clothing, welts on her neck, and her reported emotional condition, and in view of absence of evidence casting doubt on her trustworthiness or credibility of her testimony that she had abundant and unfettered opportunity to observe defendant prior to the crime, her identification did not require further corroboration because of minimal danger of falsification. G. W. Thomas v. United States (1967, 387 F. 2d 191, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 233).

Due process

The court held that the refusal of the government to comply with Juvenile Court's pre-trial orders granting extensive discovery motions of each of the three juveniles, charged separately with rape, did not then and there deprive the juveniles of due process, equal protection of the law, or the deprivation of the right to effective assistance of counsel at trial, nor did it then and there establish a denial of the juveniles' right to a "fair trial". District of Columbia v. H. J. Jackson, C. M. Simpson and F. M. Alston (D.C. App. 1970, 261 A. 2d 511).

Evidence—Sufficiency

In this case, the evidence was sufficient to corroborate the testimony of complaint that identified the defendant as her attacker. W. A. Carter v. United States (1970, 427 F. 2d. 619, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In this case, the evidence in rape prosecution was sufficient to submit issue of victim's consent to jury and to support conviction for rape. B. J. Johnson v. United States (1970, 426 F. 2d 651, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Impartial jury

Where on voir dire only those jurors were excluded who could not under any circumstance render verdict of guilty with death penalty and one juror who was opposed to death penalty was seated and actually served, defendants sentenced under Federal Youth Corrections Act, after being found guilty of carnally knowing female under 16 years of age, were not entitled to reversal of conviction on ground that jury was not impartial. J. Bailey and R. Humphries v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1352, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 82).

Instructions

Instruction by trial court, in rape prosecution, that identification of assailant by the complaining witness may be sufficient if circumstances would convince of its accuracy beyond reasonable doubt and that, in considering accuracy of such identification, the jury could consider opportunity which complaining witness had to observe, or other factors and other evidence which may tend to corrobrate identification was adequate when considered in context of general instruction that there must be corroboration of testimony of complaining witness. W. A. Carter, Jr. v. United States (1970, 427 F. 2d 619, — U.S. App. D.C.—).

Refusal to give requested instruction as to requirement of corroboration of complainant's testimony that identified the defendant as her attacker was not error where the instruction in purporting to summarize evidence corroborating complainant's testimony, presented incomplete, diluted and inaccurate statement of evidence that might have had tendency to mislead jury. Id.

In this case the failure of trial judge in prosecution for carnal knowledge of female under 16 years of age to instruct the jury on need for corroboration of prosecutrix' identification of defendant was not cause for reversal since no objection was made at trial and such instruction was not requested by defense counsel. United States v. J. Dews (1969, 417 F. 2d 753, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 185).

In this case the failure of trial judge in prosecution for carnal knowledge of female under 16 years of age to instruct on lesser included offenses was not reversible error since objection was not taken to portion of charge given and such instruction was not requested. Id.

The court's instruction that the jury could find defendant guilty of both carnal knowledge and taking indecent liberties with minor child as result of same incident was error. United States v. W. D. Heard (1969, 420 F. 2d 628, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 60).

Defendants who were convicted of carnally knowing a female under 16 years of age were not prejudiced because jury was instructed that the statute permitted them to impose the death penalty, even though such provision of the statute was constitutionally invalid, where prosecutor specifically stated that he was not going to seek the death penalty and presented no evidence to that end. J. Bailey and R. Humphries v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1352, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 82).

Jencks Act

In this case, the court held that refusal to submit to jury complainant's Jencks Act statement, which had not been offered or received in evidence, was not error. W. A. Carter, Jr. v. United States (1970, 427 F. 2d 619, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Newly discovered evidence

Defendant who was convicted of carnally knowing female under 16 years of age was not entitled to a new trial upon newly discovered evidence consisting of discrepancies in testimony of prosecutrix and her mother at the trial of one defendant's younger brother for the same offense. J. Bailey and R. Humphries v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1352, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 82).

Partial invalidity of statute

Invalidity of portion of a statute which permitted the jury to impose the death penalty upon a person convicted of carnally knowing female under 16 years of age did not render remainder of statute invalid. J. Bailey and R. Humphries v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1352, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 82).

Invalidity of statutory provision which permitted the jury to impose death penalty upon person convicted of carnally knowing female under 16 years of age did not render invalid convictions of defendants who received trial by completely fair and impartial jury and were not intimidated by threat of death into either waiving trial by jury or pleading guilty. Id.

Pre-trial discovery

The court held that any exculpatory information in government's possession should be given, in accordance with juveniles' request, to the three juveniles charged separately with rape. District of Columbia v. H. J. Jackson, C. M. Simpson and F. M. Alston (D.C. App. 1970, 261 A. 2d 511).

Remedy on appeal

Although defendant who was charged with both carnal knowledge and with taking indecent liberties with minor child did not request that the jury consider indecent liberties charge only after an acquittal of carnal knowledge and jury convicted defendant on both charges after being erroneously instructed that conviction on one charge should not influence verdict on other charge, the proper remedy was to remand case with instruction to vacate judgment of conviction of taking indecent liberties with minor child. United States v. W. D. Heard (1969, 420 F. 2d 628, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 60).

Treatment as a capital case

Defendants were not prejudiced because case was submitted to the jury as a capital case although a provision in the statute which authorized the jury to impose the death penalty for carnally knowing female under 16 years of age was constitutionally invalid, inasmuch as jury was offered no choice as to offenses for which defendant could be found guilty and prosecution made it clear it was not seeking the death penalty. J. Bailey and R. Humphries v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1352, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 82).

Trial procedure

Defendant, who was convicted of statutory rape, but was not given a death sentence, was not prejudiced by the fact that the case was treated as a capital one, on ground that the verdict of guilty may have been a compromise, where prosecution never requested death penalty or even adverted to it, and trial judge gave it only a one-sentence mention in the charge to jury. T. M. Springfield v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 572, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

Chapter 29.—ROBBERY

Whoever by force or violence, whether against resistance or by sudden or stealthy seizure or snatching, or by putting in fear, shall take from the person or immediate actual possession of another anything of value, is guilty of robbery, and any person convicted thereof shall suffer imprisonment for not less than two years nor more than fifteen years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 810; Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, § 603, title VI, 81 Stat. 737.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 11–502, 22–2902, 23–546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

In robbery prosecution of pickpocket who allegedly took wallet from purse of lady in line of people outside White House grounds waiting to gain entrance to observe children's annual Easter egg roll, denial of request to instruct the jury on lessor included offense of larceny was not abuse of discretion. R. T. Davis, Jr. v. United States (1970, 433 F. 2d 1222, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

The trial judge did not exceed his discretion when he ruled that prosecutor would be allowed to impeach defendant, if he testified, with two earlier convictions for petit larceny. Id.

The decision of the trial court, rendered after hearing on admissibility, that 1959 conviction of one defendant for housebreaking and larceny and 1962 conviction of another defendant for attempted housebreaking could be brought out on cross-examination in robbery prosecution unless either defendant could satisfy court that since conviction he had led legally blameless life, was not an abuse of discretion. United States v. J. L. Bailey et ano. (1970, 426 F. 2d 1236, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In robbery prosecution in this section, in which store detective testified that he saw defendant and codefendant enter store together and saw defendant bump shopper while codefendant opened pocketbook and remove wallet, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in admitting expert testimony on modus operandi of pickpockets. United States v. O. J. Jackson (1970, 425 F. 2d 574, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

It was not an abuse of discretion to deny impeachment of complaining witness in prosecution for robbery by reference to complaining witness' prior convictions for assault and rape affecting substantial rights of defendants where impeachment of the witness with three convictions for crimes of auto theft, robbery, and burglary, each crime having element of dishonesty, was permitted. G. A. Davis, et al. v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 453, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 167).

Bifurcated trial

Refusal of trial court to grant bifurcated trial sought on ground that defendant would defend on ground of want of criminal responsibility, was not reversible error where defense assured trial court that there was no defense on merits, and evidence to prove that defendant was one who robbed filling station was very strong. United States v. R. A. Grimes (1969, F. 2d 1119, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 184).

Concurrent sentences

Since concurrent sentences raised substantial question as to whether Congress intended Federal sentence to be cumulative to sentence for state violation for what was factually same offense, Federal sentence would be vacated without deciding question, inasmuch as this course will not result in overriding needs of government, and interests of justice will be served by avoiding substantial time and effort required for deciding question and by devoting limited resources of courts confronted with ever-mounting dockets to determination of issues that must be decided. United States v. J. L. Hooper (1970, 432 F. 2d 604, — U.S. App. D.C.—).

Consecutive sentences

It is proper to increase punishment where there have been convictions under the conventional robbery statute and under statute prohibiting assaults with a dangerous weapon by imposing consecutive sentences. United States v. J. L. Suggs and C. Blair (1967, 269 F. Supp. 732).

Defendant, who allegedly committed crime of assault with a dangerous weapon in parking lot of store or near door to store, and who allegedly committed a robbery in office of store could be given consecutive sentences upon being convicted for both crimes. Id.

Consecutive sentences for two separate offenses

The distinctions that assault and petit larceny are separate and distinct offenses requiring different elements of proof, and that one is a crime of general intent against the person, and the other a crime of specific intent against property, are no longer conclusive in determining the legality of consecutive sentences for two crimes committed in a single course of conduct. G. Mahoney v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 684).

The compelling reasons which call for the application of the rule of lenity are absent in this case, and there is no substantial doubt Congress would have intended, in the discretion of the court, that consecutive punishment be imposed for historically separate offenses, against different societal interests, for which it has provided separate deterrents. Id.

Cross-examination

Record of prosecution for robbery and other offenses wherein defendant, who was denied bifurcated trial, claimed want of criminal responsibility and testified as to his state of mind did not show that the trial court, in its rulings on particular questions asked on cross-examination of defendant, substantially departed from court's ruling that it would allow cross-examination as to defendant's state of mind but not as to possible participation in offense. United States v. R. A. Grimes (1969, 421 F. 2d 1119, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 184).

Determination of sentence

Although defendant, who was found guilty of robbery by a jury, continued to assert his innocence at allocution, this fact could not properly be considered in determining sentence to be imposed. V. E. Scott v. United States (1969, 419 F. 2d 264, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

The court's belief that defendant committed perjury on witness stand in denying participation in robbery with which he was charged could not properly be considered in determining sentence to be imposed. Id.

Due process

Defendant's claim that continuation of his robbery trial, after his codefendant changed his plea to guilty at completion of government's case and after trial judge, in questioning codefendant, elicited statement that implicated defendant, constituted denial of due process is not valid, either on theory that trial judge, having heard statement, would be prejudiced against defendant or on theory that jury must have realized that codefendant had changed his plea and must have been improperly influenced thereby in passing on defendant's guilt. V. E. Scott v. United States of America (1969, 419 F. 2d 264, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

Evidence

Prosecution may not affirmatively use at trial defendant's testimony in support of motion to suppress evidence. W. E. Pendergast v. United States (1969, 416 F. 2d 776, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 20, cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 1782).

—— Sufficiency

Evidence in this case, including evidence of defendant's in-trial identification and testimonial references to pretrial forerunners, sustained conviction for robbery and assault with dangerous weapon. United States v. T. McNair (1970, 433 F. 2d 1132, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In robbery prosecution of pickpocket who allegedly took wallet from purse of lady in line of people outside White House grounds waiting to gain entrance to observe children's annual Easter egg roll, evidence was sufficient to permit the jury to conclude beyond reasonable doubt that the defendant gained possession of the purse from the immediate actual possession of the lady. R. T. Davis, Jr. v. United States (1970, 433 F. 2d 1222, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In this case in light of the evidence on issue of whether offense was product of mental illness, conviction for robbery of property belonging to United States, assault with a dangerous weapon and carrying dangerous weapon would be affirmed. T. H. Adams v. United States (1969, 413 F. 2d 411, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 137).

The evidence portrayed in a view most favorable to the Government, of defendant's presence at scene of crime, his slight association with actual perpetrator, and subsequent flight, did not sustain conviction for robbery. J. L. Bailey v. United States (1969, 416 F. 2d 1110, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 95).

In a robbery prosecution, government made out a case sufficient to go to the jury. H. J. Macklin v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 174, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 139).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain robbery conviction of pickpockets. R. T. Davis, Jr., et ano. v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 458, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 172).

Impeachment

Cross-examination of defendant during which the prosecution was permitted to develop that for some time prior to date of offense defendant had been absent from his military post without leave was improper, and the prejudice was magnified by the erroneous admission of government's rebuttal evidence as to defendant's absence from military post. United States v. W. A. Shumate et ano. (1970, 429 F. 2d 777, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In prosecution for, inter alia, robbery, where defendant testified, after being denied bifurcated trial, the trial court did err in permitting impeachment by showing prior offense of housebreaking, though it had occurred six years earlier and defendant had pleaded guilty to the housebreaking offense. United States v. R. A. Grimes (1969, 421 F. 2d 1119, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 184).

Where defense raises issue of whether evidence of defendant's prior convictions should be excluded from trial for purposes of impeaching defendant's credibility when he testifies, even though burden of persuasion remains on defendant, there is a duty on judge to make sufficient inquiry to inform himself on relevant considerations L. B. Jones v. United States (1968, 402 F. 2d 639, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 88)

On showing that defendant's testimony at his trial for robbery was essential because prosecution based whole case on delayed identification by complaining witness and therefore decision depended on credibility, trial judge's permitting evidence of defendant's prior conviction of assault to be introduced to impeach defendant's credibility was an abuse of discretion. Id.

Crime of assault is remotely, if at all, probative on issue of veracity of a defendant who testifies at his own trial. Id.

Included offense

Larceny is a necessarily included offense of robbery. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 1116, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Instructions

The court properly instructed that the defendant's exclusive possession of property recently stolen from robbery victims was a basis for permissible inference that defendant was one of the robbers unless that possession was satisfactorily explained by the evidence even though prosecution had eyewitness testimony regarding the defendant's acquisition of the property which was in conflict with the explanatory testimony produced by defense. W. E. Pendergast v. United States (1969, 416 F. 2d 776, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 20, cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 1782).

Intent to commit other crime

There is no statutory requirement for either robbery or assault with a dangerous weapon, that there be a specific intent to commit the other. United States v. J. L. Suggs and C. Blair (1967, 269 F. Supp. 732).

Limited affirmance

In this case where the evidence was sufficient to sustain a conviction of unauthorized use of automobile but the court had doubts as to its sufficiency to support convictions for robbery and for transporting stolen vehicle across state line in violation of Dyer Act, sentence of youthful offenders under Federal Youth Corrections Act would be affirmed in interest of justice limited to a conviction of unauthorized use of automobile. C. S. Kee and W. J. Johnson v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 465, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 249).

Merger of offenses

Convictions of appellant on the three charges of entering with intent to rob were not permissible where appellant was convicted of actual taking or robbery, since those offenses in the circumstances merged into completed robberies. B. A. Bryant v. United States (1969, 417 F. 2d 555, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 138).

Model Instruction

Model instructions was proposed by the court for use in robbery and larceny cases. W. E. Pendergast v. United States (1969, 416 F. 2d 776, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 20, cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 1782).

Photographic identification

In a prosecution for robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon, where robbery victim on morning after robbery was shown 15 photographs depicting males of various ages, including one photograph of defendant that was not highlighted so as to prompt its selection and victim identified defendant's photograph, which was sixth photograph shown to him, as that of robber and remained firm in such identification after examining remaining photographs, such identification did not deny due process and did not vitiate subsequent in-court identification. United States v. E. L. Hamilton (1969, 420 F. 2d 1292, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 89).

There was a serious and irreconcilable breach of due process of law in view of circumstances surrounding photographic identification of defendants, including the fact that one robbery victim was shown only the photographs of the four suspects, that those photographs contained police markings, and that there was no necessity whatsoever for a photographic identification since the suspects had been apprehended, established that the identification procedure was "so impermissibly suggestive as to give rise to a very substantial likelihood of irreparable misidentification". United States v. S. Washington, Jr., et al. (1968, 292 F. Supp. 284).

Evidence, including the fact that the defendants were not brought to trial until more than two years after the robbery, and that the robbery victims had never seen any of the individuals involved in the crime prior to the event, established that an in-court identification of the defendants by the robbery victims would not have been arrived at independent of improper photographic identifications secured by the police. Id.

Pickpocketing

"Pickpocketing," or robbery by stealth, is a crime which, by its very nature, is difficult of proof; unexplained possession plus suspecious circumstances can be submitted to the sound discretion of the jury. R. T. Davis, Jr. v. United States (1970, 433 F. 2d 1222, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Prejudicial error

In this case, assuming that failure of the trial judge to inform defendant's counsel of larceny charge before he summed up constituted error, where defendant was indicted for robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, however, that failure lacked the prejudice necessary to constitute reversible error where, inter alia, defendant's admission in open court established his intention and his attempt to trick complainants, so that damage was done when defendant took the stand and it was not likely that a variation in summation would have changed the verdict. W. Walker, Jr. v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 1116, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Pretrial hearing

Where a victim tentatively identified the defendant from a photograph shown him about a month after the crime of robbery but police waited seven months thereafter before arresting the defendant though defendant was living at his mother's apartment and working, as police were aware, a few blocks from his home, the defendant was entitled to a full pretrial hearing in which the government would be given an opportunity to justify seven-month delay in defendant's arrest and in which the defendant would be given opportunity to show extent to which delay prejudiced him. L. B. Jones v. United States (1968, 402 F. 2d 639, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 88).

Probable cause

Victim's physical condition and his positive identification of defendant as participant in robbery were sufficient to give arresting officer probable cause to arrest defendant. W. E. Pendergast v. United States (1969, 416 F. 2d 776, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 20, cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 1782).

Probable cause for arrest

In a case where police officers in plain clothes saw two defendants who were known to the officers to be pickpockets get onto bus, and the first defendant bumped into the victim, and second defendant brushed up against the victim, and officers arrested the second defendant, and search disclosed keycase of the victim, there was probable cause for arrest of the second defendant, and district court properly denied motion of defendants to suppress the keycase in robbery prosecution. R. T. Davis, Jr. et ano. v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 458, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 172).

Question for Jury

In prosecution for robbery and assault with dangerous weapon, whether the defendant was one of holdup men in robbery of shoe store was question for jury. United States v. J. E. York (1969, 426 F. 2d 1191, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Release on personal recognizance

Appellant, who was convicted of robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, and whose appeal presented a substantial claim that he was wrongfully identified, was ordered released on personal recognizance on certain enumerated conditions which were so structured as to allow for a maximum amount of supervision over appellant while still allowing for his freedom from incarceration. W. Banks v. United States (1969, 414 F. 2d 1150, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

Reversible error

Question regarding defendant's financial condition in prosecution for robbery, though error, did not require reversal where one defendant did not object at the trial and other defendant did not object that it resulted in prejudice until after line of questioning had been completed. G. A. Davis, et al. v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 453, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 167).

Review

Issues as to whether trial court erred in permitting prosecutor to impeach defendant with cross-examination respecting prior conviction of assault and in permitting prosecutor to impeach defense witness with cross-examination respecting her chastity would not be noticed for the first time on appeal from conviction for assault with intent to commit robbery. C. E. Green v. United States (1968, 397 F. 2d 643, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 82).

—— Remand

Since counsel for defendant, convicted of robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon, was not appointed until almost one year after offense, counsel was appointed slightly more than one month before trial, although counsel's failure to appear on date case was first set was allegedly due to misunderstanding case was not removed from ready calendar, and it was alleged that counsel had inaequate time in which to obtain specified physical evidence and interview specified witnesses, reviewing court remanded case to trial court for determination whether new trial should be granted on ground of uneffective assistance of counsel. United States v. W. D. Weaver (1970, 422 F. 2d 711, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 274).

Revocation of probation

Where trial court had imposed a suspended sentence conditioned upon satisfactory completion of three years on probation after conviction of robbery, such probation was revoked on request of United States Probation Officer and on appeal the Court of Appeals remanded the case for preparation of statement of evidence, reporter's notes of hearing being unavailable, and parties were unable to reconstruct such statement and a de novo hearing was held and sentencing judge reaffirmed the revocation of probation, the revocation was not an abuse of discretion. T. Hurt v. United States (1966, 374 F. 2d 283, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 69).

§ 22–2902. Attempt to commit robbery.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Arrest without warrant

A police officer, who received a report from man that defendant appeared to have robbed a girl and started to walk toward defendant, who called a scout car for assistance when the defendant began running from officer, had probable cause for a warrantless arrest of defendant. A. B. Clarke v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 782).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence, including testimony of girl friend of one defendant as to incriminating statements which both defendants made to her, sustained convictions for felony murder and for attempted robbery. A. Calloway and T. L. S. McCowey v. United States (1968, 399 F. 2d 1006, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 273).

Chapter 31.—TRESPASS—INJURIES TO PROPERTY

§ 22–3102. Unlawful entry on property.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23–581.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Bona fide entry

Person who enters building for good purpose and with bona fide belief of his right to enter is not guilty of an unlawful entry in violation of District of Columbia statute. T. J. McGloin v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 90).

Concurrent sentences

Where defendants received concurrent sentences in prosecution for possession of narcotics, possession of implements of crime, unlawful entry and narcotics vagrancy and evidence was sufficient to support conviction of possession of narcotics and possession of implements of crime, District of Columbia Court of Appeals would not pass upon sufficiency of evidence to support other convictions. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Construction

In this case, the court held that the conduct of defendants charged with unlawful entry in refusing to quit steps of United States capitol after being ordered to do so by chief of capitol police and in reading names of Vietnam war dead in ordinary speaking voice did not come within prohibition of Capitol Grounds statute as interpreted. United States v. J. Nicholson et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 56).

Custodial interrogation

Questions addressed to three defendants by arresting officers seeking an explanation for defendants' being in condemned house were noncoercive and not "custodial interrogation" within rule of Miranda v. State of Arizona. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Duty to arrest

When police detectives saw narcotics paraphernalia in possession of defendants, officers were under statutory duty to arrest the offenders immediately. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Elements of offense

One of the necessary elements for unlawful entry conviction is proof that the defendant entered or attempted to enter premises without lawful authority against the will of its lawful occupant. W. H. Dent v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 699).

Defendant who was found wandering by police officer inside of four-unit apartment building and on the roof and fire escape thereof could properly be convicted of unlawful entry under District of Columbia statute without showing that owner had not given an express warning that he should stay out of building. T. J. McGloin v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 90).

Evidence—Admissibility

Prosecuting witness' testimony, in prosecution under this section, that she had had conversation with defendant as to whether or not he was entitled to go into her apartment on occasion when he had come in and beaten her up was admissible in that such testimony, along with her direct testimony that she had not given defendant permission to enter premises, bore directly upon defendant's lack of lawful authority to enter witness' apartment. W. H. Dent. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 699).

Where defendants' arrest for narcotics violations was legal, narcotics paraphernalia seized at time of the arrest was properly admitted in defendants' joint trial for narcotics violations. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

—— Sufficiency

Evidence, including evidence as to exclusive control or possession of television in defendant, sustained conviction for unlawful entry and petit larceny. J. L. Benboro v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 772).

Evidence supported conviction for unlawful entry. L. Perry v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 721).

Evidence, which showed that appellant was found in parts of the airlines' offices which were not open to the public and where he had no right to be, sustained conviction for unlawful entry. V. J. Bond, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 233 A. 2d 506).

Ineffective assistance of counsel

Fact that new counsel was appointed not more than 60 minutes before trial did not amount to ineffective assistance of counsel of defendant charged with simple assault, unlawful entry and petit larceny where no continuance was requested and defendant announced he was ready for trial, factual situation was not so complex as to necessitate any extensive investigation and there were no witnesses for the defense who could have been called, new counsel was experienced and diligent and made no claim that he was hampered by appointment shortly before trial. S. A. Tuttle v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 238 A. 2d 590).

Information—Sufficiency of

Defendants, who were arrested after refusing to move out of corridor in House wing of Capitol building when ordered to do so by Capitol police, were entitled to know with certainty offense with which they were charged and possible penalty threatened and were entitled to definite reference to the law which they had allegedly violated, and thus where, notwithstanding request of defense, no one had given citation of statute under which prosecution was being had, other than statement of prosecutor that two sections were involved, convictions under section carrying lighter sentence, as requested by prosecutor, were required to be set aside. D. Smith et al. v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 233, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 275).

Lawful arrest

Police officer who observed defendant in hallway of building and, upon questioning defendant, received no logical explanation for his presence and who thereupon learned from building manager that the building was usually kept locked and the public was not invited to enter had sufficient ground to arrest defendant for unlawful entry committed in officer's presence, and after that valid arrest, the right to search defendant naturally followed. W. C. Best v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 825).

Lesser included offense rule

Lesser included offense rule was properly applied when court instructed jury that the offense of larceny from interstate commerce, for which offense appellant was charged, included the lesser offense of taking property without right, an offense for which appellant was not charged, and since sentence for taking property without right ran concurrently with sentence for unlawful entry, court need not consider claim of error predicated on the instruction. W. E. Humphrey v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 236 A. 2d 438).

Prosecution by indictment

Prosecution by indictment for unlawful entry was not constitutionally required where defendant was subject to imprisonment for more than one year when sentenced under the Federal Youth Corrections Act. A. E. Harvin v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 245 A. 2d 307).

Review—Remand

In a case in which guilty verdict was ambiguous for failure to state whether it referred to offense of housebreaking or to offense of unlawful entry, the court held that remand for new trial was appropriate remedy. K. F. Glenn v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 1323, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

Verdict

Where defendant was charged with housebreaking and jury was instructed on elements of both housebreaking and on lesser included offense of unlawful entry and returned one word verdict of "guilty" without specifying to which offense this finding related, the verdict is ambiguous and conviction for housekeeping cannot be founded upon it. K. F. Glenn v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 1323, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

§ 22–3105. Placing explosives with intent to destroy or injure property.

Whoever places, or causes to be placed, in, upon, under, against, or near to any building, car, vessel, monument, statue, or structure, gunpowder or any explosive substance of any kind whatsoever, with intent to destory, throw down, or injure the whole or any part thereof, although no damage is done, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and by imprisonment for not less than two years or more than ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 825a, as added Mar. 3, 1905, 33 Stat. 1033, ch. 1461; Dec. 27, 1967, Pub. L. 90–226, § 607, title VI, 81 Stat. 739.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Information—Sufficiency of

Information charging defendant arrested during peace demonstration with disorderly conduct in that she did with intent to provoke breach of peace congregate with others on public street and on grounds of United States Capitol, and did refuse to move, which failed to specify which of several potentially applicable statutes was basis of prosecution, was insufficient. D. Feeley v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 216, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

Defendants, who were arrested after refusing to move out of corridor in House wing of Capitol building when ordered to do so by Capitol police, were entitled to know with certainty offense with which they were charged and possible penalty threatened and were entitled to definite reference to the law which they had allegedly violated, and thus where, notwithstanding request of defense, no one had given citation of statute under which prosecution was being had, other than statement of prosecutor that two sections were involved, convictions under section carrying lighter sentence, as requested by prosecutor, were required to be set aside. D. Smith et al. v. District of Columbia (1967, 387 F. 2d 233, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 275).

§ 22–3203. Unlawful possession of a pistol.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22–3207, 22–3208, 22–3210, 24–203.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Assistance of counsel

The record did not sustain the claim of ineffective assistance of counsel who was a defense attorney with many years of experience and who presented all substantial defenses, made appropriate motions and objections, attempted to suppress the evidence on the charge of unlawful possession of a pistol after conviction of a felony, and was able to obtain acquittal on a charge of threats to do bodily harm and directed verdict in defendant's favor on a charge of assault by threatening in a menacing manner. I. Gressette v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 418).

Double jeopardy

In a case where a defendant waived his right to jury trial and the government entered nolle prosequi after witnesses had been sworn, but before the first witness began to testify, jeopardy did not attach and did not bar subsequent prosecution for carrying pistol without a license. C. R. Newman v. United States (1969, 410 F. 2d 259, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 271).

Where defendant was charged by information with violation of statute which makes it unlawful for one to own or have in his possession a pistol if previously convicted of possession of a prohibited weapon, and before any witness took stand prosecuting attorney announced that Government could not go forward with charge and would nolle prosse it and bring new charge of carrying a pistol without a license, plea of double jeopardy was not a valid plea in new prosecution because the two informations charged separate and distinct offenses. C. R. Newman v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 152).

Subject of search

Under the circumstances of this case, it was not unreasonable for officers to seize pistol which, as convicted felon, defendant was forbidden to possess, incidental to authorized search of his apartment for narcotics, in absence of showing that presence of pistol on premises was attributable to eight-day delay in execution of search warrant. J. E. Curtis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 653).

§ 22–3204. Carrying concealed weapons.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22–3203, 22–3205.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Acquiescence in plea of insanity

Where petitioner had not himself sought introduction of insanity defense at his trial and had not acquiesced in assertion of that defense, his commitment to hospital for the mentally ill following his acquittal by reason of insanity was not authorized and he was entitled to habeas corpus. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Appeal and error

Record in prosecution for carrying a pistol without a license in violation of this section supported finding that defendant, to whom Miranda warnings were read by policeman from standard police form and who was given the form to read in police station before being questioned, but who was not asked if he understood contents of form, had been sufficiently informed of his right to remain silent and to counsel. M. J. Brewster v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 409).

In view of the overwhelming evidence that the particular address claimed by defendant to be his dwelling house was not his dwelling house, any error with respect to whether defendant waived any of his constitutional rights to remain silent and to counsel before being questioned as to his residence was harmless. Id.

Where record showed that defendant was found in possession of concealed weapon and his own testimony on trial confirmed such fact, absence of indication that defendant made informed decision, after appropriate advice, to proceed with joint counsel did not require reversal of conviction for carrying concealed weapon. F. J. Ford v. United States of America (1967, 379 F. 2d 123, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 346).

Bifurcated trial

Refusal of trial court to grant bifurcated trial, sought on ground that defendant would defend on ground of want of criminal responsibility, was not reversible error where defense assured trial court that there was no defense on merits, and evidence to prove that defendant was one who robbed filling station was very strong. United States v. R. A. Grimes (1969, 421 F. 2d 1119, 137 U.S. App. D. C. 184).

Burden of proving exception

Defendant had burden of bringing himself within statutory exception to offense charged rather than that of the prosecution to negative it. M. L. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 539).

Consent to defense of insanity

Finding that petitioner himself sought introduction of insanity defense at his trial was clearly erroneous in view of evidence, including evidence that new counsel retained by petitioner's mother did not confer with petitioner prior to filing motion for pretrial mental examination and that petitioner did not even know new counsel's identity when he saw him at hearing on the motion and thought that he was still being represented by assigned counsel. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Finding that petitioner evidenced his acquiescence in insanity defense by waiting almost four years to attack validity of his mandatory commitment to hospital for the mentally ill was not warranted in light of petitioner's apparent disabilities, including his lack of financial means and learning in the law and the likelihood that he had been suffering from some mental illness. Id.

Constitutional rights

Because police questioning concerning defendant's address could be incriminating in view of charge of violating this section prohibiting carrying an unlicensed pistol except in one's dwelling house, Fifth Amendment applies to questioning concerning defendant's address and the required constitutional warnings as to right to remain silent and right to counsel are also applicable. M. J. Brewster v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 409).

Failure to show that defendant was advised of constitutional rights at time of arrest did not entitle him to reversal of conviction for carrying deadly weapon, absent introduction of any statements made by him. W. C. Best v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 F. 2d 825).

Constitutionality

Statute prohibiting carrying of concealed deadly or dangerous weapon is not unconstitutionally vague or indefinite in its prohibition of objects which are not ordinarily carried about person for personal convenience or for a legitimate purpose. J. L. Scott v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 54).

Statute which makes it an offense to carry a pistol without a license was not so clearly unconstitutional as a violation of defendant's constitutional right to keep and bear arms that it should have been ruled upon by trial court despite defendant's failure to raise the point in trial court, and, in such circumstances, the Court of Appeals would decline to exercise its discretion to consider the constitutional question raised for first time on appeal. M. L. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 F. 2d 539).

Continuance

The granting or refusal of a continuance is largely left to discretion of the trial judge, and his decision will not be disturbed without a clear showing of abuse in the exercise of that discretion. W. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 235 A. 2d 574).

Dangerous purpose

Instrument may be dangerous in its ordinary use as contemplated by its design and construction, or where the purpose of carrying the object, under the circumstances, is its use as a weapon. J. L. Scott v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 54).

Statute prohibiting carrying of concealed deadly or dangerous weapon does not prohibit carrying of knives for a legitimate purpose. Id.

Statute prohibiting carrying of concealed deadly or dangerous weapon outlaws carrying of otherwise useful object where the surrounding circumstances, such as the time and place the defendant was found in possession of such instrument, or the alteration of the object, indicate that the possessor would use the instrument for a dangerous purpose. Id.

Dangerous weapon

The test of whether the object being carried by an accused is a dangerous weapon is whether the purpose of carrying the object, under circumstances, is its use as weapon. A. B. Clarke v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 782)

In a case where the defendant was carrying the razor in company of an armed companion in a crowded, commercial area of the city in late afternoon, and defendant was apprehended after he ran up an alley at approach of a police officer investigating citizen's report concerning him, jury was apprised of circumstances sufficiently probative to allow them to conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that razor was being carried as deadly or dangerous weapon. Id.

Under certain circumstances a hawk-bill knife can be a "dangerous weapon" within statute. W. C. Best v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 825).

Evidence supported finding that hawk-bill knife found in pocket of defendant who was unable to explain his presence in hallway of building which was usually kept locked and which public was not invited to enter constituted a "dangerous weapon" within statute. Id.

Deadly or dangerous weapon

A "deadly or dangerous weapon" is one which is likely to produce death or great bodily injury by the use made of it. J. L. Scott v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 54).

Evidence that knife taken from defendant in movie theater was ten inches long when extended with blade slightly more than four and one-half inches from shank to tip supported finding that knife was a deadly weapon within meaning of statute prohibiting carrying of concealed deadly or dangerous weapon. Id.

Deadly weapon

Hawk-billed linoleum clasp knife with three and a half-inch blade altered to open 270 degrees was properly determined to be a "deadly weapon" and was unlawfully carried. L. Perry v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 721).

Delay in charging defendant with felony

The United States Attorney has responsible role in implementing possibility that crimes of violence may be deterred by visiting severe punishment upon convicted felon later found carrying deadly weapon. R. W. Epperson v. United States (1967, 371 F. 2d 956, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 303).

The courts will not skimp in affording prosecutor opportunity to obtain and appraise prior record of accused in order to determine whether to seek felony conviction for carrying dangerous weapon without license. Id.

Double jeopardy

Where defendant was charged by information with violation of statute which makes it unlawful for one to own or have in his possession a pistol if previously convicted of possession of a prohibited weapon, and before any witness took stand prosecuting attorney announced that Government could not go forward with charge and would nolle prosse it and bring new charge of carrying a pistol without a license, plea of double jeopardy was not a valid plea in new prosecution because the two informations charged separate and distinct offenses. C. R. Newman v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 152).

Evidence—Admissibility

Where defendant was acting in a suspicious manner outside store, officers who were at store to investigate earlier robbery acted reasonably in asking defendant for identification and in seizing pistol as defendant disclosed its presence in the form of a bulge under his waistband while pulling his coat aside in an apparent effort to reach toward his rear pocket and, therefore, the pistol was admissible in prosecution under this section. United States v. L. T. Lee (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 566).

Although there was ample testimony by two police officers of possession of a weapon by appellant without a license in violation of District of Columbia code, this did not render harmless identification and display in front of the jury, of three dangerous weapons which were taken from appellant's companions at time they were arrested but which were not charged to appellant's possession. F. Macklin, Jr. v. United States (1969, 410 F. 2d 1046, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 347).

Absent plain error, defendant's failure to voice objection to introduction of knife against him in prosecution for carrying deadly weapon precluded assertion on appeal that admission of the knife was error. W. C. Best v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 825).

Photographs of fingerprints discovered at scene of crime and identified as defendant's on basis of prints of defendant retained after prior conviction, did not render them inadmissible, on ground that his conviction for earlier crime had been set aside pursuant to provisions of Youth Corrections Act. M. C. Stevenson and E. S. Borum v. United States (1967, 380 F. 2d 590, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 43).

—— Sufficiency

In this case there was adequate evidence to support convictions of assault and carrying a dangerous weapon. United States v. L. White (1970, 429 F. 2d 711, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

The court held the evidence sustained finding that defendant, who was charged under this section with carrying pistol without a license, had requisite knowledge and control of weapon found between backrest and seat to left of where defendant had been sitting in automobile. L. R. Kenhan v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 253).

Knowledge of presence of pistol could be reasonably inferred from fact that one or two inches of butt of pistol were sticking out from between backrest and seat to left of where defendant had been sitting in automobile. Id.

Evidence was sufficient to sustain a conviction for carrying a pistol without a license, although the government did not offer any direct proof of defendant's knowledge of gun. L. L. Powell v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 246 A. 2d 641).

Officer's independent testimony with respect to defendant's possession of gun to which no objection was made was sufficient to support defendant's conviction for carrying pistol without a license. L. G. Lee v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 212).

Evidence supported conviction for carrying dangerous weapon without license. R. W. Epperson v. United States (1967, 371 F. 2d 956, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 303).

Evidence supported conviction for carrying a deadly weapon. L. Perry v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 721).

Fingerprint tests, duty to make

There is no requirement that imposes on the Government the affirmative duty to make paraffin or fingerprint tests in regard to pistol involved in prosecution for carrying a pistol without a license, and there was no showing of prejudice from failure to make tests. M. L. Williams v. United States. (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 539).

Guilty plea

The record did not show that the trial judge failed to determine that defendant's plea of guilty to carrying deadly weapon after previous conviction of like offense or of a felony had been made voluntarily, after proper advice, with understanding of nature of charge and consequences. H. L. Barnett v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 918, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Identification

Question of identification was one of fact for jury in prosecution for assault and for carrying a deadly weapon. J. J. Durham v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 830).

Impeachment

It is difficult to attach any impeaching quality to evidence which identified and displayed in front of a jury, over objection and against judge's doubts, of three dangerous weapons, which had been taken from defendant's companions when they were arrested but were not charged to possession of defendant, who was indicted for carrying a dangerous weapon without a license in violation of District of Columbia code, and any probative value of the evidence was outweighed by its prejudicial effect. F. Macklin, Jr. v. United States (1969, 410 F. 2d 1046, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 347).

Indictment

When an indictment carefully traces the language of this section in indicting a defendant for carrying a dangerous weapon without a license, the indictment is valid and it is of no legal significance that the presentment merely states that the defendant was carrying a dangerous weapon, which is not an offense. United States v. W. Bridges (1970, 432 F. 2d 692, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Instructions

Since the trial judge's charge contained two erroneous instructions equating intent with malice as essential ingredient of murder and stating that law infers or presumes malice from use of deadly weapon in commission of homicide and both instructions were later reread to jury and jury returned verdict, not of first-degree murder, but of murder in second degree and the jury did not accept whole of government's evidence bearing on degree of defendant's culpability, instructional errors will be noticed by Court of Appeals despite defendant's failure to object at trial and require reversal of conviction of murder in second degree. United States v. A Wharton (1970, 433 F. 2d 451, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

A charge to the jury outlining the various necessary elements of offense of carrying deadly or dangerous weapon, defining a "deadly or dangerous weapon" and advising that in determining whether the instrument was such a weapon "'you may consider all the circumstances surrounding its possession and use" was adequate. G. O. Leftwitch v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 646).

In a prosecution for carrying deadly or dangerous weapon, where court's charge on weapon was adequate and there was no cause for confusion in the minds of the jury, it was within the trial court's discretion to give the "Allen" charge reminding jurors that they should give some thought to views of others and should consider their position in light of those views. Id.

Defendant may not complain on appeal of deficiencies in instructions given by trial judge in manslaughter prosecution where none of alleged shortcomings were brought to the attention of trial court by appropriate objection or request. United States v. E. Carter (1969, 420 F. 2d 150, 136 U.S. App. D.C. 308).

Jury question

Evidence showing that police officers saw defendant drop an object later found to be a .22 caliber sawed-off rifle from his automobile posed question for determination by jury as to defendant's guilt or innocence of carrying dangerous weapon. R. Watson, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 121).

It was a jury question whether pistol had been lying on front seat of automobile next to defendant driver within convenient access and reach of defendant so that he might have been found to have had possession under statute, or whether pistol fell out of pocket of passenger and police intervened before defendant could have had access to it, in a prosecution for carrying pistol without a license. H. E. Waterstaat v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 507).

Lawful arrest

Where police officers noted automobile bearing license tags registered to a different make automobile and requested driver, without making any similar request of passenger, to follow them to precinct house and to go inside, passenger who accompanied the driver and accidentally revealed a loaded revolver in his pocket while inside precinct house had not therefore been under arrest but gave police officer who observed the pistol sufficient grounds for arrest so that the arrest made by that officer was lawful and accompanying search was valid and evidence of pistol was accordingly not subject to suppression in prosecution for carrying a deadly weapon. J. B. Conyers v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 838).

Moot question

Where a defendant, who was convicted of carrying a dangerous weapon without license in violation of District of Columbia code, had served his sentence, his appeal was not dismissable as moot, since statute under which he was indicted provided for consequence of conviction which did not disappear with expiration of his sentence. F. Macklin, Jr. v. United States (1969, 410 F. 2d 1046, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 347).

Multiple convictions for the same offense

The fact that the passenger in a vehicle driven by defendant was convicted of carrying pistol without license, following police officer's discovery of pistol lying on seat of vehicle between passenger and driver, did not preclude conviction of driver for same offense. H. E. Waterstaat v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 507).

Plain error

In this prosecution for carrying a dangerous weapon, wherein evidence disclosed that the defendant was a part owner and in possession of the apartment building where assault occurred, the prejudice to defendant from counsel's failing to mention the statutory exception, to the prohibition of carrying a weapon if carrying is in a dwelling house or place of business or other land possessed by defendant, required invocation of the "plain error" rule. A. C. Roumel v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 261 A. 2d 240).

Under this section prohibiting the carrying of a weapon "except in his dwelling house or place of business or on other land possessed by him", a person need not be a sole rather than part owner of the premises involved. Id.

Possession of firearms

Direct personal possession of prohibited weapon is not required for occupant of automobile to be convicted of violation of this section prohibiting carrying pistol without a license. L. R. Kenhan v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 253).

Probable cause

In this case, since the police officers were investigating reported burglary, and defendants were seen carrying coffee table, and their distinctive clothing matched clothing of men seen in vicinity of burglary, and there was a furtive disposal of instrumentalities of burglary by one defendant, and other defendant attempted to get his gun out of pocket as officers approached, there was probable cause for arrest of defendants and for their search and search of their automobile. United States v. R. Cunningham et ano. (1970, 424 F. 2d 942, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Police officer, who as told by taxicab driver who pointed toward three men walking on street that driver had seen person up the street tuck gun under his belt, had probable cause to stop and search the only three men who were present on street even though taxicab driver did not say which of the men he had seen with gun, and gun found on person of defendant in such search was admissible. H. L. Gaskins v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 810).

Officers' initial observation of defendant's passing what appeared to be a pistol to his companion in the rear seat of an automobile, provided the police officers with probable cause to arrest defendant for possession of a pistol or to search vehicle; it was also lawful for officers to ask the defendant's companion to come out of the vehicle incident to the search, and seizure of the pistol when it fell to floor following companion's move to alight from vehicle was proper. G. Neal v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 260 A. 2d 89).

Viewing by officers of the inside of the automobile in which defendant was sitting on parking lot of restaurant at 4:30 A.M. did not constitute a search and was merely a customary check of premises when they saw two other persons lying down in automobile and observed what appeared to be a .38 caliber cartridge on the floor they had probable cause to believe that there was a dangerous weapon in the automobile and were justified in arresting defendant, and revolver which was in plain sight when officers opened door to make arrest was admissible. J. E. Lucas v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 574).

Probable cause to justify arrest for carrying dangerous weapon does not require exact knowledge of character of the weapon. J. L. Scott v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 54).

Officer who before beginning conversation with defendant and defendant's companion in lobby of movie theater saw defendant's companion drop knife into cigarette ash container and who saw defendant attempting to slide knife up sleeve of his coat had probable cause for arrest and for subsequent seizure of defendant's knife. Id.

Police officers, to whom was communicated through regular channels a report from an unknown eyewitness concerning purported robbery and presence of nearby suspect who was identified in manner which fit defendant's description, had probable cause to arrest without a warrant defendant whom they found near scene of purported robbery, and gun taken in search of defendant's person was admissible in prosecution for carrying the pistol without a license, notwithstanding robbery report was later proved to be false. C. W. Carter, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 244 A. 2d 483).

Arrest without a warrant for carrying a dangerous or deadly weapon may be made on probable cause. L. G. Lee v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 212).

Police officer is not privileged to ignore facts which would give him reasonable cause to believe that a person is carrying a dangerous or deadly weapon. Id.

Where officer at early hour in morning saw defendant and another man talking to manager of motel and when officer approached they hurriedly moved away from door and officer received inconsistent answers to his inquiries to the men and officer noted that defendant was carrying bag containing large heavy object and when officer asked if there was gun in the bag, defendant started backing off and did not answer, officer had probable cause to arrest defendant for carrying pistol and to seize the gun. Id.

Probable cause for arrest

Evidence established that police officers saw gun handle sticking out of defendant's pocket and had probable cause to believe that defendant was carrying dangerous weapon in violation of law. United States v. P. Jenkins, Jr. (1967, 276 F. Supp. 958).

Proof of intent

Proof of intent is not required to use a knife to menace or inflict bodily harm under statute proscribing carrying a deadly or dangerous weapon. G. O. Leftwitch v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 646).

Proposed charge encompassing the defense theory that an intent to use knife to menace or inflict bodily harm was a necessary ingredient of offense of carrying deadly or dangerous weapon was incorrect and would have misled jury seriously and was properly refused. Id.

Under statute prohibiting carrying of concealed deadly or dangerous weapon, proof of intent to use knife for unlawful purpose is not element of the offense. J. L. Scott v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 243 A. 2d 54).

Prosecutor's comments

In a prosecution for carrying a deadly or dangerous weapon, the prosecutor did not comment on defendant's failure to testify and there was no error requiring a reversal where the comment was that defendant "spoke very loud and clear as to this knife. And when was that? That was when he saw the officer. Because, what did he do? He took it from the small of his back and he threw it to the ground, trying to get rid of it". G. O. Leftwitch v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 646).

Prosecutor's remarks to jury

In a case where jury was apprised of circumstances sufficiently probative to allow them to conclude beyond reasonable doubt that the razor was being carried as a deadly or dangerous weapon, under the circumstances defendant's conviction did not turn in any significant degree on remarks during closing argument by government counsel which attempted to place jury in shoes of victims or likely victims of crime, and in this case no reversal was required. A. B. Clarke v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 782).

A demonstration of the way a razor might be used as a weapon made by officer during trial was relevant to issue of whether razor was dangerous or deadly weapon, and was not prejudicial to the defendant. Id.

Purpose of carrying weapon

In a case where police officer observed defendant walking along a street looking into parked automobiles and trying their door handles, and officer pulled abreast of defendant in patrol automobile, and defendant quickly withdrew behind nearby tree, and officer got out of automobile and approached defendant who reached behind his back and pulled large butcher knife from his belt, in area of small of his back, and threw it to ground in tree box space, test as to whether defendant was carrying deadly or dangerous weapon in violation of statute was whether the purpose of carrying butcher knife was its use as weapon. G. O. Leftwitch v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 646).

Release pending appeal

Appellant's motion for release on his personal recognizance pending his appeal from a conviction of carrying a dangerous weapon, after conviction of a felony, would be denied where paying deference to the action of District Court, considered with appellant's record, including the conviction and his failure to comply with prior probation and release requirements, the Court of Appeals was of the opinion that no one or more conditions of release would reasonably assure that the appellant would not pose a danger to any other person or to the community if released pending the appeal. United States v. A. Blyther, Jr. (1969, 407 F. 2d 1279, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 344).

Retrial

Since the issue of whether defendant, who was convicted of carrying a dangerous weapon came within the exception of this section on the ground that he was at least a "possessor" of the apartment building where assault occurred was not fully litigated at trial, government would be given option of a retrial to show if it could, that defendant did not come within the exception. A. C. Roumel v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 261 A. 2d 240).

Right to testify

Since the defendant presented six witnesses whose version of the events leading to defendant's arrest for carrying dangerous weapon could not have materially differed from any evidence defendant would have given had he chosen to testify, even if court did rule that government could impeach defendant by use of his prior record, defendant was not precluded from testifying and was not prejudiced in his defense. R. Watson, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 121).

Role of United States Attorney

Delay of almost three months between charging defendant with misdemeanor of carrying deadly weapon and charging him instead with felony of carrying dangerous weapon after having previously been convicted of felony was not objectionable although prosecutor knew the day after arrest that defendant could be held for felony because of previous conviction in District of Columbia of carrying a deadly weapon, in view of time it took to obtain so-called "rap sheet" from F.B.I. showing defendant's felony record outside the District. R. W. Epperson v. United States (1967, 371 F. 2d 956, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 303).

Ruling of district court as binding on Court of General Sessions

United States district court decision in prosecution for narcotics violation, which suppressed certain evidence as products of illegal search and seizure was not binding on District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, where defendant was charged with possession of prohibited weapon and possession of numbers slips, and which had held previously to United States District Court ruling that certain evidence, which was seized under same circumstances as evidence in federal prosecution, was admissible. B. R. Burrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 897).

Sentences

A sentence of not less than three or more than ten years was not unduly severe after defendant pleaded guilty to carrying deadly weapon after previous conviction of similar offense or of a felony, who had prior convictions of house breaking, grand larceny and receiving stolen property and who had failed to consistently report back to jail in interim between entry of his guilty plea and date of sentencing. H. L. Barnett v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 918, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Where general sentence imposed following convictions for robbery, assault with a dangerous weapon, and carrying concealed weapon was in excess of statutory maximum for carrying concealed weapon, and convictions for robbery and assault with dangerous weapon were required to be reversed because of absence of indication that defendant made informed decision, after appropriate advice, to proceed with joint counsel, case would be remanded for resentencing on count of carrying concealed weapon. F. J. Ford v. United States of America (1967, 379 F. 2d 123, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 346).

Waiver of trial by jury

In a prosecution, without jury, where there is a right to trial by jury, did and for the record of what occurred in open court was silent as to waiver of defendant's right to a jury trial, case would be remanded for a determination, after hearing, of whether defendant knowingly and voluntarily waived his right to jury trial in open court and requested a trial by the court, even though informations had been stamped with notation "Jury Trial Demand Withdrawn". F. H. Jackson v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 106).

The court said that the public interest in obtaining swift and certain justice for those charged with crime, requires that trial court assume responsibility for making certain that record in all criminal trials in which accused has a constitutional right to trial by jury, which are conducted without a jury contains evidence from which it may be found that defendant knowingly and voluntarily waived such right. Id.

The court held that in trials commenced after issuance of this opinion, there should be in the record a statement in open court by defendant himself in order to provide a basis for subsequently determining, if necessary, that he knowingly and voluntarily waived his constitutional right to trial by jury. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Assistance of counsel

In this case the record did not show that defendant's trial counsel who declined to cross-examine either complainant or arresting officer ineffectively assisted defendant who himself testified and denied assault. J. J. Scott v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 353).

Burden of proving exception

Defendant had burden of bringing himself within statutory exception to offense charged rather than that of the prosecution to negative it. M. L. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 539).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

The decision of the trial court, rendered after hearing on admissibility, that 1959 conviction of one defendant for housebreaking and larceny and 1962 conviction of another defendant for attempted housebreaking could be brought out on cross-examination in robbery prosecution unless either defendant could satisfy court that since conviction he had led legally blameless life, was not an abuse of discretion. United States v. J. L. Bailey at ano. (1970, 426 F. 2d 1236, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Double jeopardy

Where defendant was charged by information with violation of statute which makes it unlawful for one to own or have in his possession a pistol if previously convicted of possession of a prohibited weapon, and before any witness took stand prosecuting attorney announced that Government could not go forward with charge and would nolle prosse it and bring new charge of carrying a pistol without a license, plea of double jeopardy was not a valid plea in new prosecution because the two informations charged separate and distinct offenses. C. R. Newman v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 239 A. 2d 152).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence was sufficient to sustain a conviction for assault and possession of dangerous weapon with intent to use the same unlawfully. C. Willis v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 250 A. 2d 569).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain a conviction for possession of prohibited weapon. B. R. Burrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 897).

Hearing de novo

It was not erroneous to deny a hearing de novo upon the issue of whether girl in whose apartment defendant, charged with possession of submachine gun, was staying gave her valid consent to search of bed wherein defendant had secreted gun where conflict in testimony between police officers at pretrial hearing on issue was not substantially inconsistent and defendant at no time proffered substance of any new evidence that would be offered by additional officers he had subpoenaed. R. W. Dupont v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 355).

Inconsistent verdict

In this case, the court held that since there was evidence that defendant not only struck officer with nightstick but also hit him and engaged in general scuffling, finding by jury that defendant was not guilty of charge involving possession of nightstick did not preclude conviction on charge of simple assault C. T. Matthews v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 826).

Ruling of district court as binding on Court of General Sessions

United States district court decision, in prosecution for narcotics violation, which suppressed certain evidence as products of illegal search and seizure was not binding on District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, where defendant was charged with possession of prohibited weapon and possession of numbers slips, and which had held previously to United States District Court ruling that certain evidence, which was seized under same circumstances as evidence in federal prosecution, was admissible. B. R. Burrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 897).

Search and seizure

A defendant, who was lawfully arrested for operating automobile without a valid permit, was taken to police station in his own automobile, and charged with driving without a valid permit, possession of prohibited weapon and possession of numbers slips, but did not protest or withhold his consent to use by police of his automobile to drive him to police station and was not coerced in any way, there was no seizure of defendant's automobile by police prior to arrival at police station. B. R. Burrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 897).

Waiver of trial by jury

In a prosecution, without jury, where there is a right to trial by jury, and for the record of what occurred in open court was silent as to waiver of defendant's right to a jury trial, case would be remanded for a determination, after hearing, of whether defendant knowingly and voluntarily waived his right to jury trial in open court and requested a trial by the court, even though informations had been stamped with notation "Jury Trial Demand Withdrawn". F. H. Jackson v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 106).

The court said that the public interest in obtaining swift and certain justice for those charged with crime, requires that trial court assume responsibility for making certain that record in all criminal trials in which accused has a constitutional right to trial by jury which are conducted without a jury, contains evidence from which it may be found that defendant knowingly and voluntarily waived such right. Id.

The court held that in trials commenced after issuance of this opinion, there should be in the record a statement in open court by defendant himself in order to provide a basis for subsequently determining, if necessary, that he knowingly and voluntarily waived his constitutional right to trial by jury. Id.

§ 22–3215. Penalties.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22–3203, 22–3204, 22–3214.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appeal and error

Record in prosecution for carrying a pistol without a license in violation of § 22–3204 supported finding that defendant, to whom Miranda warnings were read by policeman from standard police form and who was given the form to read in police station before being questioned, but who was not asked if he understood contents of form, had been sufficiently informed of his right to remain silent and to counsel. M. J. Brewster v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 409).

In view of the overwhelming evidence that the particular address claimed by defendant to be his dwelling house was not his dwelling house, any error with respect to whether defendant waived any of his constitutional rights to remain silent and to counsel before being questioned as to his residence was harmless in prosecution for violation of § 22–3204 prohibiting the carrying of an unlicensed pistol except in one's dwelling house. Id.

Sentence

A sentence of not less than three nor more than ten years was not unduly severe after defendant pleaded guilty to carrying deadly weapon after previous conviction of similar offense or of a felony who had prior convictions of house breaking, grand larceny and receiving stolen property and who had failed to consistently report back to jail in interim between entry of his guilty plea and date of sentencing. H. L. Barnett v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 918, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

§ 22–3215a. Manufacture, transfer, use, possession or transportation of molotov cocktails, or other explosives for unlawful purposes, prohibited—Definitions—Penalties.

(a) No person shall within the District of Columbia manufacture, transfer, use, possess, or transport a molotov cocktail. As used in this subsection, the term "molotov cocktail" means (1) a breakable container containing flammable liquid and having a wick or a similar device capable of being ignited, or (2) any other device designed to explode or produce uncontained combustion upon impact; but such term does not include a device lawfully and commercially manufactured primarily for the purpose of illumination, construction work, or other lawful purpose.

(b) No person shall manufacture, transfer, use, possess, or transport any device, instrument, or object designed to explode or produce uncontained combustion, with the intent that the same may be used unlawfully against any person or property.

(c) No person shall, during a state of emergency in the District of Columbia declared by the Commissioner pursuant to law, or during a situation in the District of Columbia concerning which the President has invoked any provision of chapter 15 of title 10, United States Code, manufacture, transfer, use, possess, or transport any device, instrument, or object designed to explode or produce uncontained combustion, except at his resident or place of business.

(d) Whoever violates this section shall (1) for the first offense, be sentenced to a term of imprisonment of not less than one and not more than five years, (2) for the second offense, be sentenced to a term of imprisonment of not less than three and not more than fifteen years, and (3) for the third or subsequent offense, be sentenced to a term of imprisonment of not less than five years and of any term of years up to life imprisonment. In the case of a person convicted of a third or subsequent violation of this section, chapter 402 of title 18, United States Code (Federal Youth Corrections Act) shall not apply. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 654, ch. 465, § 15A; as added July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, title II, § 209, 84 Stat. 603.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

§ 22–3217. Dangerous articles—Definition—Taking and destruction—Procedure.

(d) (1) Within thirty days after the date of such surrender, any person may file in the office of the property clerk of the Metropolitan Police Department a written claim for possession of such dangerous article. Upon the expiration of such period, the property clerk shall notify each such claimant, by registered mail addressed to the address shown on the claim, of the time and place of a hearing to determine which claimant, if any, is entitled to possession of such dangerous article. Such hearing shall be held within sixty days after the date of such surrender.

(2) At the hearing the property clerk shall hear and receive evidence with respect to the claims filed under paragraph (1). Thereafter he shall determine which claimant, if any, is entitled to possession of such dangerous article and shall reduce his decision to writing. The property clerk shall send a true copy of such written decision to each claimant by registered mail addressed to the last known address of such claimant.

(3) Any claimant may, within thirty days after the day on which the copy of such decision was mailed to such claimant, file an appeal in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia. If the claimant files an appeal, he shall at the same time give written notice thereof to the property clerk. If the decision of the property clerk is so appealed, the property clerk shall not dispose of the dangerous article while such appeal is pending and, if the final judgment is entered by such court, he shall dispose of such dangerous article in accordance with the judgment of such court. The Superior Court of the District of Columbia is authorized to determine which claimant, if any, is entitled to possession of the dangerous article and to enter a judgment ordering a disposition of such dangerous article consistent with subsection (f).

(4) If there is no such appeal, or if such appeal is dismissed or withdrawn, the property clerk shall dispose of such dangerous article in accordance with subsection (f).

(5) The property clerk shall make no disposition of a dangerous article under this section, whether in accordance with his own decision or in accordance with the judgment of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, until the United States attorney for the District of Columbia certifies to him that such dangerous article will not be needed as evidence.

Chapter 33.—VAGRANCY

§ 22–3302. "Vagrants" defined.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22–3203, 22–3303 to 22–3306, 33–416a.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

Since the term loitering as used in this section failed to supply the necessary statutory criteria by which one could objectively distinguish lawful from unlawful conduct the statute was unconstitutional. H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (1968, 414 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

Since under the Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes anyone using street for a lawful business in a lawful manner may do so without restriction, statutes are not an unreasonable restriction on freedom of movement in violation of due process clause of Fifth Amendment. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. D.C. 201).

Convictions for violation of Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes were not invalid on ground that defendants were being punished solely for their status as vagrants. Id.

Convictions of defendants for violation of Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes on proof showing defendants' associations with known narcotics users and prostitutes did not violate Eighth Amendment's prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment despite claim that there was an absence of any overt criminal act. Id.

Construction

Vagrancy statute, because it defines a crime, must be construed narrowly in favor of defendant. J. Johnson v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 483).

When an individual is unable to give a good account to police when wandering at late and unusual hours and is associated with criminals or narcotics addicts and is not lawfully employed, these factors, together with others enumerated in statutes, constitute probable cause for arrest for vagrancy. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

Vagrancy statutes were not invalid on ground that they were "catch-alls" used when other crimes could not be proven or that they allegedly required a lesser quantum of proof to convict. Id.

Word "loitering" as used in Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes was not unconstitutionally vague, particularly where additional conditions were necessary to constitute offense. Id.

Reference to "failure to give a good account" as used in Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes restricts rather than enlarges application of statutes and allows suspected vagrant to dissipate probable cause by satisfactorily explaining his conduct, and the arresting officer is not the only one who must evaluate account given by person questioned. Id.

Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes delineate with specificity what vagrancy is, and the definitions are neither numerous nor susceptible to widely divergent interpretations. Id.

Evidence—Circumstantial

Circumstantial evidence may sustain vagrancy conviction, but inferential proof of ultimate fact may not be based upon mere possibility, speculation or conjecture. J. Johnson v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 483).

——Sufficiency

Evidence, including evidence that female defendant, while sober, well-behaved, and decently attired, was seen flagging down automobiles in early morning hours, was insufficient to sustain conviction for vagrancy. J. Johnson v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 483).

Immorality and profligate

The phrase "leading an immoral and profligate life" as used in this section necessitated so much guesswork as to its coverage as to render statute invalid H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (1968, 414 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

The terms "immorality" and "profligateness" are not terms of art. Id.

Not giving a good account of himself

The phrase "not giving a good account of himself" as used in this section was much too loose to satisfy constitutional requirements. H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (1968, 414 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

The phrase "a good account" as used in this section was so indefinite as to render statute unconstitutional. Id.

Proscription contained in this section against wandering without any visible or lawful business coupled with requirements that wanderer give "a good account" of himself granted unfettered discretion to administrative and judicial authorities and rendered statute invalid. Id.

Police vagrancy observation practices

Although three subsections of this section have been declared unconstitutional, since plaintiff's complaint for injunctive and declaratory relief from police vagrancy observation practices sought to have the whole statute declared unconstitutional and since there was no showing that vagrancy reports on plaintiff had been made pursuant to one of subsections declared unconstitutional, case should not have been dismissed by the District Court and full evidentiary hearing must be held. M. J. Gomez v. J. Wilson, Chief of Police, et al. (1970, 430 F. 2d 495, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Prior convictions

One can be found guilty of violating either Narcotics Vagrancy Statute or the General Vagrancy Statute without having been previously convicted. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

Both the Narcotics Vagrancy Statute and General Vagrancy Statute employ separate paragraphs which disjunctively set up criteria amounting to vagrancy and both require factors, other than prior convictions, which conjunctively amount to violation, so that prior convictions are not essential to all subsections of the statutes. Id.

Prior convictions of accused are admissible in prosecution for violation of vagrancy statutes. Id.

Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes do not improperly require presentation and proof of prior convictions, and do not deny due process and fair trial. Id.

Probable cause for arrest

Arrest for vagrancy without warrant was justified under evidence, including testimony of experienced police officers that they had observed defendant in company of known prostitutes and narcotics violators on four occasions during two nights. J. L. Worthy v. United States (1968, 409 F. 2d 1105, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

Purpose of statute

A course of conduct rather than an overt act is prohibited by the Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

Purpose of Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes is to prevent crimes which may likely flow from the vagrant's mode of life. Id.

Search

Although it is incident to an arrest for vagrancy the search was not for that reason required to be limited to a frisk. J. L. Worthy v. United States (1968, 409 F. 2d 1105, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

Statistics as evidence

Statistical likelihood that a particular societal segment will engage in criminality is not permissible as an all-out substitute for proof of individual guilt. And not even past violation of the criminal law authorizes one's subjection to innately vague statutory specifications of crime H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (1968, 414 F. 2d 1097, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

The evidence adduced at habeas corpus proceeding did not support the trial court's finding that petitioner, who had originally been committed under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act, was likely to inflict injury, loss, pain or other evil on others by his sexual misconduct if he were released. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Habeas corpus petitioner who had been committed under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act had the burden to show that his past behavior, examined under the illumination provided by psychiatric evaluation of those actions, did not justify conclusion that he fell within statutory definition of one who was likely to inflict injury on others. Id.

Whether habeas corpus petitioner who was committed under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act should be released on habeas corpus would be determined on likelihood that he would, if released, be dangerous to others because of sexual misconduct. Id.

Petitioner who was confined in hospital pursuant to proceeding under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act had the burden to show by a preponderance of the evidence that his continued confinement as sexual psychopath was not justified. Id.

Conditions justifying commitment

Predictions of dangerousness which would justify commitment under the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act requires determination of type of conduct of which individual may engage; likelihood or probability that he will indulge in that conduct; and effect that such conduct if engaged in will have on others. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

In determining what acts may be considered in applying District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act, court must read "sexual" in common meaning of that term. Id.

Construction with other laws

The District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act was not repealed by the 1964 Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Court of Appeals would not read into the District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act the procedural protections of the Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act. Id.

Conviction for carnal knowledge and taking indecent liberties

A defendant may not properly be convicted of both carnal knowledge and taking indecent liberties with minor child as result of one incident. United States v. W. D. Heard (1969, 420 F. 2d 628, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 60).

Since the defendant was charged with both carnal knowledge and taking indecent liberties with minor child, jury should have been instructed to first consider carnal knowledge offense and, if they found defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, sole verdict should have been guilty of that offense, but if they acquitted defendant of carnal knowledge they should have proceeded to consider whether defendant was guilty or not guilty of the crime of indecent liberties. Id.

Criminal sentencing

Where Chief of Legal Psychiatric Division expressed opinion raising doubt of competency for criminal sentencing for allegedly sexually violating the person of a child five years of age, so as to call for a hearing under the Sexual Psychopath Act, trial judge erred in proceeding to sentence for criminal offense, and Court of Appeals would remand for competency hearing. G. Fuller v. United States (1967, 390 F. 2d 468, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 53).

Disclosure of prior record

Where evidence of identification of defendant as perpetrator of offense involving sexual abuse of a little girl was inconclusive, and trial court had denied defendant's motion to permit defendant to testify without having his prior record exposed, and once defendant's prior record was disclosed to jury it was impossible, on facts of case, to say with assurance that jury would have found defendant guilty beyond reasonable doubt of crime for which he was on trial, new trial was required. R. A. Barber v. United States (1968, 392 F. 2d 517, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 193).

Due Process

Since a proceeding under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act is closely related to behavior of person rather than to his mental condition considered apart from his behavior, constitutional guaranties implicit in due process of law must come into play. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Elements of offense

The elements of the offense of taking indecent liberties with a minor child are taking immoral, improper, or indecent liberties with a child under the age of 16 with the intent of arousing, appealing to, or gratifying the lust, passions, or sexual desires of the child or of the accused. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Evidence was sufficient to establish all elements of the offense of taking indecent liberties with a minor child. Id.

Evidence

Failure of the trial court in habeas corpus proceeding to distinguish between petitioner's sexual and nonsexual misconduct as a reason for his commitment under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act and trial court's failure to evaluate the likelihood, as opposed to mere possibility, that petitioner would engage in sexual misconduct if released constituted reversible error. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Evidence in habeas corpus proceeding established that if released, the petitioner, who had been committed under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act, would be unlikely to engage in sexual misconduct other than exhibitionism. Id.

Evidence at habeas corpus proceeding established that likelihood of serious injury to a child who might see the petitioner expose himself in public was too remote to justify commitment under District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act. Id.

Evidence at habeas corpus proceeding established that future sexual misconduct of petitioner, if any, was not sufficiently likely to cause kind of harm required by District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act to justify further commitment. Id.

—— Sufficiency

In this case wherein defendant was charged with four counts of taking indecent liberties with a child, and three counts of sodomy, the evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction except with respect to one indecent liberties count. P. Coltrane v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 1131, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 295).

Former jeopardy protection

A jury which was specifically prohibited from considering a charge of taking indecent liberties with minor child if defendant were to be found guilty of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge, and defendant was found guilty of the latter charge, its verdict of not guilty of the former charge was a nullity and did not clothe defendant with former jeopardy protection or preclude reviewing court from directing entry of judgment of guilty on indecent liberties charge upon finding that evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction for assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Instructions

The court's instruction that the jury could find defendant guilty of both carnal knowledge and taking indecent liberties with minor child as result of same incident was error. United States v. W. D. Heard (1969, 420 F. 2d 628, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 60).

Defendant was convicted of an assault on a female under age of 16 with intent to commit carnal knowledge and with taking immoral, improper and indecent liberties with a female under age of 16, in violation of Miller Act, and the court should have given requested instruction that jury should consider count based on Miller Act only if they acquitted on the other count and, although failure to so instruct did not impair verdict under Miller Act, conviction for other offense must be set aside. H. C. Dozier v. United States (1967, 382 F. 2d 482, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Failure of court to instruct on simple assault as less offense under count charging taking immoral, improper, and indecent liberties with female under age of 16 furnished no basis for reversal, as jury was instructed on simple assault as less offense under count charging assault on female under age of 16 with intent to commit carnal knowledge. Id.

Lesser included offense

The crime of taking indecent liberties is a lesser included offense of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

Limitation of applicability of chapter

The protection of the District of Columbia Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act is limited to those who are declared insane or of unsound mind pursuant to a court order and does not include any person previously committed under the Sexual Psychopathy Act. M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

Matters to be considered on remand

Where Court of Appeals remanded case for competency hearing under Sexual Psychopath Act because of psychiatric opinion, district court would be authorized to receive, or to direct prosecutor to file, statement looking toward application of Sexual Psychopath Act, and hearing on remand should also embrace issue of possibility of lack of competency at trial. G. Fuller v. United States (1967, 390 F. 2d 468, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 53).

Where Court of Appeals remanded to District Court case for competency hearing under Sexual Psychopath Act because of psychiatric opinion raising doubt of competency of defendant, inquiry at hearing on remand should embrace mental condition of defendant at time of alleged offense, what kind of judgment or sentence was appropriate, and what kind of disposition should be made of defendant, including a possible civil commitment under the Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act. (25–501 et seq.) Id.

"Not insane" construed

The words "not insane" as used in District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath Act means "not mentally ill". M. I. Millard v. D. W. Harris, Acting Sup't, etc. (1968, 406 F. 2d 964, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 146; rev'g 373 F. 2d 468).

When words "not insane" in District of Columbia Sexual Psychopath law is read to mean "not mentally ill" the sole justification for commitment under the act is the patient's dangerousness. Id.

Prosecutor's statement

Statement of the prosecutor, in his closing argument, that defendant's testimony was a recent fabrication designed to lure jury and hoodwink them, although not a permissible statement, did not warrant reversal of conviction for taking indecent liberties with eleven-year-old boy in view of eminently fair charge in which the district judge sought to compensate indirectly for such an impermissible comment. C. W. Gibson v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 569, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 163).

Remedy on appeal

Although defendant who was charged with both carnal knowledge and with taking indecent liberties with minor child did not request that the jury consider indecent liberties charge only after an acquittal of carnal knowledge and jury convicted defendant on both charges after being erroneously instructed that conviction on one charge should not influence verdict on other charge, the proper remedy was to remand case with instruction to vacate judgment of conviction of taking indecent liberties with minor child. United States v. W. D. Heard (1969, 420 F. 2d 628, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 60).

Reviewing court's authority

Where evidence does not sustain conviction of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge but was sufficient to establish all elements of taking indecent liberties with minor child, reviewing court in remanding with directions to enter judgment of guilty of taking indecent liberties would accord permission to trial judge to grant new trial if he should deem it to be in the best interest of justice. A. Allison v. United States (1969, 409 F. 2d 445, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

§ 22–3502. Sodomy.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency

In this case wherein defendant was charged with four counts of taking indecent liberties with a child, and three counts of sodomy, the evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction except with respect to one indecent liberties count. P. Coltrane v. United States (1969, 418 F. 2d 1131, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 295).

For the purposes of sections 22–3503 to 22–3511—

(1) The term "sexual psychopath" means a person, not insane, who by a course of repeated misconduct in sexual matters has evidenced such lack of power to control his sexual impulses as to be dangerous to other persons because he is likely to attack or otherwise inflict injury, loss, pain, or other evil on the objects of his desire.

(2) The term "court" means a court in the District of Columbia having jurisdiction of criminal offenses or delinquent acts.

(3) The term "patient" means a person with respect to whom there has been filed with the clerk of any court a statement in writing setting forth facts tending to show that such person is a sexual psychopath.

(4) The term "criminal proceeding" means a proceeding in any court against a person for a criminal offense, and includes all stages of such a proceeding from (A) the time the person is indicted, charged by an information, or charged with a delinquent act, to (B) the entry of judgment, or, if the person is granted probation, the completion of the period of probation.

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 157(c)(1)(A)(B) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358 amended section, (A) by amending paragraph (2) to read as follows:

"(2) The term 'court' means a court in the District of Columbia having jurisdiction of criminal offenses or delinquent acts.", and

(B) by striking out "an offense in the juvenile court of the District of Columbia" in paragraph (4) and inserting in lieu thereof "a delinquent act".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22–3505 to 22–3507, 22–3509 to 22–3511.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Under sections 22–3501 to 22–3511, term "not insane" must be read to mean "not 'mentally ill'" within meaning of sections 21–501 to 21–591 and sections 22–3501 to 22–3511 apply only to those who are not mentally ill while compulsory treatment of those who are mentally ill is governed by sections 21–501 to 21–591. T. B. Cross v. D. W. Harris (1969, 418 F. 2d 1095, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

Dangerous conduct

Statute defining sexual psychopath as a person who by repeated sexual misconduct evinces inability to control sexual impulses so as to be likely to be dangerous to others requires that the dangerous conduct be not merely repulsive or repugnant but must have serious effect on the viewer. M. I. Millard v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1966, 373 F. 2d 468, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 383; rev'd and remanded 406 F. 2d 964).

Grounds for commitment

Commitment under sections 22–3501 to 22–3511 cannot be based simply on determination that a person is likely to engage in particular acts and court must also determine harm, if any, that is likely to flow from these acts; since mere possibility of injury is insufficient, harm must be likely. T. B. Cross v. D. W. Harris (1969, 418 F. 2d 1095, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

In enacting sections 22–3501 to 22–3511 Congress did not intend to authorize indefinite preventive detention for those who have propensity to behave in way that is merely offensive or obnoxious to others; and threatened harm must be substantial so that before a commitment is required a person must be found likely to engage in sexual misconduct in circumstances where that misconduct will inflict substantial injury upon others Id.

In determining question of likelihood of harm to ascertain whether a person should be committed under sections 22–3501 to 22–3511 particularly relevant considerations are: seriousness of expected harm; availability of in-patient and out-patient treatment for individual concerned; and expected length of confinement required for in-patient treatment. Id.

Habeas corpus

A habeas corpus petitioner, who was under hospital commitment as a sexual psychopath, was not entitled to be released on the ground that he was not mentally ill, as psychiatric testimony established that the petitioner was still a sexual psychopath who was likely to be of danger to others if permitted to return to society. In re J. E. Clatterbuck v. D. W. Harris, Superintendent, etc. (1968, 295 F. Supp. 84).

Release of sexual psychopath

Continued detention in mental institution of a mentally ill person, who was committed under the Sexual Psychopath Act, is unwarranted since, by statutory definition, a mentally ill person cannot be a sex psychopath. E. Norwood v. L. Jacobs (1970, 430 F. 2d 903, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Although an indefinite commitment pursuant to the Sexual Psychopath Law is justifiable only upon a theory of therapeutic treatment, and although the evidence in instant case clearly disclosed that petitioner was not being given therapeutic treatment adequate for his condition, petitioner was not to be released from his confinement as a sexual psychopath, in view of the fact that, while treatment was not being given, the fault lay entirely with petitioner who steadfastly refused appropriate and available treatment, namely, psychotherapy. In re J. E. Clatterbuck v. D. W. Harris, Superintendent, etc. (1968, 295 F. Supp. 84).

Sufficiency of record

Since examining doctors concluded that person committed under sections 22–3501 to 22–3511 was not insane but they had no occasion to consider whether he was nonetheless mentally ill, there was no record on the question and habeas corpus petition must be remanded for hearing and findings of fact necessary to determine whether statute was properly applied to petitioner. T. B. Cross v. D. W. Harris (1969, 418 F. 2d 1095, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

§ 22–3504. Filing of statement.

(a) Whenever it shall appear to the United States attorney for the District of Columbia that any person within the District of Columbia, other than a defendant in a criminal proceeding, is a sexual psychopath, such attorney may file with the clerk of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia a statement in writing setting forth the facts tending to show that such a person is a sexual psychopath.

1970—Section 157(c)(2) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358, amended subsec. (a) by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Criminal sentencing

Where Chief of Legal Psychiatric Division expressed opinion raising doubt of competency for criminal sentencing for allegedly sexually violating the person of a child five years of age, so as to call for a hearing under the Sexual Psychopath Act, trial judge erred in proceeding to sentence for criminal offense, and Court of Appeals would remand for competency hearing. G. Fuller v. United States (1967, 390 F. 2d 468, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 53).

Legislative authority

While Congress has the authority to prohibit acts of exhibition even if the acts are unlikely to do serious harm and may punish willful violations of laws forbidding indecent behavior, the test of what anticipated conduct may justify preventive dention is simply whether legislature has power to prohibit such conduct or to attack evil it portends. T. B. Cross v. D. W. Harris (1969, 418 F. 2d 1095, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

Matters to be considered on remand

Where Court of Appeals remanded case for competency hearing under Sexual Psychopath Act because of psychiatric opinion, district court would be authorized to receive, or to direct prosecutor to file, statement looking toward application of Sexual Psychopath Act, and hearing on remand should also embrace issue of possibility of lack of competency at trial. G. Fuller v. United States (1967, 390 F. 2d 468, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 53).

Where Court of Appeals remanded to District Court case for competency hearing under Sexual Psychopath Act because of psychiatric opinion raising doubt of competency of defendant, inquiry at hearing on remand should embrace mental condition of defendant at time of alleged offense, what kind of judgment or sentence was appropriate, and what kind of disposition should be made of defendant, including a possible civil commitment under the Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act. (21–501 et seq.) Id.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 22–3503, 22–3505, 22–3507 to 22–3511.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Expert testimony

The likelihood of a recurrence of sexual misconduct, likely frequency of such behavior, and magnitude of harm to other persons that is likely to result are three questions of fact on which expert testimony would be relevant in proceeding to commit person under section 22–3501 to 22–3511. T. B. Cross v. D. W. Harris (1969, 418 F. 2d 1095, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

Hearing

Though sexual psychopath statute requires psychiatric report to include a legal conclusion, it also requires a hearing in which psychiatrist can be examined and cross examined. M. I. Millard v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1966, 373 F. 2d 468, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 383; rev'd and remanded 406 F. 2d 964).

Justification for lack of treatment

One involuntarily committed to public hospital as sexual psychopath is entitled to relief upon showing that he was not receiving reasonably suitable and adequate treatment, and lack of such treatment cannot be justified by lack of staff or facilities. M. I. Millard v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1966, 373 F. 2d 468, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 383; rev'd and remanded 406 F. 2d 964).

Psychiatrists report as basis for commitment

Conclusory statement in psychiatrists' report was insufficient for commitment as sexual psychopath, in absence of full hearing, and court's statement that it acted upon "the testimony and evidence adduced" did not provide adequate assurance that statute had been complied with and that an informed judgment had been made. M. I. Millard v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1966, 373 F. 2d 468, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 383; rev'd and remanded 406 F. 2d 964).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Basis for indefinite commitment

Indefinite commitment under sexual psychopath law is justifiable only upon a theory of therapeutic treatment. M. I. Millard v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1966, 373 F. 2d 468, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 383; rev'd and remanded 406 F. 2d 964).

Hearing

Though sexual psychopath statute requires psychiatric report to include a legal conclusion, it also requires a hearing in which psychiatrist can be examined and cross examined. M. I. Millard v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1966, 373 F. 2d 468, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 383; rev'd and remanded 406 F. 2d 964).

Psychiatrists report as basis for commitment

Conclusory statement in psychiatrists' report was insufficient for commitment as sexual psychopath, in absence of full hearing, and court's statement that it acted upon "the testimony and evidence adduced" did not provide adequate assurance that statute had been complied with and that an informed judgment had been made. *M. Release of sexual psychopath

Although an indefinite commitment pursuant to the Sexual Psychopath Law is justifiable only upon a theory of therapeutic treatment, and although the evidence in instant case clearly disclosed that petitioner was not being given therapeutic treatment adequate for his condition, petitioner was not to be released from his confinement as a sexual psychopath, in view of the fact that, while treatment was not being given, the fault lay entirely with petitioner who steadfastly refused appropriate and available treatment, namely, psychotherapy. In re J. E. Clatterbuck v. D. W. Harris, Superintendent, etc. (1968, 295 F. Supp. 84).

Substantial injury

In this case on remand of habeas corpus petition of person committed under sections 22–3501 to 22–3511, if court determines that petitioner was not mentally ill then it must decide whether person, an admitted sexual psychopath under prior construction of these sections, was dangerous to other persons within new construction and a finding of dangerousness must be based on high probability of substantial injury. T. B. Cross v. D. W. Harris (1969, 418 F. 2d 1095, 135 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

Chapter 36.—IMPLEMENTS OF CRIME

§ 22–3601. Possession of implements of crime—Penalty.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 24–203.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

It was not incumbent on the prosecution, in a case involving possession of implements of crime, wherein possession of a large quantity of narcotic paraphernalia was proved, to show that defendant possessor was unable to satisfactorily account for its possession since that was a matter for the defense. W. J. Johnson v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 255 A. 2d 494).

Concurrent sentences

Where defendants received concurrent sentences in prosecution for possession of narcotics, possession of implements of crime, unlawful entry and narcotics vagrancy and evidence was sufficient to support conviction of possession of narcotics and possession of implements of crime, District of Columbia Court of Appeals would not pass upon sufficiency of evidence to support other convictions. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Constitutionality

This section prohibiting possession of any instrument, tool, or other implement that is usually employed, or reasonably may be employed in the commission of any crime, in the absence of a satisfactory account, provides sufficient notice so that persons of ordinary intelligence can ascertain the line separating guilty from innocent acts and therefore is not unconstitutionally vague. L. F. McKoy v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 645).

This section prohibiting possession of any instrument, tool, or other implement that is usually employed, or reasonably may be employed, in commission of any crime, in the absence of a satisfactory account, is constitutional as applied to nonmedical person, who, on arrest, was found to be in possession of a case containing a wet needle, needle holder and syringe, but without the cooker, and whose statements of intent to use hypodermic and needle for injection of heroin were sufficiently corroborated. L. F. McKoy v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 649).

Custodial interrogation

Questions addressed to three defendants by arresting officers seeking an explanation for defendants' being in condemned house were noncoercive and not "custodial interrogation" within rule of Miranda v. State of Arizona. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Duty to arrest

When police detectives saw narcotics paraphernalia in possession of defendants, officers were under statutory duty to arrest the offenders immediately. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Elements of offense

To convict under this section (prohibiting possession of any instrument, tool, or other implement that is usually employed, or reasonably may be employed, in the commission of any crime, in the absence of a satisfactory account), the government must prove that the implements are usually or reasonably may be employed in the commission of crime, and that defendant intended to use implements for crime; proof of intent may be either by inference from possession of sinister items, or otherwise. L. F. McKoy v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 649).

Evidence—Admissibility

Where defendants' arrest for narcotics violations was legal, narcotics paraphernalia seized at time of the arrest was properly admitted in defendants' joint trial for narcotics violations. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

—— Suppression of

The denial of a motion to suppress evidence relating to stolen property and to narcotics paraphernalia found on defendants after the arrest for a pedestrian traffic violation was proper. J. R. West et ano. v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 740).

Intent

Fact that only possible use of complete narcotics "kit", which consisted of a syringe, two needles, a "cooker" and three caps containing traces of heroin, found in defendant's possession was to administer heroin, supplied requisite criminal intent to use such implements in a crime; thus, defendant's conduct fell within proscription of this section prohibiting possession of implements of a crime. L. F. McKoy v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 645).

In the case, the court held that defendant's admission of his intent to use hypodermic and needle for criminal purpose was sufficiently corroborated and statement was sufficiently trustworthy for admission on proof of intent in prosecution for possession of implements of a crime, since although possession of a wet needle, needle holder and syringe but not the cooker, might not be sufficient to establish corpus delicti, it did constitute substantial independent evidence which would tend to establish trustworthiness of admission by defendant, a nonmedical person, to arresting officer. L. F. McKoy v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 649).

Satisfactory account

A "satisfactory account" within meaning of this section prohibiting possession of any instrument, tool, or other implement that is usually employed, or reasonably may be employed, in the commission of any crime in the absence of a satisfactory account means a lawful purpose for possessing such implement. L. F. McKoy v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 645).

The "satisfactory account" clause of this section does not violate the privilege against self-incrimination because of its availability as an affirmative defense. Id.

Subject of search

Under the circumstances of this case, it was not unreasonable for officers to seize pistol which, as convicted felon, defendant was forbidden to possess, incidental to authorized search of his apartment for narcotics, in absence of showing that presence of pistol on premises was attributable to eight-day delay in execution of search warrant. J. E. Curtis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 653).

Warning of constitutional rights

The case was remanded to determine whether defendant who was convicted of possession of implements of crime had been warned of his constitutional rights by arresting officers before he made incriminating statements. W. J. Johnson v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 255 A. 2d 494).

(b) Prosecutions for violations of section 6 of the Act of July 29, 1892 (D.C. Code, sec. 22–1107), relating to disorderly conduct, and for violations of section 9 of that Act (D.C. Code, sec. 22–1112), relating to lewd, indecent, or obscene acts, shall be conducted in the name of the District of Columbia by the Corporation Counsel or his assistants.

(d) An indictment or information brought in the name of the United States may include, in addition to offenses prosecutable by the United States, offenses prosecutable by the District of Columbia, and such prosecution may be conducted either solely by the Corporation Counsel or his assistants or solely by the United States attorney or his assistants if the other prosecuting authority consents.

(e) Separate indictments or informations, or both, charging offenses prosecutable by the District of Columbia and by the United States may be joined for trial if the offenses charged therein could have been joined in the same indictment. NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also § 23–102 and other sections in title 23 in 1967 edition]

Advisory opinions on appeal

Where Court of General Sessions of the District of Columbia granted motion to dismiss disorderly conduct charge on several grounds but subsequently vacated dismissal with respect to jurisdictional ground only and question of prosecutorial authority was certified to Court of Appeals, any action Court of Appeals might take on certified question could not alter dismissal of charges and hence certificate was dismissed. District of Columbia v. M. S. Barry et al. (1967, 387 F. 2d 860, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 295).

Corporation Counsel's authority to prosecute

Under statute restricting corporation counsel's authority to cases in which punishment is fine only or imprisonment not to exceed one year, corporation counsel lacked authority to initiate prosecution for disorderly conduct which was punishable by fine of not more than $250 or imprisonment of not more than 90 days, or both. District of Columbia v. Mark Grimes (1968, 404 F. 2d 1337, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 360).

§ 23–102. Abandonment of prosecution; enlargement of time for taking action

If any person charged with a criminal offense shall have been committed or held to bail to await the action of the grand jury and within nine months thereafter the grand jury shall not have taken action on the case, either by ignoring the charge or by returning an indictment, the prosecution of such charge shall be deemed to have been abandoned and the accused shall be set free or his bail discharged, as the case may be: but, the court having jurisdiction to try the offense for which the person has been committed, when practicable and upon good cause shown in writing and upon due notice to the accused, may from time to time enlarge the time for the taking action in such case by the grand jury. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 605.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

See note preceding section 23–101.

§ 23–103. Statements prior to sentence

Before imposing sentence the court may disclose to the defendant's counsel and to the prosecuting attorney, but not to one and not the other, all or part of any pre-sentencing report submitted to the court in the case. The court also prior to imposing sentence shall afford counsel an opportunity to speak on behalf of the defendant and shall address the defendant personally and ask him if he wishes to make a statement in his own behalf and to present any information in mitigation of punishment. At any time when the defendant or his counsel addresses the court on the sentence to be imposed, the prosecuting attorney shall, if he wishes, have an equivalent opportunity to address the court and to make a recommendation to the court on the sentence to be imposed and to present information in support of his recommendation. Such information as the defendant or his counsel or the prosecuting attorney may present shall at all times be subject to the applicable rules of mutual discovery. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 605.)

§ 23–104. Appeals by United States and District of Columbia

(a)(1) The United States or the District of Columbia may appeal an order, entered before the trial of a person charged with a criminal offense, which directs the return of seized property, suppresses evidence, or otherwise denies the prosecutor the use of evidence at trial, if the United States attorney or the Corporation Counsel conducting the prosecution for such violation certifies to the judge who granted such motion that the appeal is not taken for purpose of delay and the evidence is a substantial proof of the charge pending against the defendant.

(2) A motion for return of seized property or to suppress evidence shall be made before trial unless opportunity therefor did not exist or the defendant was not aware of the grounds for the motion.

(b) The United States or the District of Columbia may appeal a ruling made during the trial of a person charged with a criminal offense which suppresses or otherwise denies the prosecutor the use of evidence on the ground that it was invalidly obtained, if the United States attorney or the Corporation Counsel conducting the prosecution for such violation certifies to the judge who made the ruling that the appeal is not taken for purpose of delay and that the evidence is a substantial proof of the charge being tried against the defendant. The trial court shall adjourn the trial until the appeal shall be resolved; except that, if the decision on appeal has not been rendered within the ninety-six-hour period following the adjournment of the trial, the trial shall resume on the next day of regular court business following the expiration of the ninety-six-hour period, and the appeal shall be deemed void and without effect.

(c) The United States or the District of Columbia may appeal an order dismissing an indictment or information or otherwise terminating a prosecution in favor of a defendant or defendants as to one or more counts thereof, except where there is an acquittal on the merits.

(d) The United States or the District of Columbia may appeal any other ruling made during the trial of a person charged with an offense which the United States attorney or the Corporation Counsel certifies as involving a substantial and recurring question of law which requires appellate resolution. Such an appeal may be taken only during the trial and only with leave of the court. The trial court shall adjourn the trial until the appeal shall be resolved; except that, if the decision on appeal has not been rendered within the ninety-six-hour period following the adjournment of the trial, the trial shall resume on the next day of regular court business following the expiration of the ninety-six-hour period, and the appeal shall be deemed void and without effect.

(e) Any appeal taken pursuant to this section either before or during trial shall be expedited. If an appeal is taken pursuant to subsection (b) or (d) during trial, the appellate court shall hear argument on such appeal within forty-eight hours of the adjournment of the trial pursuant to that subsection shall dispense with any requirement of written briefs other than the supporting materials previously submitted to the trial court, shall render its decision within forty-eight hours of argument on appeal, and may dispense with the issuance of a written opinion in rendering its decision. Such appeal and decision shall not affect the right of the defendant, in a subsequent appeal from a judgment of conviction, to claim as error reversal by the trial court on remand of a ruling appealed from during trial.

(f) Pending the prosecution and determination of an appeal taken pursuant to this section, the defendant shall be detained or released in accordance with chapter 13 of this title. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 606.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 11–721.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also § 23–105 in 1967 Edition]

Appeal by United States

An appeal by the United States from an order granting motion to suppress a pistol, the Court reversed and held that where the defendant was acting in a suspicious manner outside store, officers who were at store to investigate earlier robbery acted reasonably in asking defendant for identification and in seizing pistol as defendant disclosed its presence in the form of a bulge under his waistband while pulling his coat aside in an apparent effort to reach toward his rear pocket and, therefore, the pistol was admissible in prosecution for carrying a pistol without a license. United States v. L. T. Lee (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 566).

Certification to Supreme Court

In this case the Supreme Court held that certification to it under the Federal Criminal Appeals Act (18 U.S.C. 3731) was not proper since (1) the Government's appeal to the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia circuit from dismissal of indictment by a District Court in the District of Columbia was not pursuant to that Act but rather expressly pursuant to this section, which contains no provision allowing transfer to the Supreme Court, and (2) the Court of Appeals made no determination that it lacked jurisdiction to hear the Government's appeal under this section; and returned the case to the Court of Appeals for further proceedings. United States v. P. E. Sweet (1970, 90 S. Ct. 1958, 399 U.S. 517).

Evidence—Admissibility

Since the police officers had what they believed was credible information that defendant who fit description given officers had a gun in his pocket, since defendant was reluctant to remove his hand from his pocket, and since there was obvious large bulge in pocket when he did remove his hand, officers were justified in conducting a limited protective search for weapons, and removal of currency and numbers slips by officer who claimed to have found gun was reasonable and fact numbers slips and money rather than gun were removed from pocket did not render those items inadmissible. United States v. M. Dowling (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 406).

§ 23–105. Challenges to jurors

(a) In a trial for an offense punishable by death, each side is entitled to twenty peremptory challenges. In a trial for an offense punishable by imprisonment for more than one year, each side is entitled to ten peremptory challenges. In all other criminal cases, each side is entitled to three peremptory challenges. If there is more than one defendant, or if a case is prosecuted both by the United States and by the District of Columbia, the court may allow additional peremptory challenges and permit them to be exercised separately or jointly, but in no event shall one side be entitled to more peremptory challenges than the other.

(b) The court may direct that jurors in addition to the regular jury be called and impaneled to sit as alternate jurors. In addition to those otherwise allowed, each side is entitled to one peremptory challenge if one or two alternate jurors are to be impaneled, to two peremptory challenges if three or four alternate jurors are to be impaneled, and to three peremptory challenges if five or six alternate jurors are to be impaneled.

(c) Any juror or alternate juror may be challenged for cause.

(d) No verdict shall be set aside for any cause which might be alleged as ground for challenge of a juror before the jury is sworn, except when the objection to the juror is that he had a bias against the defendant such as would have disqualified him, such disqualification was not known to or suspected by the defendant or his counsel before the juror was sworn, and the basis for such disqualification was the subject of examination or request for examination of the prospective jurors by or on request of the defendant. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 607.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

See note preceding section 23–101.

§ 23–106. Witnesses for defense; fees

The court shall order at any time that a subpoena be issued for service upon a named witness on behalf of a defendant if the defendant makes an application for such an order and makes a satisfactory showing that he is financially unable to pay the fees of the witness and that the presence of the witness is necessary to an adequate defense. If the court orders the subpoena to be issued the costs incurred by the process and the fees of the witness so subpoenaed shall be paid in the same manner in which similar costs and fees are paid in case of a witness subpoenaed in behalf of the prosecuting authority. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 607.)

§ 23–107. Discharge or acquittal of joint defendant during trial in order to be witness

(a) When two or more persons are jointly indicted or charged by information, or charged by separate indictments or informations which have been joined for trial, the court may, with the consent of the prosecuting authority, direct that a defendant who has not gone into his defense be discharged so that he may be a witness for the prosecution.

(b) When two or more persons are jointly tried, a person desiring that another defendant testify on his behalf may request a judgment of acquittal on behalf of such defendant, which the court shall consider in the same manner as a motion made by such defendant.

(c) At the request of a defendant who wishes to testify on behalf of another person with whom he is jointly tried, if the evidence against such defendant is sufficient to be submitted to the jury and if such other person consents, the court may submit the case concerning such defendant to the jury separately so that his testimony may not be considered against him by such jury.

(d) A discharge granted pursuant to subsection (a), or an acquittal secured pursuant to subsection (b) or (c), shall be a bar to another prosecution for the same offense of the defendant so discharged or acquitted. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 607.)

§ 23–108. Depositions.

(a) If a material witness for either the prosecution or the defendant resides more than twenty-five miles from the place of holding court, is sick or infirm, or is about to leave the District of Columbia, and the prosecution or the defendant applies in writing to the court for a commission to examine such witness, the court may grant the commission, and enter an order stating for what length of time notice shall be given to the other party before such witness shall be examined. At or before the time fixed in the notice, when the examination is upon written interrogatories, the other party may file cross-interrogatories. When the examination is conducted orally, the other party may cross-examine the deponent. If the other party fails to file written interrogatories or fails to attend an oral examination, the clerk shall file the following interrogatories:

"(1) Are all your statements in the foregoing answers made from your own personal knowledge? If not, show what is stated upon information and give its source.

"(2) State everything you know in addition to what is stated in your above answers concerning this case favorable to either the prosecution or the defendant."

(b) The court may order in any case that the examination be conducted orally.

(c) The commission shall issue from the clerk's office, the examination of the witnesses shall be made and certified, and the return thereof made in the same manner as in civil cases, and unimportant irregularities or errors in the proceedings under the commission shall not cause the deposition to be excluded where no substantial prejudice can be wrought to the prosecution or the defendant by such irregularities or errors.

(d) Copies of the depositions or answers to interrogatories shall be made available to all of the parties upon the completion of the examination. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 608.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

See note preceding section 23–101.

§ 23–109. Powers of investigators assigned to United States attorney

Any special investigator appointed by the Attorney General and assigned to the United States attorney for the District shall have authority to execute all lawful writs, process, and orders issued under authority of the United States, and command all necessary assistance to execute his duties, and shall have the same powers to make arrests as are possessed by members of the Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 608.)

§ 23–110. Remedies on motion attacking sentence

(a) A prisoner in custody under sentence of the Superior Court claiming the right to be released upon the ground that (1) the sentence was imposed in violation of the Constitution of the United States or the laws of the District of Columbia, (2) the court was without jurisdiction to impose the sentence, (3) the sentence was in excess of the maximum authorized by law, (4) the sentence is otherwise subject to collateral attack, may move the court to vacate, set aside, or correct the sentence.

(b) A motion for such relief may be made at any time.

(c) Unless the motion and files and records of the case conclusively show that the prisoner is entitled to no relief, the court shall cause notice thereof to be served upon the prosecuting authority, grant a prompt hearing thereon, determine the issues, and make findings of fact and conclusions of law with respect thereto. If the court finds that (1) the judgment was rendered without jurisdiction, (2) the sentence imposed was not authorized by law or is otherwise open to collateral attack, (3) there has been such a denial or infringement of the constitutional rights of the prisoner as to render the judgment vulnerable to collateral attack, the court shall vacate and set the judgment aside and shall discharge the prisoner, resentence him, grant a new trial, or correct the sentence, as may appear appropriate.

(d) A court may entertain and determine the motion without requiring the production of the prisoner at the hearing.

(e) The court shall not be required to entertain a second or successive motion for similar relief on behalf of the same prisoner.

(f) An appeal may be taken to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals from the order entered on the motion as from a final judgment on application for a writ of habeas corpus.

(g) An application for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of a prisoner who is authorized to apply for relief by motion pursuant to this section shall not be entertained by the Superior Court or by any Federal or State court if it appears that the applicant has failed to make a motion for relief under this section or that the Superior Court has denied him relief, unless it also appears that the remedy by motion is inadequate or ineffective to test the legality of his detention. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 608.)

§ 23–111. Proceedings to establish previous convictions

(a)(1) No person who stands convicted of an offense under the laws of the District of Columbia shall be sentenced to increased punishment by reason of one or more previous convictions, unless prior to trial or before entry of a plea of guilty, the United States attorney or the Corporation Counsel, as the case may be, files an information with the clerk of the court, and serves a copy of such information on the person or counsel for the person, stating in writing the previous convictions to be relied upon. Upon a showing by the Government that facts regarding previous convictions could not with due diligence be obtained prior to trial or before entry of a plea of guilty, the court may postpone the trial or the taking of the plea of guilty for a reasonable period for the purpose of obtaining such facts. Clerical mistakes in the information may be amended at any time prior to the pronouncement of sentence.

(2) An information may not be filed under this section if the increased punishment which may be imposed is imprisonment for a term in excess of three years, unless the person either waived or was afforded prosecution by indictment for the offense for which such increased punishment may be imposed.

(b) If the prosecutor files an information under this section, the court shall, after conviction but before pronouncement of sentence, inquire of the person with respect to whom the information was filed whether he affirms or denies that he has been previously convicted as alleged in the information, and shall inform him that any challenge to a previous conviction which is not made before sentence is imposed may not thereafter be raised to attack the sentence.

(c)(1) If the person denies any allegation of the information of previous conviction, or claims that any conviction alleged is invalid, he shall file a written response to the information. A copy of the response shall be served upon the prosecutor. The court shall hold a hearing to determine any issues raised by the response which would except the person from increased punishment. The failure of the Government to include in the information the complete criminal record of the person or any facts in addition to the convictions to be relied upon shall not constitute grounds for invalidating the notice given in the information required by subsection (a)(1). The hearing shall be before the court without a jury and either party may introduce evidence. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection, the prosecuting authority shall have the burden of proof beyond a reasonable doubt on any issue of fact. At the request of either party, the court shall enter findings of fact and conclusions of law.

(2) A person claiming that a conviction alleged in the information was obtained in violation of the Constitution of the United States shall set forth his claim, and the factual basis therefor, with particularity in his response to the information. The person shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence on any issue of fact raised by the response. Any challenge to a previous conviction, not raised by response to the information before an increased sentence is imposed in reliance thereon, shall be waived unless good cause be shown for failure to make a timely challenge.

(d)(1) If the person files no response to the information, or if the court determines, after hearing, that the person is subject to increased punishment by reason of previous convictions, the court shall proceed to impose sentence upon him as provided by law.

(2) If the court determines that the person has not been convicted as alleged in the information, that a conviction alleged in the information is invalid, or that the person is otherwise not subject to an increased sentence as a matter of law, the court shall, at the request of the prosecutor, postpone sentence to allow an appeal from that determination. If no such request is made, the court shall impose sentence as provided by law. The person may appeal from an order postponing sentence as if sentence had been pronounced and a final judgment of conviction entered. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 609.)

SUBCHAPTER II.—JOINDER

§ 23–311. Joinder of offenses and of defendants

In ruling on a motion by a defendant for severance the court may order the attorney for the government to deliver to the court for inspection in camera any statements or confessions made by the defendants which the government intends to introduce in evidence at the trial. NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also § 23–301 and other sections in title 23 in 1967 edition]

Sufficiency of warrant

It was not in the interests of justice that Court of Appeals entertain for the first time on appeal objection that warrant authorizing search for and seizure of described clothing worn by defendant at the time of alleged crime did not comply with requirements of a federal rule specifying property for which a search warrant may be issued. W. H. Fuller v. United States (1968, 407 F. 2d 1199, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 264; cert. denied 89 S. Ct. 999).

(3) allegations of fact supporting such statement; and

(4) a request that the judicial officer issue a search warrant directing a search for and seizure of the property in question.

The applicant may also submit depositions or affidavits of other persons containing allegations of fact supporting or tending to support those contained in the application.

(c) The application may also contain—

(1) a request that the search warrant be made executable at any hour of the day or night, upon the ground that there is probable cause to believe that (A) it cannot be executed during the hours of daylight, (B) the property sought is likely to be removed or destroyed if not seized forthwith, or (C) the property sought is not likely to be found except at certain times or in certain circumstances; and

(2) a request that the search warrant authorize the executing officer to break and enter dwelling houses or other buildings or vehicles to be searched without giving notice of his identity and purpose, upon probable cause to believe that one of the conditions set forth in subparagraph (A), (B), or (D) of section 23–591(c)(2) is likely to exist at the time and place at which such warrant is to be executed.

Any request made pursuant to this subsection must be accompanied and supported by allegations of fact supporting such request. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 615.)

Code, sec. 22–505) (resisting a police officer) or other applicable provision of law.

(c) (1) An officer or agent executing a search warrant shall write and subscribe an inventory setting forth the time of the execution of the search warrant and the property seized under it.

§ 23–547. Procedure for authorization or approval of interception of wire or oral communications

(a) Each application for an order authorizing or approving the interception of a wire or oral communication shall be made in writing upon oath or affirmation to a judge and shall state the applicant's authority to make the application. Each application shall include—

(1) the identity of the investigative or law enforcement officer making the application, and the officer authorizing the application;

(2) a full and complete statement of the facts and circumstances relied upon by the applicant to justify his belief that an order should be issued, including (A) details as to the particular offense that has been, is being, or is about to be committed, (B) a particular description of the nature and location of the facilities from which or the place where the communication is to be or was intercepted, (C) a particular description of the type of communications sought to be or which were intercepted, and (D) the identity of the person, if known, who committed, is committing, or is about to commit the offense and whose communications are to be or were intercepted;

(3) a full and complete statement as to whether or not other investigative procedures have been tried and failed or why they reasonably appear or appeared to be unlikely to succeed if tried or to be too dangerous;

(4) a statement of the period of time for which the interception is or was required to be maintained, and if the nature of the investigation is or was such that the authorization for interception should not automatically terminate or should not have automatically terminated when the described type of communication has been or was first obtained, a particular description of facts establishing probable cause to believe that additional communications of the same type will or would occur thereafter;

(5) a full and complete statement of the facts concerning all previous applications, known to the individual authorizing or making the application, made to any judge for authorization to intercept, or for approval of interceptions of, wire or oral communications involving any of the same persons, facilities, or places specified in the application, and the action taken by the judge on each such application; and

(6) where the application is for the extension of an order, a statement setting forth the results thus far obtained from the interception, or a reasonable explanation of the failure to obtain results.

(b) The judge may require the applicant to furnish additional testimony or documentary evidence in support of the application.

(c) Upon application the judge may enter an ex parte order, as requested or as modified, authorizing or approving interception of wire or oral communications within the District of Columbia, if the judge determines on the basis of the facts submitted by the applicant that—

(1) there is or was probable cause for belief that the person whose communication is to be or was interpreted is or was committing, has committed, or is about to commit a particular offense enumerated in section 23–546;

(2) there is or was probable cause for belief that particular communications concerning that offense will or would be obtained through the interception;

(3) normal investigative procedures have or would have been tried and have or had failed or reasonably appear or appeared to be unlikely to succeed if tried or to be too dangerous; and

(4) there is or was probable cause for belief that the facilities from which, or the place where, the wire or oral communications are to be or were intercepted were used, are being used, or are about to be used, in connection with the commission of the offense, or are or were leased to, listed in the name of, or commonly used by the person referred to in paragraph (1).

(d) If the facilities from which a wire communication is to be or was intercepted are or were

(1) such facilities or place are or were being used or are or were about to be used in connection with conspiratorial activities characteristic of organized crime; and

(2) such interceptions will be so conducted as to minimize or eliminate the number of interceptions of privileged wire or oral communications between licensed physicians and patients, licensed attorneys and clients, practicing clergymen and confidants, and husbands and wives.

No otherwise privileged wire or oral communication intercepted in accordance with, or in violation of, the provisions of this subchapter shall lose its privileged character.

(e) Each order authorizing or approving the interception of any wire or oral communication shall specify—

(1) the identity of the person, if known, or otherwise a particular description of the person, if known, whose communications are to be or were intercepted;

(4) the identity of the agency authorized to intercept or whose interception is approved, and of the person authorizing the application; and

(5) the period of time during or for which the interception is authorized or approved, including a statement as to whether or not the interception shall automatically terminate when the described communication has been first obtained.

(f) An order authorizing the interception of a wire or oral communication shall, upon request of the applicant, direct that a communication common carrier, landlord, custodian, or other person shall furnish the applicant forthwith all information, facilities, or technical assistance necessary to accomplish the interception unobstrusively and with a minimum of interference with the services that such carrier, landlord, custodian, or person is according the person whose communications are to be intercepted. Any communication common carrier, landlord, custodian, or other person furnishing such facilities or technical assistance shall be compensated therefore by the applicant at the prevailing rates.

(g) No order entered under this section may authorize or approve the interception of any wire or oral communication for any period longer than is necessary to achieve the objective of the authorization, nor in any event longer than thirty days. Extensions of an order may be granted, but only upon application for an extension made in accordance with subsection (a) of this section and the court making the findings required by subsection (c) of this section. The period of extension shall be no longer than the authorizing judge deems necessary to achieve the purposes for which it was granted and in no event for longer than thirty days. Every order and extension thereof shall contain a provision that the authorization to intercept shall be executed as soon as practicable, shall be conducted in such a way as to minimize or eliminate the interception of communications not otherwise subject to interception under this subchapter, and must terminate upon attainment of the auhorized objective, or in any event in thirty days.

(h) Whenever an order authorizing interception is entered pursuant to this subchapter, the order may require reports to be made to the judge who issued the order showing what progress has been made toward achievement of the authorized objective and the need for continued interception. Reports shall be made at such intervals as the judge may require. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 621.)

In the absence of an order, the interception shall immediately terminate when the communication sought is obtained or when the application for the order is denied, whichever is earlier. In the event the application for approval is denied, or in any other case where the interception is terminated without an order having been issued, the contents of any wire or oral communication intercepted shall be treated as having been obtained in violation of this subchapter, and an inventory shall be served as provided for in section 23–550 on the person named in the application.

(b) When an investigative or law enforcement officer, while engaged in intercepting wire or oral communications in the manner authorized by this subchapter, intercepts wire or oral communications relating either to offenses other than those specified in the order of authorization or to offenses other than those offenses for which interception was made pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, he shall make an application to a judge as soon as practicable for approval for disclosure and use, in accordance with section 23–553, of the information intercepted. SUBCHAPTER IV.—ARREST WARRANT AND SUMMONS

§ 23–561. Issuance, form, and contents

(a)(1) A judicial officer may issue a warrant for the arrest of any person upon a sworn complaint which states facts constituting an offense over which the judicial officer has jurisdicition for trial or preliminary examination, and establishing probable cause to believe that the person committed the offense. More than one warrant may issue on the same complaint.

(2) Upon request of the prosecutor, a summons shall issue instead of an arrest warrant. More than one summons may issue on the same complaint. If a person fails to appear in response to a summons, a warrant shall issue for his arrest.

(b)(1) An arrest warrant shall be signed by the judicial officer and shall state or contain the name of the issuing court, the date of issuance of the warrant, a description of the offense charged, and the name of the person to be arrested or, if his name is unknown, any name or description by which he can be identified with reasonable certainty. It shall command that the person be arrested and brought before the issuing court or officer. If the complaint establishes probable cause to believe that one of the conditions set out in subparagraphs (A) through (D) of section 23–591(c)(2) is likely to exist at the time and place at which such warrant is to be executed, the warrant may contain an authorization that it be executed as provided in section 23–591.

(2) A summons shall be in the same form as an arrest warrant except that it shall summon the person named to appear before the issuing court or officer at a stated time and place.

(c) An arrest warrant may be directed to a specific law enforcement officer or to any classifications of officers of the Metropolitan Police of the District of Columbia or other agency authorized to make arrests or execute process.

(d) Each complaint shall be made in writing upon oath or affirmation. Except for good cause shown, no warrant shall be issued unless the complaint has been approved by an appropriate prosecutor. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 627.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

See note preceding section 23–101.

§ 23–562. Execution and return

(a)(1) A warrant issued pursuant to this subchapter shall be executed by the arrest of the person named. The officer need not have the warrant in his possession at the time of the arrest, but upon request he shall show the warrant to the person as soon as possible. If the officer does not have the warrant in his possession at the time of the arrest, he shall inform the person of the offense charged and of the fact that a warrant has been issued.

(2) A summons shall be served upon a person by delivering a copy to him personally, by leaving it at his dwelling house or usual place of abode with some person of suitable age and discretion then residing therein, or by mailing it to the person's last known address.

(b) (1) The officer executing a warrant shall make return thereof to the judicial officer before whom the person is brought for preliminary examination. At the request of the appropriate prosecutor, any unexecuted and unexpired warrant shall be returned to the issuing court or judicial officer and shall be canceled.

(2) On or before the return day the person to whom a summons was delivered for service shall make return thereof to the court or officer before whom the summons is returnable.

(3) At the request of the appropriate prosecutor made at any time while the complaint is pending, a warrant returned unexecuted and not canceled or expired or a summons returned unserved or a duplicate thereof may be delivered by the judicial officer to the marshal or other authorized person for execution or service.

(c) (1) A law enforcement officer within the District of Columbia making an arrest under a warrant issued pursuant to this subchapter, making an arrest without a warrant, or receiving a person arrested by a special policeman or other person pursuant to section 23–582, shall take the arrested person without unnecessary delay before the court or other judicial officer empowered to commit persons charged with the offense for which the arrest was made. This subsection, however, shall not be construed to conflict with or otherwise supersede section 3501 of title 18, United States Code. When a person arrested without a warrant is brought before a judicial officer, a complaint or information shall be filed forthwith.

(2) Before taking an arrested person to a judicial officer, a law enforcement officer may perform any recording, fingerprinting, photographing, or other preliminary police duties required in the particular case, and if such duties are performed with reasonable promptness, the period of time required therefor shall not constitute a delay within the meaning of this section. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210 (a), title II, 84 Stat. 628.)

§ 23–563. Territorial and other limits

(a) A warrant or summons for an offense punishable by imprisonment for more than one year issued by the Superior Court of the District of Columbia may be served at any place within the jurisdiction of the United States.

(b) A warrant or summons issued by the Superior Court of the District of Columbia for an offense punishable by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by a fine only, or by such imprisonment and a fine, may be served in any place in the District of Columbia but may not be executed more than one year after the date of issuance.

(c) A person arrested outside the District of Columbia on a warrant issued by the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall be taken before a judge, commissioner, or magistrate, and held to answer in the Superior Court pursuant to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure as if the warrant had been issued by the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

(d) When an application alleges that (1) an act which would constitute a felony if committed by an adult has been committed by a child, (2) the child may not with due diligence be found within the District of Columbia, and (3) if the District of Columbia is a party to article XVII of the Interstate Compact on Juveniles, the child is not known to be in a jurisdiction which is a party to such article, a juvenile officer may secure a warrant for the arrest of the child as if he were an adult. When the child is brought before the issuing court or officer pursuant to the warrant he shall be ordered transferred to the Family Division of the Superior Court pursuant to section 16–2302. If the child is found in a jurisdiction which is a party to such article and if the District of Columbia is a party to such article, he shall be returned as provided in that article and the warrant shall be null and void. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 628.)

1970 AMENDMENT OF FORMER SECTION 23–306

Section 2 of Act Oct. 22, 1970, Pub. L. 91–497, 84 Stat. 1093, provided:

Subsection (b) of section 207 of the Act entitled "An Act to provide for the more effective prevention, detection, and punishment of crime in the District of Columbia", approved June 29, 1953 (D.C. Code, 23–306(b)) is amended—

(1) by striking out "section 863(a)" and inserting in lieu thereof "sections 863(a) and 842 (b) and (c)"; and

(2) by inserting immediately before the period at the end the following: "(failure to pay for lodging or food; D.C. Code, sec. 22–1301)".

As so amended, former section 23–306 read:

§ 23–306. Arrests without warrant for unlawful possession of implements of crime—Burglar tools—Weapons—Lottery tickets—Stolen property.

(a) Arrests without a warrant, and searches of the person and seizures pursuant thereto, may be made for violation of any section listed in subsection (b), by police officers, as in the case of a felony, upon probable cause that the person arrested is violating the section involved at the time of arrest.

(b) Subsection (a) shall apply with respect to section 22–3601 (possession of implements of crime), sections 22–3203, 22–3204, and 22–3214, providing for the control of dangerous weapons in the District, section 22–1502 (possession of lottery tickets), and section 22–1301(b) and (c) (failure to pay for food and lodging).

(c) Arrests without a warrant, and searches of the person and seizures pursuant thereto, may be made for violation of section 22–2202 (petit larceny), by police officers, as in the case of a felony, upon probable cause that the person arrested has in his possession at the time of the arrest, property taken in violation of that section.

(d) No evidence discovered in the course of any arrest, search, or seizure authorized by this section shall be admissible in any criminal proceeding against the person arrested unless at the time of such arrest he was violating one of the sections referred to in subsection (b) or had in his possession property taken in violation of the section referred to in subsection (c).

[Title 23 was enacted into law by section 210(a) of Pub. L. 91–358, eff. Feb. 1, 1971. As of that date, section 207 of the Act of June 29, 1953 (former section 23–306) was repealed by section 210(b)(10) of Pub. L. 91–358.]

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also § 23–306 and other sections of title 23 in 1967 edition]

Cause for arrest

Where a police officer had a conversation with the victim of an assault and petit larceny and proceeded in patrol car in search of the assailants, and the stolen articles were in plain view of officer in defendant's hand and at his feet in the gutter, an arrest was authorized when the officer saw the stolen articles, R. L. Thompkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 636).

Where in making an initial stop of the defendant, the officer was engaged in routine on-the-street investigation in nearby area of a crime minutes after it occurred in an early hour of the morning in his effort to find perpetrator while the trail was still warm, and under these circumstances the initial stop of defendant was neither an arrest nor an arbitrary detention, but arrest occurred after officer saw the articles which fit description of stolen property, which gave sufficient cause to arrest, and seizure was not invalid. Id.

Evidence—Sufficiency

Officer's independent testimony with respect to defendant's possession of gun to which no objection was made was sufficient to support defendant's conviction for carrying pistol without a license. L. G. Lee v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 212).

Probable cause

Arrests without warrant and searches and seizures pursuant thereto may be made for a misdemeanor upon probable cause that the person arrested has in his possession at the time of arrest property taken in violation of section 22–2202. F. C. Clemm, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 260 A. 2d 687).

Police officer, who was told by taxicab driver who pointed toward three men walking on street that driver had seen person up the street tuck gun under his belt, had probable cause to stop and search the only three men who were present on street even though taxicab driver did not say which of the men he had seen with gun, and gun found on person of defendant in such search was admissible. H. L. Gaskins v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 810).

Viewing by officers of the inside of the automobile in which defendant was sitting on parking lot of restaurant at 4:30 a.m. did not constitute a search and was merely a customary check of premises and when they saw two other persons lying down in automobile and observed what appeared to be a .38 caliber cartridge on the floor they had probable cause to believe that there was a dangerous weapon in the automobile and were justified in arresting defendant, and revolver which was in plain sight when officers opened door to make arrest was admissible. J. E. Lucas v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 574).

Standard to be applied in determining probable cause for arrest is that of a reasonable, cautious and prudent police officer and must be judged in the light of his experience and training, and bases for finding of probable cause must be those factual and practical considerations of everyday life on which reasonable and prudent men, not legal technicians, act. B. Wright, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 833).

Arrest without a warrant for carrying a dangerous or deadly weapon may be made on probable cause. L. G. Lee v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 212).

Police officer is not privileged to ignore facts which would give him reasonable cause to believe that a person is carrying a dangerous or deadly weapon. Id.

Where officer at early hour in morning saw defendant and another man talking to manager of motel and when officer approached they hurriedly moved away from door and officer received inconsistent answers to his inquiries to the men and officer noted that defendant was carrying bag containing large heavy object and when officer asked if there was gun in the bag, defendant started backing off and did not answer, officer had probable cause to arrest defendant for carrying pistol and to seize the gun. Id.

Evidence established that police officers saw gun handle sticking out of defendant's pocket and had probable cause to believe that defendant was carrying dangerous weapon in violation of law. United States v. P. Jenkins, Jr. (1967, 276 F. Supp. 958).

Police officers may arrest without warrant when there is probable cause to believe that felony has been committed and that arrested person committed it, or when misdemeanor has been committed in their presence or view, and may also arrest for certain misdemeanors, including petit larceny, using probable cause standard. E. C. Singleton v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 315).

Sales clerk may report shoplifting incident to special policeman who can then arrest suspect on probable cause. Id.

Probable cause for arrest

A police officer in the District of Columbia has the power to make a warrantless arrest of a citizen when he has a probable cause to believe that the citizen has committed felony or certain misdemeanors designated by statute, and the classic test for probable cause is whether the officer had knowledge of facts and circumstances which would warrant a prudent man in believing that an offense had been committed. A. B. Clarke v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 782).

Search and seizure

In District of Columbia principle that police may make arrest and incidental search in public place without warrant upon probable cause is applicable to suspected violations of statute prohibiting carrying concealed weapons. United States v. A. Huff et ano. (1967, 279 F. Supp. 143).

Where defendants were lawfully stopped originally pursuant to police officer's power to check for traffic violations and when officer asked driver to check glove compartment for registration card, officer thought he saw a revolver in the compartment, sufficient information existed to warrant officer in believing that an offense had been committed and there was probable cause for search without warrant, and that did not evaporate when no gun was found in glove compartment. Id.

Once cause existed to search automobile for prohibited weapon, likely places within automobile could be inspected. Id.

Special policeman as "police officer"

Special policeman, while on duty and in his prescribed area of authority, is a "police officer" within arrest statute, and may arrest when he has probable cause to believe that arrested person has perpetrated crime of petit larceny on merchandise of his employer. E. C. Singleton v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 315).

Special policeman, who observed defendant's suspicious actions within department store and followed him to another store where defendant produced merchandise from underneath his coat, was authorized to make arrest on basis of probable cause for belief that defendant had committed petit larceny in department store. Id.

Validity of arrest

A defendants' arrest on a charge of petit larceny was lawful depending upon whether arresting officer had probable cause to believe that they had in their possession "fruits of the crime." S. Smith and W. Jeffries v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 247 A. 2d 293).

§ 23–582. Arrests without warrant by other persons

(a) A special policeman shall have the same powers as a law enforcement officer to arrest without warrant for offenses committed within premises to which his jurisdiction extends, and may arrest outside the premises on fresh pursuit for offenses committed on the premises.

(b) A private person may arrest another—

(1) whom he has probable cause to believe is committing in his presence—

(A) a felony, or

(B) an offense enumerated in section 23–581 (a)(2); or

(2) in aid of a law enforcement officer or special policeman, or other person authorized by law to make an arrest.

(c) Any person making an arrest pursuant to this section shall deliver the person arrested to a law enforcement officer without unreasonable delay. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 630.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

SUBCHAPTER VI.—AUTHORITY TO BREAK AND ENTER UNDER CERTAIN CONDITIONS

§ 23–591. Authority to break and enter under certain conditions

(a) Any officer authorized by law to make arrests, or to execute search warrants, or any person aiding such an officer, may break and enter any premises, any outer or inner door or window of a dwelling house or other building, or any part thereof, any vehicle, or anything within such dwelling house, building, or vehicle, or otherwise enter to execute search or arrest warrants, to make an arrest where authorized by law without a warrant, or where necessary to liberate himself or a person aiding him in the execution of such warrant or in making such arrest.

(b) Breaking and entry shall not be made until after such officer or person makes an announcement of his identity and purpose and the officer reasonably believes that admittance to the dwelling house or other building or vehicle is being denied or unreasonably delayed.

(c) An announcement of identity and purpose shall not be required prior to such breaking and entry—

(1) if the warrant expressly authorizes breaking and entry without such a prior announcement, or

(2) if circumstances known to such officer or person at the time of breaking and entry, but, in the case of the execution of a warrant, unknown to the applicant when applying for such warrant, give him probable cause to believe that—

(A) such notice is likely to result in the evidence subject to seizure being easily and quickly destroyed or disposed of,

(B) such notice is likely to endanger the life or safety of the officer or another person,

(C) such notice is likely to enable the party to be arrested to escape, or

(D) such notice would be a useless gesture.

(d) Whoever, after notice is given under subsection (b) or after entry where such notice is unnecessary under subsection (c), destroys, conceals, disposes of, or attempts to destroy, conceal, or dispose of, or otherwise prevents or attempts to prevent the seizure of, evidence subject to seizure shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

(e) As used in this section and in subchapters II and IV, the terms "break and enter" and "breaking and entering" include any use of physical force or violence or other unauthorized entry but do not include entry obtained by trick or strategem. § 23–701. Warrants for the arrest of fugitives from justice

Whenever any person who is (1) within the District of Columbia, (2) charged with any offense committed in any State, and (3) liable by the Constitution and laws of the United States to be delivered over upon the demand of the Governor of that State, any judge of the Superior Court may, upon complaint on oath or affirmation of any credible witness, setting forth the offense, that the person is a fugitive from justice, and such other matters as are necessary to bring the case within the provisions of law, issue a warrant to bring the person so charged before the Superior Court, to answer the complaint. NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Original jurisdiction

The Chief Judge of District Court in District of Columbia exercises an executive function by presiding at extradition hearings and General Sessions Court exercises a judicial function by issuing detention warrant and setting bail, thus there is no court having original jurisdiction over offense within appeal provisions of Bail Reform Act, and appeal from an order of detention is, therefore, properly directed to District of Columbia Court of Appeals. J. T. Hoffman v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 927, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

§ 23–702. Procedure on arrest of fugitives

(a) Any person arrested upon a warrant issued pursuant to section 23–701, or arrested within the District of Columbia as a fugitive from justice without a warrant having been issued, shall be taken before the Criminal Division of the Superior Court for preliminary examination on a complaint charging him as a fugitive.

(b) If, upon the examination of the person charged, it shall appear to the court that there is reasonable cause to believe that the complaint is true and that the person may be lawfully demanded of the chief judge, the person shall be detained or released according to law, in like manner as if the offense had been committed in the District of Columbia, to appear before the court at a future date, allowing thirty days to obtain a requisition from the Governor of the State from which the person is a fugitive. The complaint of fugitivity from another jurisdiction shall create a presumption that the person is unlikely to appear if released, which may be overcome only by clear and convincing proof.

(c) If the person so released or detained shall appear before the court upon the day ordered, he shall be discharged, unless he shall be demanded by requisition, pursuant to subsection (g) of this section or section 23–704, or unless the court shall find cause to detain or to release him as provided by subsection (b) until a later day; but regardless of whether the person shall be detained or released as provided in subsection (b) or discharged, his delivery to any person authorized by the warrant of the Governor shall be a discharge of any bond or obligation.

(d) The Chief of Police of the Metropolitan Police Department shall give notice to the police official or sheriff of the city or county from which the person is a fugitive that the person is so held in the District of Columbia.

(e) A person detained as provided by this section shall not be detained in jail longer than to allow a reasonable time for the person receiving the notice required by subsection (d) to apply for and obtain a proper requisition for the person detained according to the circumstances of the case and the distance of the place where the offense is alleged to have been committed.

(f) (1) At any time prior to the filing of a requisition, a person arrested pursuant to this section may in open court waive further proceedings pursuant to this chapter.

(2) Following waiver, a judge of the Superior Court may, in his discretion, if the United States attorney consents, release the person upon such conditions as the judge shall deem necessary to insure his appearance before the proper official in the State from which he is a fugitive, and shall otherwise order his return to the jurisdiction of that State in the custody of a proper official.

(3) Following waiver, a person not released pursuant to paragraph (2) of this subsection shall be ordered to return to the jurisdiction from which he is a fugitive in the custody of a proper official, and may be detained to await return.

(4) A person detained pursuant to paragraph (3) for more than three days (not including Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays) shall be returned to the court and shall thereupon be released pursuant to paragraph (2), unless the court shall find good reason to extend his detention for an additional three days to obtain the attendance of a proper official of the demanding jurisdiction.

(g) If a person has not waived further proceedings pursuant to subsection (f), and a requisition from the Governor of the jurisdiction from which the person is a fugitive is presented to the court, the court shall order the requistion to be filed and referred to the chief judge for extradition proceedings pursuant to section 23–704, and shall order the person committeed pending those proceedings. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 631).

Any person released pursuant to section 23–702 who fails to appear as required shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 632.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

See note preceding section 23–101.

§ 23–704. Extradition

(a) In all cases where the laws of the United States provide that fugitives from justice shall be delivered up, the chief judge of the Superior Court shall cause to be apprehended and delivered up fugitives from justice who shall be found within the District of Columbia, in the same manner and under the same regulations as the executive authority of a State is required to do by the provisions of chapter 209 of title 18, United States Code, and all executive and judicial officers are required to obey the lawful precepts or other process issued for that purpose, and to aid and assist in that delivery.

(b) The chief judge of the Superior Court may also surrender, on demand of the Governor of any State, any person in the District of Columbia charged in that State in the manner provided in subsection (a) of this section with committing an act in the District of Columbia, or in another State, intentionally resulting in a crime in the State whose executive authority is making the demand, even though the accused was not in that State at the time of the commission of the crime, and has not fled therefrom.

(c) No person apprehended in accordance with the provisions of subsections (a) and (b) of this section shall be delivered over to the agent whom the executive authority demanding him shall have appointed to receive him unless he shall first be taken before the chief judge of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia who shall inform him of the demand made for his surrender, and of the crime with which he is charged, and that he has the right to demand and procure legal counsel.

(d) If the person or his counsel shall state that he desires to test the legality of the person's arrest, the chief judge shall hold a hearing to determine whether the person shall be delivered over as demanded. At the hearing, the person shall have the same rights to challenge his detention and extradition as if the hearing were upon a writ of habeas corpus.

(e) If the chief judge shall order the person delivered over, he may appeal, within twenty-four hours, from that order to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals if the chief judge who rendered the order, or a judge of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, issues a certificate of probable cause. The appeal shall be expedited by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals. An application for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of a person who is authorized to demand a hearing pursuant to this subsection shall not be entertained if it appears that the applicant has failed to demand such a hearing or that the chief judge, after hearing, has ordered him delivered over, unless it also appears that the remedy by hearing is inadequate or ineffective to test the legality of his detention.

(f) Nothing contained in this subsection shall prevent a person from waiving his right to appear before the chief judge of the Superior Court and voluntarily returning in custody of a proper official to the jurisdiction of the State which is demanding him.

(g) No person demanded by the Governor of a State pursuant to this section shall be released upon bond or other obligation except pursuant to an order of a court of the demanding State.

(h) Any associate judge designated by the chief judge or acting chief judge shall have the same power to act pursuant to this section as the chief judge. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 632.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also § 23–401 and other sections in title 23 in 1967 edition]

Affidavit—Sufficiency of Affidavit for interstate rendition of an accused which is framed in the conclusory statutory language and which lacks any identification of sources does not show probable cause under the Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution. O. L. Kirkland and E. Smith v. P. H. Preston and L. Moore (1967, 385 F. 2d 670, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 148).

Where affidavit submitted by Florida authorities in support of extradition alleged in conclusory statutory language that accuseds were guilty of second-degree arson, affidavit was insufficient to show probable cause for extradition and accuseds were entitled to writ of habeas corpus releasing them from custody of asylum jurisdiction. Id.

Criminal arrest

Apprehension of a fugitive for purpose of extradition is a "criminal arrest" since it deprives fugitive of his liberty for purposes of insuring his presence at criminal trial. O. L. Kirkland and E. Smith v. P. H. Preston and L. Moore (1967, 385 F. 2d 670, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 148).

Fourth Amendment Standards

Affidavit submitted by demanding state to chief executive of asylum state for extradition of fugitive must present facts sufficient to establish a showing of probable cause under Fourth Amendment standards. O. L. Kirkland and E. Smith v. P. H. Preston and L. Moore (1967, 385 F. 2d 670, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 148).

The Fourth Amendment, which governs arrests, governs extradition arrests. Id.

To be valid under the Fourth Amendment, an arrest must be preceded by a finding of probable cause. Id.

Indictment

When an extradition demand is accompanied by an indictment, that document embodies a grand jury's judgment that constitutional probable cause exists. O. L. Kirkland and E. Smith v. P. H. Preston and L. Moore (1967. 385 F. 2d 670, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 148).

Original jurisdiction

The Chief Judge of District Court in District of Columbia exercises an executive function by presiding at extradition hearings and General Sessions Court exercises a judicial function by issuing detention warrant and setting bail, thus there is no court having original jurisdiction over offense within appeal provisions of Bail Reform Act, and appeal from an order of detention is, therefore, properly directed to District of Columbia Court of Appeals. J. T. Hoffman v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 927, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

§ 23–705. Removal proceedings and returns to foreign countries not affected

Nothing contained in this chapter shall repeal, modify, or in any way affect existing law concerning the procedure for the return of any person apprehended in the District of Columbia to a Federal judicial district to answer a Federal charge, or repeal, modify, or affect existing law or treaty concerning the return to a foreign country of a person apprehended or detained in the District of Columbia as a fugitive from a foreign country. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 633.)

§ 23–706. Confinement

(a) The agent of the demanding State to whom the prisoner may have been delivered in accordance with the provisions of section 23–704, may, when necessary, confine the prisoner in a facility of the District of Columbia Department of Corrections, and the Department of Corrections must receive and safely keep the prisoner for such reasonable time as will enable the officer or person having charge of him to proceed on his route, such officer or person being chargeable with the expense of keeping.

(b) The officer or agent of a demanding State to whom a prisoner may have been delivered following extradition proceedings in another State, or to whom a prisoner may have been delivered after waiving extradition in the other State, and who is passing through the District of Columbia with a prisoner for the purpose of immediately returning the prisoner to the demanding State, may, when necessary, confine the prisoner in a facility of the Department of Corrections.

The Department of Corrections must receive and safely keep the prisoner for such reasonable time as will enable the officer or agent to proceed on his route, such officer or agent being chargeable with the expense of keeping. That officer or agent shall produce and show to the Department of Corrections satisfactory written evidence of the fact that he is actually transporting the prisoner to the demanding State after a requisition by the executive authority of the demanding State. The prisoner shall not be entitled to demand a new requisition while in the District of Columbia. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 633.)

(2) the term "Governor" means the executive authority of a State.

§ 23–901. Arrests in the District of Columbia by officers of other States

Any member of a duly organized peace unit of any State (or county or municipality thereof) of the United States who enters the District of Columbia in fresh pursuit and continues within the District of Columbia in fresh pursuit of a person in order to arrest him on the ground that he is believed to have committed a felony in such State shall have the same authority to arrest and hold that person in custody as has any member of any duly organized peace unit of the District of Columbia to arrest and hold in custody a person on the ground that he is believed to have committed a felony in the District of Columbia. This section shall not be construed so as to make unlawful any arrest in the District of Columbia which would otherwise be lawful. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 634.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

[See also § 23–501 and other sections in title 23, in 1967 edition]

Compliance with laws of neighboring jurisdiction

Defendants who were observed by Maryland officers parking in an alley and attempting to gain admission to motel located near boundary between Maryland and District of Columbia, Maryland officer's failure to comply with District of Columbia Fresh Pursuit Statute did not vitiate defendants' arrests which took place just beyond dividing line. C. L. Boddie et al. v. State of Maryland (Md. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 290).

Maryland officers who are making arrest in District of Columbia may not with impunity ignore District of Columbia's Fresh Pursuit Statute. Id.

Probable cause for arrest

An arresting officer observing defendants park automobile in an alley alongside a motel and attempt to enter motel at 4:36 a.m. and who knew of prior motel holdups including one that night had probable cause to believe that defendants had committed felony. C. L. Boddie et al. v. State of Maryland (Md. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 290).

Probable cause for an arrest exists when facts and circumstances within the knowledge of arresting officer, or of which he has reasonably trustworthy information, are sufficient to warrant reasonably cautious person to believe that felony has been committed by person arrested. Id.

Only a probability, and not prima facie showing, of criminal activity is the standard of probable cause for arrest. Id.

The rule of probable cause for an arrest is nontechnical conception of reasonable ground for belief of guilt, requiring less evidence for such belief than would justify conviction, but more evidence than that which would arouse mere suspicion. Id.

The fact that officer, who had probable cause to arrest defendants on a charge of assault with intent to murder, did not arrest defendants on that offense, or that defendants were subsequently acquitted of such offense, did not mean that arresting officer did not have probable cause to arrest. Id.

Legality of arrest is measured by existence of probable cause at time of arrest. Id.

§ 23–902. Hearing; commitment; discharge

If an arrest is made in the District of Columbia by an officer of another State in accordance with the provisions of section 23–901, he shall without unnecessary delay take the person arrested before a judge of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, who shall conduct a hearing for the purpose of determining the lawfulness of the arrest. If the judge determines that the arrest was lawful, he shall order the release or detention of the person arrested, pursuant to section 23–702, to await for a reasonable time a requisition from the Governor of the State demanding the extradition of the person arrested. If the judge determines that the arrest was unlawful he shall order the person discharged. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 634.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

See note preceding section 23–101.

§ 23–903. "Fresh pursuit" defined

For purposes of this chapter, the term "fresh pursuit" shall include fresh pursuit as defined by the common law, also the pursuit of a person who has committed a felony or one whom the pursuing officer has reasonable grounds to believe has committed a felony. It shall also include the pursuit of a person whom the pursuing officer has reasonable grounds to believe has committed a felony, although no felony has actually been committed, if there is reasonable ground for believing that a felony has been committed. Such term shall not necessarily imply an instant pursuit, but pursuit without unreasonable delay. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 634.)

§ 23–1103. Procuring business through official or attorney for a consideration prohibited

It shall be unlawful for any bondsman, either directly or indirectly, to give, donate, lend, contribute, or to promise to give, donate, lend, or contribute any money, property, entertainment, or other thing of value whatsoever to any attorney at law, police officer, deputy United States marshal, jailer, probation officer, clerk, or other attaché of a criminal court, or public official of any character, for procuring or assisting in procuring any person to employ the bondsman to execute as surety any bond for compensation in any criminal case in the District of Columbia. § 23–1104. Attorneys procuring employment through official or bondsman for a consideration prohibited

It shall be unlawful for any attorney at law, either directly or indirectly, to give, loan, donate, contribute, or to promise to give, loan, donate, or contribute any money, property, entertainment, or other thing of value whatsoever to, or to split or divide any fee or commission with, any bondsman, police officer, deputy United States marshal, probation officer, bailiff, clerk, or other attaché of any criminal court for causing or procuring or assisting in causing or procuring a person to employ the attorney to represent him in a criminal case in the District of Columbia. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 635.)

It also shall be unlawful for any bondsman to settle, or attempt to settle, or to procure or attempt to procure the dismissal of any indictment, information, or charge against any person in custody or held upon bond in the District of Columbia, with a court, or with the prosecuting attorney in a court in the District of Columbia. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a) title II, 84 Stat. 636.)

§ 23–1106. Posting names of authorized bondsmen; list to be furnished prisoners; prisoners may communicate with bondsmen; record to be kept by police

A typewritten or printed list alphabetically arranged of all persons engaged under the authority of any of the courts of criminal jurisdiction in the District of Columbia in the business of becoming surety upon bonds for compensation in criminal cases shall be posted in a conspicuous place in each police precinct, jail, prisoner's dock, house of detention, and every other place in the District of Columbia in which persons in custody of the law are detained, and one or more copies thereof kept on hand; and when a person who is detained in custody in a place of detention shall request a person in charge thereof to furnish him the name of a bondsman, or to put him in communication with a bondsman, the list shall be furnished to the person in charge of the place of detention within a reasonable time to put the person detained in communication with the bondsman selected, and the person in charge of the place of detention shall contemporaneously with that transaction make in the blotter or book of record kept in the place of dentention, a record showing the name of the person requesting the bondsman, the offense with which the person is charged, the time at which the request was made, the bondsman requested, and the person by whom the bondsman was called, and preserve that as a permanent record in the book or blotter in which entered. § 23–1108. Qualifications of bondsmen; rules to be prescribed by courts; list of agents to be furnished; renewal of authority to act; detailed records to be kept; penalties and disqualifications

(a) It shall be the duty of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia and the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, each, to provide, under reasonable rules and regulations, the qualifications of persons and corporations applying for authority to engage in the bonding business in criminal cases in the District of Columbia, and the terms and conditions upon which the business shall be carried on, and no person or corporation shall, either as principal, or as agent, clerk, or representative of another, engage in the bonding business in either court until he shall, by order of the court, be authorized to do so. The courts, in making these rules and regulations, and in granting authority to persons to engage in the bonding business, shall take into consideration both the financial responsibility and the moral qualities of the person so applying, and no person shall be permitted to engage, either as principal or agent, in the bonding business, who has ever been convicted of an offense involving moral turpitude, or who is not known to be a person of good moral character. It shall be the duty of each of the courts to require every person qualifying to engage in the bonding business as principal to file with the court a list showing the name, age, and residence of each person employed by the bondsman as agent, clerk, or representative in the bonding business, and require an affidavit from each of these persons stating that he will abide by the terms and provisions of this chapter. Each of the courts shall require the authority of each of those persons to be renewed from time to time at such periods as the court may by rule provide, and before the authority shall be renewed the court shall require from each of those persons an affidavit that since his previous qualification to engage in the bonding business he has abided by the provisions of this chapter, and any person swearing falsely in any of the affidavits shall be guilty of perjury.

(b) Each court shall prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary to insure that whenever a bondsman becomes surety for compensation upon a bond in a criminal case before the court, the bondsman shall make a record, which shall be accurate to the best of the maker's knowledge and belief and shall thereafter be open for inspection by the court or its designated representative, and by the designated representative of other law enforcement agencies of the District of Columbia, of the following matters:

(1) the full name and address of the person for whom the bond is executed (referred to in this subsection as the "defendant") and the full name and address of his employer, if any;

(2) the offense with which the defendant is charged;

(3) the name of the court or officer authorizing the defendant's admission to bail;

(4) the amount of the bond;

(5) the name of the person who called the bondsman, if other than the defendant;

(6) the amount of the bondsman's charge for executing the bond;

(7) the full name and address of the person to whom the bondsman presented his bill for the charge;

(8) the full name and address of the person paying the charge; and

(9) the manner of payment of the charge.

Whoever violates any rule or regulation prescribed under this subsection shall be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than six months, or both, and if he is a bondsman shall be disqualified from thereafter engaging in any manner in the bonding business for such period of time as the trial judge shall order. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 637.)

§ 23–1109. Giving advance information of proposed raid prohibited

It shall be unlawful for any police officer or other public official, in advance of any raid by police or other peace officers or public officials or the execution of any search warrant or warrant of arrest, to give or furnish, either directly or indirectly, any information concerning the proposed raid or arrest to any person engaged in any manner in the bonding business, or to any attorney at law; but it shall not be unlawful for any police or other peace officer, in conducting any raid or in executing any search warrant or warrant of arrest, to communicate to any attorney at law or person engaged in the bonding business, any fact necessary to enable the officer to obtain from the attorney at law or person engaged in the bonding business information necessary to enable the officer to carry out the raid or execute the process. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 638.)

§ 23–1110. Designation of official to take bail or collateral when court is not in session; issuance of citations

(a) The judges of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia shall have the authority to appoint some official of the Metropolitan Police Department to act as a clerk of the court with authority to take bail or collateral from persons charged with offenses triable in the Superior Court at all times when the court is not open and its clerks accessible. The official so appointed shall have the same authority at those times with reference to taking bonds or collateral as the clerk of the Municipal Court had on March 3, 1933; shall receive no compensation for these services other than his regular salary; shall be subject to the orders and rules of the Superior Court in discharge of his duties, and may be removed as the clerk at any time by the judges of the court. The United States District Court for the District of Columbia shall have power to authorize the official appointed by the Superior Court to take bond of persons arrested upon writs and process from that court in criminal cases between 4 o'clock postmeridian and 9 o'clock antemeridian and upon Sundays and holidays, and shall have power at any time to revoke the authority granted by it.

(b)(1) An officer or member of the Metropolitan Police Department who arrests without a warrant a person for committing a misdemeanor may, instead of taking him into custody, issue a citation requiring the person to appear before an official of the Metropolitan Police Department designated under subsection (a) of this section to act as a clerk of the Superior Court.

(2) Whenever a person is arrested without a warrant for committing a misdemeanor and is booked and processed pursuant to law, an official of the Metropolitan Police Department designated under subsection (a) of this section to act as a clerk of the Superior Court may issue a citation to him for an appearance in court or at some other designated place, and release him from custody.

(3) No citation may be issued under paragraph (1) or (2) unless the person authorized to issue the citation has reason to believe that the arrested person will not cause injury to persons or damage to property and that he will make an appearance in answer to the citation.

(4) Whoever willfully fails to appear as required in a citation, shall be fined not more than the maximum provided for the misdemeanor for which such citation was issued or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both. Prosecution under this paragraph shall be by the prosecuting officer responsible for prosecuting the offense for which the citation is issued. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 638.)

§ 23–1111. Penalties

Any person violating any provision of this chapter shall be fined not less than $50 nor more than $100, or imprisoned for not less than ten nor more than sixty days, or both, where no other penalty is provided by this chapter; and if the person so convicted is (1) a police officer or other public official, he shall upon recommendation of the trial judge also be forthwith dismissed from office, (2) a bondsman, he shall be disqualified from thereafter engaging in any manner in the bonding business for such a period of time as the trial judge shall order, or (3) an attorney at law, he shall be subject to suspension or disbarment as attorney at law. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 639.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

See note preceding section 23–101.

§ 23–1112. Enforcement

It shall be the duty of the Superior Court and of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia to see that this chapter is enforced, and upon the impaneling of each grand jury in the District of Columbia it shall be the duty of the judge impaneling such jury to charge it to investigate the manner in which this chapter is enforced and all violations thereof in connection with the matter under investigation by such jury. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 639.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23–1303.

§ 23–1303. Interviews with detainees; investigations and reports; information as confidential; consideration and use of reports in making bail determinations

(a) The agency shall, except when impracticable, interview any person detained pursuant to law or charged with an offense in the District of Columbia who is to appear before a judicial officer or whose case arose in or is before any court named in section 23–1302(1). The interview, when requested by a judicial officer, shall also be undertaken with respect to any person charged with intoxication or a traffic violation. The agency shall seek independent verification of information obtained during the interview, shall secure any such person's prior criminal record which shall be made available by the Metropolitan Police Department, and shall prepare a written report of the information for submission to the appropriate judicial officer. The report to the judicial officer shall, where appropriate, include a recommendation as to whether such person should be released or detained under any of the conditions specified in subchapter II of this chapter. If the agency does not make a recommendation, it shall submit a report without recommendation. The agency shall provide copies of its report and recommendations (if any) to the United States attorney for the District of Columbia or the Corporation Counsel of the District of Columbia, and to counsel for the person concerning whom the report is made. The report shall include but not be limited to information concerning the person accused, his family, his community ties, residence, employment, and prior criminal record, and may include such additional verified information as may become available to the agency.

(b) With respect to persons seeking review under subchapter II of this chapter of their detention or conditions of release, the agency shall review its report, seek and verify such new information as may be necessary, and modify or supplement its report to the extent appropriate.

(c) The agency, when requested by any appellate court or a judge or justice thereof, or by any other judicial officer, shall furnish a report as provided in subsection (a) of this section respecting any person whose case is pending before any such appellate court or judicial officer or in whose behalf an application for a bail determination shall have been submitted.

(d) Any information contained in the agency's files, presented in its report, or divulged during the course of any hearing shall not be admissible on the issue of guilt in any judicial proceeding, but such information may be used in proceedings under sections 23–1327, 23–1328, and 23–1329, in perjury proceedings, and for the purposes of impeachment in any subsequent proceeding.

(e) The agency, when reqested by a member or officer of the Metropolitan Police Department acting pursuant to court rules governing the issuance of citations in the District of Columbia, shall furnish to such member or officer a report as provided in subsection (a).

(f) The preparation and the submission by the agency of its report as provided in this section shall be accomplished at the earliest practicable opportunity.

(g) A judicial officer in making a bail determination shall consider the agency's report and its accompanying recommendation, if any. The judicial officer may order such detention or may impose such terms and set such conditions upon release, including requiring the execution of a bail bond with sufficient solvent sureties as shall appear warranted by the facts, except that such judicial officer may not order any detention or establish any term or condition for release not otherwise authorized by law.

(h) The agency shall—

(1) supervise all persons released on nonsurety release, including release on personal recognizance, personal bond, nonfinancial conditions, or cash deposit or percentage deposit with the registry of the court;

(2) make reasonable effort to give notice of each required court appearance to each person released by the court;

(3) serve as coordinator for other agencies and organizations which serve or may be eligible to serve as custodians for persons released under supervision and advise the judicial officer as to the eligibility, availability, and capacity of such agencies and organizations;

(4) assist persons released pursuant to subchapter II of this chapter in securing employment or necessary medical or social services;

(5) inform the judicial officer and the United States attorney for the District of Columbia or the Corporation Counsel of the District of Columbia of any failure to comply with pretrial release conditions or the arrest of persons released under its supervision and recommend modifications of release conditions when appropriate;

(6) prepare, in cooperation with the United States marshal for the District of Columbia and the United States attorney for the District of Columbia, such pretrial detention reports as are required by Rule 46(h) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure; and

(7) perform such other pretrial functions as the executive committee may, from time to time, assign.

Original jurisdiction

The Chief Judge of District Court in District of Columbia exercises an executive function by presiding at extradition hearings and General Sessions Court exercises a judicial function by issuing detention warrant and setting bail, thus there is no court having original jurisdiction over offense within appeal provisions of Bail Reform Act, an appeal from an order of detention is, therefore, properly directed to District of Columbia Court of Appeals. *J. (b) The executive committee shall appoint a Director of the agency who shall be a member of the bar of the District of Columbia. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 641.)

SUBCHAPTER II.—RELEASE AND PRETRIAL DETENTION

§ 23–1321. Release in noncapital cases prior to trial

(a) Any person charged with an offense, other than an offense punishable by death, shall, at his appearance before a judicial officer, be ordered released pending trial on his personal recognizance or upon the execution of an unsecured appearance bond in an amount specified by the judicial officer, unless the officer determines, in the exercise of his discretion, that such a release will not reasonably assure the the [1] appearance of the person as required or the safety of any other person or the community. When such a determination is made, the judicial officer shall, either in lieu of or in addition to the above methods of release, impose the first of the following conditions of release which will reasonably assure the appearance of the person for trial or the safety of any other person or the community, or, if no single condition gives that assurance, any combination of the following conditions:

(1) Place the person in the custody of a designated person or organization agreeing to supervise him.

(2) Place restrictions on the travel, association, or place of abode of the person during the period of release.

(3) Require the execution of an appearance bond in a specified amount and the deposit in the registry of the court, in cash or other security as directed, of a sum not to exceed 10 per centum of the amount of the bond, such deposit to be returned upon the performance of the conditions of release.

(4) Require the execution of a bail bond with sufficient solvent sureties, or the deposit of cash in lieu thereof.

(5) Impose any other condition, including a condition requiring that the person return to custody after specified hours of release for employment or other limited purposes.

No financial condition may be imposed to assure the safety of any other person or the community.

(b) In determining which conditions of release, if any, will reasonably assure the appearance of a person as required or the safety of any other person or the community, the judicial officer shall, on the basis of available information, take into account such matters as the nature and circumstances of the offense charged, the weight of the evidence against such person, his family ties, employment, financial resources, character and mental conditions, past conduct, length of residence in the community, record of convictions, and any record of appearance at court proceedings, flight to avoid prosecution, or failure to appear at court proceedings.

(c) A judicial officer authorizing the release of a person under this section shall issue an appropriate order containing a statement of the conditions imposed, if any, shall inform such person of the penalties applicable to violations of the conditions of his release, shall advise him that a warrant for his arrest will be issued immediately upon any such violation, and shall warn such person of the penalties provided in section 23–1328.

(d) A person for whom conditions of release are imposed and who, after twenty-four hours from the time of the release hearing, continues to be detained as a result of his inability to meet the conditions of release, shall, upon application, be entitled to have the conditions reviewed by the judicial officer who imposed them. Unless the conditions of release are amended and the person is thereupon released, the judicial officer shall set forth in writing the reasons for requiring the conditions imposed. A person who is ordered released on a condition which requires that he return to custody after specified hours shall, upon application, be entitled to a review by the judicial officer who imposed the condition. Unless the requirement is removed and the person is thereupon released on another condition, the judicial officer shall set forth in writing the reasons for continuing the requirement. In the event that the judicial officer who imposed conditions of release is not available, any other judicial officer may review such conditions.

(e) A judicial officer ordering the release of a person on any condition specified in this section may at any time amend his order to impose additional or different conditions of release, except that if the imposition of such additional or different conditions results in the detention of the person as a result of his inability to meet such conditions or in the release of the person on a condition requiring him to return to custody after specified hours, the provisions of subsection (d) shall apply.

(f) Information stated in, or offered in connection with, any order entered pursuant to this section need not conform to the rules pertaining to the admissibility of evidence in a court of law.

(g) Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to prevent the disposition of any case or class of cases by forfeiture of collateral security where such disposition is authorized by the court.

(h) The following shall be applicable to any person detained pursuant to this subchapter:

(1) The person shall be confined, to the extent practicable, in facilities separate from convicted persons awaiting or serving sentences or being held in custody pending appeal.

(2) The person shall be afforded reasonable opportunity for private consultation with counsel and, for good cause shown, shall be released upon order of the judicial officer in the custody of the United States marshal or other appropriate person for limited periods of time to prepare defenses or for other proper reasons.

(July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 642.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 23–1322 to 23–1326, 23–1328, 23–1329.

§ 23–1322. Detention prior to trial

(a) Subject to the provisions of this section, a judicial officer may order pretrial detention of—

(1) a person charged with a dangerous crime, as defined in section 23–1331(3), if the Government certifies by motion that based on such person's pattern of behavior consisting of his past and present conduct, and on the other factors set out in section 23–1321(b), there is no condition or combination of conditions which will reasonably assure the safety of the community;

(2) a person charged with a crime of violence, as defined in section 23–1331(4), if (i) the person has been convicted of a crime of violence within the ten-year period immediately preceding the alleged crime of violence for which he is presently charged; or (ii) the crime of violence was allegedly committed while the person was, with respect to another crime of violence, on bail or other release or on probation, parole, or mandatory release pending completion of a sentence; or

(3) a person charged with any offense if such person, for the purpose of obstructing or attempting to obstruct justice, threatens, injures, intimidates, or attempts to threaten, injure, or intimidate any prospective witness or juror.

(b) No person described in subsection (a) of this section shall be ordered detained unless the judicial officer—

(1) holds a pretrial detention hearing in accordance with the provisions of subsection (c) of this section;

(2) finds—

(A) that there is clear and convincing evidence that the person is a person described in paragraph (1), (2), or (3) of subsection (a) of this section;

(B) that—

(i) in the case of a person described only in paragraph (1) of subsection (a), based on such person's pattern of behavior consisting of his past and present conduct, and on the other factors set out in section 23–1321(b), or

(ii) in the case of a person described in paragraph (2) or (3) of such subsection, based on the factors set out in section 23–1321(b),

there is no condition or combination of conditions of release which will reasonably assure the safety of any other person or the community; and

(C) that, except with respect to a person described in paragraph (3) of subsection (a) of this section, on the basis of information presented by proffer or otherwise to the judicial officer there is a substantial probability that the person committed the offense for which he is present before the judicial officer; and

(3) issues an order of detention accompanied by written findings of fact and the reasons for its entry.

(c) The following procedures shall apply to pretrial detention hearings held pursuant to this section:

(1) Whenever the person is before a judicial officer, the hearing may be initiated on oral motion of the United States attorney.

(2) Whenever the person has been released pursuant to section 23–1321 and it subsequently appears that such person may be subject to pretrial detention, the United States attorney may initiate a pretrial detention hearing by ex parte written motion. Upon such motion the judicial officer may issue a warrant for the arrest of the person and if such person is outside the District of Columbia, he shall be brought before a judicial officer in the district where he is arrested and shall then be transferred to the District of Columbia for proceedings in accordance with the section.

(3) The pretrial detention hearing shall be held immediately upon the person being brought before the judicial officer for such hearing unless the person or the United States attorney moves for a continuance. A continuance granted on motion of the person shall not exceed five calendar days, unless there are extenuating circumstances. A continuance on motion of the United States attorney shall be granted upon good cause shown and shall not exceed three calendar days. The person may be detained pending the hearing.

(4) The person shall be entitled to representation by counsel and shall be entitled to present information by proffer or otherwise, to testify, and to present witnesses in his own behalf.

(5) Information stated in, or offered in connection with, any order entered pursuant to this section need not conform to the rules pertaining to the admissibility of evidence in a court of law.

(6) Testimony of the person given during the hearing shall not be admissible on the issue of guilt in any other judicial proceeding, but such testimony shall be admissible in proceedings under sections 23–1327, 23–1328, and 23–1329, in perjury proceedings, and for the purposes of impeachment in any subsequent proceedings.

(7) Appeals from orders of detention may be taken pursuant to section 23–1324.

(d) The following shall be applicable to persons detained pursuant to this section:

(1) The case of such person shall be placed on an expedited calendar and, consistent with the sound administration of justice, his trial shall be given priority.

(2) Such person shall be treated in accordance with section 23–1321—

(A) upon the expiration of sixty calendar days, unless the trial is in progress or the trial has been delayed at the request of the person other than by the filing of timely motions (excluding motions for continuances); or

(B) whenever a judicial officer finds that a subsequent event has eliminated the basis for such detention.

(3) The person shall be deemed detained pursuant to section 23–1325 if he is convicted.

(e) The judicial officer may detain for a period not to exceed five calendar days a person who comes before him for a bail determination charged with any offense, if it appears that such person is presently on probation, parole, or mandatory release pending completion of sentence for any offense under State or Federal law and that such person may flee or pose a danger to any other person or the community if released. During the five-day period, the United States attorney or the Corporation Counsel for the District of Columbia shall notify the appropriate State or Federal probation or parole officials. If such officials fail or decline to take the person into custody during such period, the person shall be treated in accordance with section 23–1321, unless he is subject to detention under this section. If the person is subsequently convicted of the offense charged, he shall receive credit toward service of sentence for the time he was detained pursuant to this subsection. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 644.)

(b) Upon or before the expiration of three calendar days, the person shall be brought before a judicial officer and the results of the determination shall be presented to such judicial officer. The judicial officer thereupon (1) shall treat the person in accordance with section 23–1321, or (2) upon motion of the United States attorney, may (A) hold a hearing pursuant to section 23–1322, or (B) hold a hearing pursuant to subsection (c) of this section.

(c) A person who is an addict may be ordered detained in custody under medical supervision if the judicial officer—

(1) holds a pretrial detention hearing in accordance with subsection (c) of section 23–1322;

(2) finds that—

§ 23–1324. Appeal from conditions of release

(a) A person who is detained, or whose release on a condition requiring him to return to custody after specified hours is continued, after review of his application pursuant to section 23–1321(d) or section 23–1321(e) by a judicial officer, other than a judge of the court having original jurisdiction over the offense with which he is charged or a judge of a United States court of appeals or a Justice of the Supreme Court, may move the court having original jurisdiction over the offense with which he is charged to amend the order. Such motion shall be determined promptly.

(b) In any case in which a person is detained after (1) a court denies a motion under subsection (a) to amend an order imposing conditions of release, (2) conditions of release have been imposed or amended by a judge of the court having original jurisdiction over the offense charged, or (3) he is ordered detained or an order for his detention has been permitted to stand by a judge of the court having original jurisdiction over the offense charged, an appeal may be taken to the court having appellate jurisdiction over such court. Any order so appealed shall be affirmed if it is supported by the proceedings below. If the order is not so supported, the court may remand the case for a further hearing, or may, with or without additional evidence, order the person released pursuant to section 23–1321(a). The appeal shall be determined promptly.

(c) In any case in which a judicial officer other than a judge of the court having original jurisdiction over the offense with which a person is charged orders his release with or without setting terms or conditions of release, or denies a motion for the pretrial detention of a person, the United States attorney may move the court having original jurisdiction over the offense to amend or revoke the order. Such motion shall be considered promptly.

(d) In any case in which—

(2) a judge of a court having such original jurisdiction does not grant the motion of the United States attorney filed pursuant to subsection (c), the United States attorney may appeal to the court having appellate jurisdiction over such court. Any order so appealed shall be affirmed if it is supported by the proceedings below. If the order is not so supported, (A) the court may remand the case for a further hearing, (B) with or without additional evidence, change the terms or conditions of release, or (C) in cases in which the United States attorney requested pretrial detention pursuant to sections 23–1322 and 23–1323, order such detention. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 647.)

This section is referred to in sections 23–1322, 23–1325.

§ 23–1325. Release in capital cases or after conviction

(a) A person who is charged with an offense punishable by death shall be treated in accordance with the provisions of section 23–1321 unless the judicial officer has reason to believe that no one or more conditions of release will reasonably assure that the person will not flee or pose a danger to any other person or to the community. If such a risk of flight or danger is believed to exist, the person may be ordered detained.

(b) A person who has been convicted of an offense and is awaiting sentence shall be detained unless the judicial officer finds by clear and convincing evidence that he is not likely to flee or pose a danger to any other person or to the property of others. Upon such finding, the judicial officer shall treat the person in accordance with the provisions of section 23–1321.

(c) A person who has been convicted of an offense and sentenced to a term of confinement or imprisonment and has filed an appeal or a petition for a writ of certiorari shall be detained unless the judicial officer finds by clear and convincing evidence that (1) the person is not likely to flee or pose a danger to any other person or to the property of others, and (2) the appeal or petition for a writ of certiorari raises a substantial question of law or fact likely to result in a reversal or an order for new trial. Upon such findings, the judicial officer shall treat the person in accordance with the provisions of section 23–1321.

(d) The provisions of section 23–1324 shall apply to persons detained in accordance with this section, except that the finding of the judicial officer that the appeal or petition for writ of certiorari does not raise by clear and convincing evidence a substantial question of law or fact likely to result in a reversal or order for new trial shall receive de novo consideration in the court in which review is sought. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 647.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23–1322.

§ 23–1326. Release of material witnesses

If it appears by affidavit that the testimony of a person is material in any criminal proceeding, and if it is shown that it may become impracticable to secure his presence by subpena, a judicial officer shall impose conditions of release pursuant to section 23–1321. No material witness shall be detained because of inability to comply with any condition of release if the testimony of such witness can adequately be secured by deposition, and further detention is not necessary to prevent a failure of justice. Release may be delayed for a reasonable period of time until the deposition of the witness can be taken pursuant to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 648.)

(a) Whoever, having been released under this title prior to the commencement of his sentence, willfully fails to appear before any court or judicial officer as required, shall, subject to the provisions of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, incur a forfeiture of any security which was given or pledged for his release, and, in addition, shall, (1) if he was released in connection with a charge of felony, or while awaiting sentence or pending appeal or certiorari prior to commencement of his sentence after conviction of any offense, be fined not more than $5,000 and imprisoned not less than one year and not more than five years, (2) if he was released in connection with a charge of misdemeanor, be fined not more than the maximum provided for such misdemeanor and imprisoned for not less than ninety days and not more than one year, or (3) if he was released for appearance as a material witness, be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both.

(b) Any failure to appear after notice of the appearance date shall be prima facie evidence that such failure to appear is willful. Whether the person was warned when released of the penalties for failure to appear shall be a factor in determining whether such failure to appear was willful, but the giving of such warning shall not be a prerequisite to conviction under this section.

(c) The trier of facts may convict under this section even if the defendant has not received actual notice of the appearance date if (1) reasonable efforts to notify the defendant have been made, and (2) the defendant, by his own actions, has frustrated the receipt of actual notice. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 648.)

(d) Any term of imprisonment imposed pursuant to this section shall be consecutive to any other sentence of imprisonment.

(a) Any person convicted of an offense committed while released pursuant to section 23–1321 shall be subject to the following penalties in addition to any other applicable penalties:

(1) A term of imprisonment of not less than one year and not more than five years if convicted of committing a felony while so released; and

(2) A term of imprisonment of not less than ninety days and not more than one year if convicted of committing a misdemeanor while so released.

(b) The giving of a warning to the person when released of the penalties imposed by this section shall not be a prerequisite to the application of this section.

(c) Any term of imprisonment imposed pursuant to this section shall be consecutive to any other sentence of imprisonment. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 649.)

(a) A person who has been conditionally released pursuant to section 23–1321 and who has violated a condition of release shall be subject to revocation of release, an order of detention, and prosecution for contempt of court.

(b) Proceedings for revocation of release may be initiated on motion of the United States attorney. A warrant for the arrest of a person charged with violating a condition of release may be issued by a judicial officer and if such person is outside the District of Columbia he shall be brought before a judicial officer in the district where he is arrested and shall then be transferred to the District of Columbia for proceedings in accordance with this section. No order of revocation and detention shall be entered unless, after a hearing, the judicial officer finds that—

(1) there is clear and convincing evidence that such person has violated a condition of his release; and

(2) based on the factors set out in subsection (b) of section 23–1321, there is no condition or combination of conditions of release which will reasonably assure that such person will not flee or pose a danger to any other person or the community.

The provisions of subsections (c) and (d) of section 23–1322 shall apply to this subsection.

(c) Contempt sanctions may be imposed if, upon a hearing and in accordance with principles applicable to proceedings for criminal contempt, it is established that such person has intentionally violated a condition of his release. Any person found guilty of criminal contempt for violation of a condition of release shall be imprisoned for not more than six months, or fined not more than $1,000, or both.

(d) Any warrant issued by a judge of the Superior Court for violation of release conditions or for contempt of court, for failure to appear as required, or pursuant to subsection (c)(2) of section 23–1322, may be executed at any place within the jurisdiction of the United States. Such warrants shall be executed by a United States marshal or by any other officer authorized by law. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 649.)

§ 23–1502. Hearing on recall of out-of-State witnesses by State courts; determination; travel allowance; penalty

(a) If a judge of a court of record in any State which by its laws has made provision for commanding persons within that State to attend and testify in the District of Columbia certifies under the seal of the court (1) that there is a criminal prosecution pending in that court, or that a grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence, (2) that a person within the District of Columbia is a material witness in the prosecution or grand jury investigation, and (3) that his presence will be required for a specified number of days, upon presentation of that certificate to any judge of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, except as provided in subsection (c), such judge shall fix a time and place for a hearing, and shall make an order directing the witness to appear at a time and place certain for the hearing.

(b) If at the hearing the judge determines that the witness is material and necessary, that it will not cause undue hardship to the witness to attend and testify in the prosecution or grand jury investigation in the requesting State, and that the laws of such State and of any other State through which the witness may be required to pass by ordinary course of travel, will give to him protection from arrest and the service of civil and criminal process, he shall issue a summons, with a copy of the certificate attached, directing the witness to attend and testify in the prosecution or grand jury investigation, as the case may be, at a time and place specified in the summons. In any such hearing the certificate shall be prima facie evidence of all the facts stated therein.

(c) If the certificate presented under subsection (a) recommends that the witness be taken into immediate custody and delivered to an officer of the requesting State to assure his attendance, in the requesting State, the judge may in lieu of notification of hearing, direct that the witness be forthwith brought before him for a hearing. If the judge at the hearing is satisfied of the desirability of the custody and delivery of the witness, he may, in lieu of issuing subpena or summons, order the witness to be forthwith taken into custody and delivered to an officer of the requesting State. The certificate shall be prima facie proof of the desirability of the custody and delivery of the witness.

(d) Any witness who is summoned as above provided and, after being paid or tendered by some properly authorized person the fees and allowances authorized for witnesses in criminal cases in United States district courts, fails without good cause to attend and testify as directed in the summons, shall be punished in the manner provided for the punishment of any witness who disobeys a summons issued from the Superior Court. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 651.)

§ 23–1503. Certificate providing for attendance of witnesses at criminal prosecutions in the District of Columbia; travel allowance; penalty

(a) If a person in any State, which by its laws has made provision for commanding persons within its borders to attend and testify in criminal prosecutions or grand jury investigations in the District of Columbia, is a material witness in such a prosecution or a grand jury investigation in the District of Columbia which has commenced or is about to commence, a judge may issue a certificate under seal stating these facts and specifying the number of days the witness will be required. The certificate may include a recommendation that the witness be taken into immediate custody and delivered to an officer of the United States or the District of Columbia to assure his attendance in the District of Columbia. This certificate shall be presented to a judge of a court of record in the county in which the witness is found.

(b) If the witness is summoned to attend and testify in the District of Columbia he shall be tendered the fees and allowances authorized for witnesses in criminal cases in United States district courts. A witness who has appeared in accordance with the provisions of the summons shall not be required to remain within the District of Columbia for a period longer than that specified in the certificate, unless otherwise ordered by the court. If the witness, after coming into the District of Columbia, fails without good cause to attend and testify as directed in the summons, he may be punished in the manner provided for the punishment of any other witness who disobeys a summons issued from the court in the District of Columbia where the prosecution has been instituted or the grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 210(a), title II, 84 Stat. 651.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Procedural safeguards

Transfer of prisoners to mental hospital requires protective procedures at least similar to those provided in 1964 Civil Commitment Act (now title 21, section 501, et seq., D.C. Code) providing full system of procedural safeguards before finding of mental illness can be made. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Under section 24–302 providing that if director of department of corrections believes prisoner is mentally ill, he can refer prisoner to psychiatrist and, if psychiatrist concurs in that belief, director can then transfer prisoner to mental hospital, before prisoner may be involuntarily transferrd he is entitled to judicial hearing, jury trial, and same rights of notice, counsel and cross-examination as are provided for in title 21, section 501 et seq., and same procedures for release from hospital as are embodied in those sections. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Bail in felony-murder case

In view of the outstanding detention record of defendant, who had been convicted four times in an eight-year period for felony-murder in connection with an attempted robbery and whose first three convictions had been reversed, coupled with defendant's strong area ties, his family's help, assured employment, his apparent determination to live a useful and productive life, would be admitted to bail pending appeal from fourth conviction. United States v. *E. TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNCIL

Section 402(210) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the regulatory and other functions of the Board of Commissioners, under subsection (b) relating to rules and regulations permitting the discharge of parolees, to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Dispositional alternatives

The parole board has a wide choice of dispositional alternatives: (1) it may excuse the violation altogether and withdraw its warrant; (2) it may immediately revoke parole; and (3) it may withhold revocation until parolee has completed service of his intervening sentence and then revoke parole. A. Shelton et al. v. United States Board of Parole et al. (1967, 388 F. 2d 567, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 311).

The parole board is vested with broad discretion in the dispositional process. Id.

Prompt disposition of consequences of parole violation

Where fact of parole violation has been conclusively established by an adjudication, either state or federal, that a criminal offense was committed during release period, parole violator may apply to parole board for immediate determination of disposition to be made concerning consequences of his parole violation and to seek what is in effect concurrent service on all, or a part of, the unexpired portion of his original sentence with the sentence imposed for criminal offense which constituted the parole violation. A. Shelton et al. v. United States Board of Parole et al. (1967, 388 F. 2d 567, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 311).

Review

The parole board's selection of a particular disposition, after full and fair consideration of available facts, may be regarded as almost unreviewable, but failure to afford a procedure whereby violator may seek a favorable disposition, or an outright refusal to consider proffered evidence in mitigation, is not immune from judicial review. A. Shelton et al. v. United States Board of Parole et al. (1967, 388 F. 2d 567, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 311).

Where parole boards recently issued new regulations, in lieu of informal procedures, concerning the processing and disposition of applications for withdrawal or execution of parole violator warrants prior to expiration of the intervening sentence, appeals not otherwise disposed of would be remanded so that petitioners might pursue the administrative remedies provided in those regulations. Id.

Judicial reviews of dispositional phase of parole revocation proceedings is available, if at all, only after the violator has pursued his administrative remedies. Id.

The parole board's selection of a particular disposition, after full and fair consideration of available facts, may be regarded as almost unreviewable, but failure to afford a procedure whereby violator may seek a favorable disposition, or an outright refusal to consider proffered evidence in mitigation, is not immune from judicial overview. *A. 24–301. Commitment of persons of unsound mind to the District of Columbia General Hospital—Certification to the court—Acquittal by jury on grounds of insanity—Confinement in a mental institution—Conditions for release after confinement — Conditional release — Expenses — Writ of habeas corpus—Inconsistent provisions of Federal Statutes superseded—Return order for apprehension of escaped inmates—Procedure and time limitation for pleading insanity as a defense.

§ 24–301. Commitment of persons of unsound mind to the District of Columbia General Hospital—Certification to the court—Acquittal by jury on grounds of insanity—Confinement in a mental institution—Conditions for release after confinement—Conditional release—Expenses—Writ of habeas corpus—Inconsistent provisions of Federal Statutes superseded—Return order for apprehension of escaped inmates—Procedure and time limitation for pleading insanity as a defense.

(a) If it appears to a court having jurisdiction of—

(1) a person arrested or indicted for, or charged by information with, an offense, or

(2) a child subject to a transfer motion in the Family Division of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia pursuant to section 16–2307, that, from the court's own observations or from prima facie evidence submitted to it and prior to the imposition of sentence, the expiration of any period of probation, or the hearing on the transfer motion, as the case may be, such person or child (hereafter in this subsection and subsection (b) referred to as the "accused") is of unsound mind or is mentally incompetent so as to be unable to understand the proceedings against him or properly to assist in his own defense, the court may order the accused committed to the District of Columbia General Hospital or other mental hospital designated by the court, for such reasonable period as the court may determine for examination and observation and for care and treatment if such is necessary by the psychiatric staff of said hospital. If, after such examination and observation, the superintendent of the hospital, in the case of a mental hospital, or the chief psychiatrist of the District of Columbia General Hospital, in the case of District of Columbia General Hospital, shall report that in his opinion the accused is of unsound mind or mentally incompetent, such report shall be sufficient to authorize the court to commit by order the accused to a hospital for the mentally ill unless the accused or the Government objects, in which event, the court, after hearing without a jury, shall make a judicial determination of the competency of the accused to stand trial or to participate in transfer proceedings. If the court shall find the accused to be then of unsound mind or mentally incompetent to stand trial or to participate in transfer proceedings, the court shall order the accused confined to a hospital for the mentally ill.

(b) Whenever an accused person confined to a hospital for the mentally ill is restored to mental competency in the opinion of the superintendent of said hospital, the superintendent shall certify such fact to the clerk of the court in which the indictment, information, or charge against the accused is pending and such certification shall be sufficient to authorize the court to enter an order thereon adjudicating him to be competent to stand trial or to participate in transfer proceedings, unless the accused or the Government objects, in which event, the court, after hearing without a jury, shall make a judicial determination of the competency of the accused to stand trial or to participate in transfer proceedings.

(c) When any person tried upon an indictment or information for an offense, or tried in the juvenile court of the District of Columbia for an offense, is acquitted solely on the ground that he was insane at the time of its commission, that fact shall be set forth by the jury in their verdict.

(d)(1) If any person tried upon an indictment or information for an offense raises the defense of insanity and is acquitted solely on the ground that he was insane at the time of its commission, he shall be committed to a hospital for the mentally ill until such time as he is eligible for release pursuant to this subsection or subsection (e).

(2) A person confined pursuant to paragraph (1) shall have a hearing, unless waived, within 50 days of his confinement to determine whether he is entitled to release from custody. At the conclusion of the criminal action referred to in pargaraph (1) of this subsection, the court shall provide such person with representation by counsel—

(A) in the case of a person who is eligible to have counsel appointed by the court, by continuing any appointment of counsel made to represent such person in the prior criminal action or by appointing new counsel; or

(B) in the case of a person who is not eligible to have counsel appointed by the court, by assuring representation by retained counsel.

If the hearing is not waived, the court shall cause notice of the hearing to be served upon the person, his counsel, and the prosecuting attorney and hold the hearing. Within ten days from the date the hearing was begun, the court shall determine the issues and make findings of fact and conclusions of law with respect thereto. The person confined shall have the burden of proof. If the court finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the person confined is entitled to his release from custody, either conditional or unconditional, the court shall enter such order as may appear appropriate.

(3) An appeal may be taken from an order entered under paragraph (2) to the court having jurisdiction to review final judgments of the court entering the order.

(e) Where any person has been confined in a hospital for the mentally ill pursuant to subsection (d) of this section, and the superintendent of such hospital certifies (1) that such person has recovered his sanity, (2) that, in the opinion of the superintendent, such person will not in the reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others, and (3) in the opinion of the superintendent, the person is entitled to his unconditional release from the hospital, and such certificate is filed with the clerk of the court in which the person was tried, and a copy thereof served on the United States Attorney or the Corporation Counsel of the District of Columbia, whichever office prosecuted the accused, such certificate shall be sufficient to authorize the court to order the unconditional release of the person so confined from further hospitalization at the expiration of fifteen days from the time said certificate was filed and served as above; but the court in its discretion may, or upon objection of the United States or the District of Columbia shall, after due notice, hold a hearing at which evidence as to the mental condition of the person so confined may be submitted, including the testimony of one or more psychiatrists from said hospital. The court shall weigh the evidence and, if the court finds that such person has recovered his sanity and will not in the reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others, the court shall order such person unconditionally released from further confinement in said hospital. If the court does not so find, the court shall order such person returned to said hospital. Where, in the judgment of the superintendent of such hospital, a person confined under subsection (d) above is not in such condition as to warrant his unconditional release, but is in a condition to be conditionally released under supervision, and such certificate is filed and served as above provided, such certificate shall be sufficient to authorize the court to order the release of such person under such conditions as the court shall see fit at the expiration of fifteen days from the time such certificate is filed and served pursuant to this section: Provided, That the provisions as to hearing prior to unconditional release shall also apply to conditional releases, and, if, after a hearing and weighing the evidence, the court shall find that the condition of such person warrants his conditional release, the court shall order his release under such conditions as the court shall see fit, or, if the court does not so find, the court shall order such person returned to such hospital.

(f) When an accused person shall be acquitted solely on the ground of insanity and ordered confined in a hospital for the mentally ill, such person and his estate shall be charged with the expense of his support in such hospital.

(g) Nothing herein contained shall preclude a person confined under the authority of this section from establishing his eligibility for release under the provisions of this section by a writ of habeas corpus.

(h) The provisions of this section shall supersede in the District of Columbia the provisions of any Federal statutes or parts thereof inconsistent with this section.

(i) When a person has been ordered confined in a hospital for the mentally ill pursuant to this section and has escaped from such hospital, the court which ordered confinement shall, upon request of the Government, order the return of the escaped person to such hospital. The return order shall be effective throughout the United States. Any Federal judicial officer within whose jurisdiction the escaped person shall be found shall, upon receipt of the return order issued by the committing court, cause such person to be apprehended and delivered up for return to such hospital.

(j) Insanity shall not be a defense in any criminal proceeding in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia or in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, unless the accused or his attorney in such proceeding, at the time the accused enters his plea of not guilty or within fifteen days thereafter or at such later time as the court may for good cause permit, files with the court and serves upon the prosecuting attorney written notice of his intention to rely on such defense. No person accused of an offense shall be acquitted on the ground that he was insane at the time of its commission unless his insanity, regardless of who raises the issue, is affirmatively established by a preponderance of the evidence.

(k)(1) A person in custody or conditionally released from custody, pursuant to the provisions of this section, claiming the right to be released from custody, the right to any change in the conditions of his release, or other relief concerning his custody, may move the court having jurisdiction to order his release, to release him from custody, to change the conditions of his release, or to grant other relief.

(2) A motion for relief may be made at any time after a hearing has been held or waived pursuant to subsection (d)(2) of this section.

(3) Unless the motion and the files and records of the case conclusively show that the person is entitled to no relief, the court shall cause notice thereof to be served upon the prosecuting authority, grant a prompt hearing thereon, determine the issues, and make findings of fact and conclusions of law with respect thereto. On all issues raised by his motion, the person shall have the burden of proof. If the court finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the person is entitled to his release from custody, either conditional or unconditional, a change in the conditions of his release, or other relief, the court shall enter such order as may appear appropriate.

(4) A court may entertain and determine the motion without requiring the production of the persons at the hearing.

(5) A court shall not be required to entertain a second or successive motion for relief under this section more often than once every six months. A court for good cause shown may in its discretion entertain such a motion more often than once every six months.

(6) An appeal may be taken from an order entered under this section to the court having jurisdiction to review final judgments of the court entering the order.

(7) An application for habeas corpus on behalf of a person who is authorized to apply for relief by motion pursuant to this section shall not be entertained if it appears that the applicant has failed to apply for relief, by motion, to the court having jurisdiction to entertain a motion pursuant to this section, unless it also appears that the remedy by motion is inadequate or ineffective to test the validity of his detention. "(2) a child subject to a transfer motion in the Family Division of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia pursuant to section 16–2307 of the District of Columbia Code.

that, from the court's own observations or from prima facie evidence submitted to it and prior to the imposition of sentence, the expiration of any period of probation, or the hearing on the transfer motion, as the case may be, such person or child (hereafter in this subsection and subsection (b) referred to as the 'accused') is of unsound mind or is mentally incompetent";

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 2–2222, 16–2307, 24–303.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Acquiescence in plea of insanity

Where petitioner had not himself sought introduction of insanity defense at his trial and had not acquiesced in assertion of that defense, his commitment to hospital for the mentally ill following his acquittal by reason of insanity was not authorized and he was entitled to habeas corpus. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Administrative credit against sentence

Defendant, who pleaded guilty in 1964 to narcotics offense carrying mandatory minimum sentence, who, after arrest, was unable to make bail and was thus in jail when he moved for mental examination, and who was given administrative credit for time spent in jail prior to trial before and after commitment for examination, was also entitled to credit against sentence for time spent in hospital pursuant to order for examination, and credit was to be given administratively by Attorney General and not as exercise of sentencing court's discretion. P. R. Sawyer v. R. Clark, Attorney General etc., et al. (1967, 386 F. 2d 633, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Amnesia

Amnesia per se in case where recollection was present during time of alleged offenses and where defendant has ability to construct a knowledge of what happened from other sources, and where he has present ability to follow course of proceedings against him and discuss them rationally with his attorney does not constitute incompetency per se, and loss of memory should bar prosecution only when its presence would in fact be crucial to construction and presentation of defense and hence essential to fairness and accuracy of the proceedings. United States v. R. Wilson (1966, 263 F. Supp. 528).

Where defendant after crimes were committed was involved in automobile accident and suffered cerebral contusions and concussion which resulted in amnesia which prevented him from recollecting any events that took place on afternoon when crimes were committed, but who could construct a knowledge of what transpired from information given to him from other sources, and, except for such vacuity of memory, was perfectly able to follow course of proceedings against him and to discuss them with his attorney, was legally competent to stand trial. Id.

Bases of confinement

Confinement of the mentally ill rests upon basis substantially different from that which supports confinement of those convicted of crime since confinement of mentally ill depends not only upon validity of initial commitment but also upon continuing status of the patient. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Burden of proof

Mental patient who seeks complete release from confinement by writ of habeas corpus need only establish, by the preponderance of the evidence, that he is no longer likely to injure himself or other persons because of mental illness. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Since habeas corpus proceeding on petition of mental patient for complete release from confinement is not strictly adversary in nature, conventional rules regarding the burden of coming forward with evidence do not apply, and the hearing court and the parties bear equal responsibility to see that decision is had upon all the relevant evidence. Id.

Burden of proof, in habeas corpus proceeding by one committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty by reason of insanity, is the same as that for civilly committed patients. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Rule that habeas corpus petitioner must prove that his detention is illegal by preponderance of evidence applies in habeas corpus proceeding by one committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty of offense by reason of insanity, and thus court must find, by preponderance of evidence, that patient's commitment is no longer valid, that is, that he is no longer likely to injure himself or other persons due to illness. Id.

Burden of proof after commitment

One who seeks release, without statutory certification by superintendent of hospital, from commitment to hospital after being found not guilty of crime by reason of insanity must show that he has recovered his sanity and that such recovery has reached point where he has no abnormal mental condition which in reasonably foreseeable future would give rise to danger to patient or to public in event of his release. United States v. M. Charnizon (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 586).

Where, at hearing to revoke patient's conditional release from state hospital following commitment after having been found not guilty of crime by reason of insanity, positive expert medical opinion was presented that patient had not recovered and would be danger to himself and others if released, order directing unconditional release of patient did not meet standards set forth by statute and thus, without certificate recommending either conditional or unconditional release and in absence of evidence on his behalf, patient was not entitled to be released. Id.

Burden of proof on petition for release

Petitioner seeking release from hospital by writ of habeas corpus after commitment pursuant to statute after being found not guilty of crime by reason of insanity has burden of showing his eligibility for relief and must establish freedom from such abnormal mental condition as would make individual dangerous to himself or community in reasonably foreseeable future. L. W. Collins v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 377 F. 2d 945, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 306).

Evidence that petitioner was suffering from mental illness of psychotic proportions and that petitioner was daily administered tranquilizing drug and that if medicine were discontinued petitioner would resort to alcohol supported finding that petitioner would be dangerous to himself or others if released. Id.

Commitment after acquittal by reason of insanity

Statute to effect that when, prior to imposition of sentence or prior to expiration of any period of probation, it shall appear to court that accused is of unsound mind or mentally incompetent so as to be unable to understand proceedings against him or to properly assist in his own defense, court may order accused committed for observation and treatment, if necessary, does not authorize commitment after verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity. D. C. Cameron Sup't etc. v. C. Mullen etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 193, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

Under statute to effect that when it appears to court that accused is of unsound mind or mentally incompetent so as to be unable to stand trial, court may confine him for observation and treatment, if necessary, and that, if hospital reports that person is of unsound mind or mentally incompetent, court may commit him to mental hospital unless he or government objects in which event court must hold hearing to determine competency of accused to stand trial, court is empowered to hold a hearing only to determine competency. Id.

Commitment procedure

Commission of criminal acts does not give rise to a presumption of dangerousness which, standing alone, justifies substantial difference in commitment procedures and confinement conditions for mentally ill, and that, while prior criminal conduct is relevant to the determination whether person is mentally ill or dangerous, it cannot justify denial of procedural safeguards for such determination, and that while prior criminal conduct is a relevant consideration, it does not provide automatic basis for allowing significant and arbitrary differences in such conditions where defendant is acquitted on his own plea of insanity. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

There is no reasonable basis for distinction for commitment purposes between those who plead insanity and those who have defense thrust upon them, and neither may be automatically deprived of type of protection afforded by 1964 Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act. Id.

Fact that persons acquitted by reason of insanity have committed criminal acts and that such fact may tend to show they meet requirements for commitment does not remove such requirements nor justify total abandonment of procedures used in civil commitment proceedings to determine whether such requirements have been satisfied. Id.

Persons found not guilty by reason of insanity must be given judicial hearing with procedures substantially similar to those in civil commitment proceedings. Id.

Where feasible, requirements of Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act as to notice, counsel, and jury trial should be followed in connection with judicial hearing afforded persons found not guilty by reason of insanity. Id.

Rule that persons found not guilty by reason of insanity must be given judicial hearing with procedures substantially similar to those in civil commitment proceedings is applicable prospectively only. Id.

Commitment without hearing

Commitment, without hearing, of one found not guilty by reason of insanity is permissible for period required to determine present mental condition. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Competence to stand trial

For purposes of determining one's competence to stand trial, that is, whether he is able to understand proceedings against him or properly assist in his defense, inquiry is focused on present mental condition, namely, at time of trial. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

For purposes of determining criminal responsibility, that is, whether act charged, if committed, was product of mental disease or defect, inquiry is focused on past mental condition, namely at time of offense. Id.

Competency examination

When a trial court has reasonable grounds to suspect a criminal defendant of being an addict, trial court should exercise his discretion and order competency examination of defendant. T. Grennett v. United States (1968, 403 F. 2d 928, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 203).

Competency hearing

Competency hearing must be of record and both parties must be given opportunity to examine all witnesses who testify or report on accused's competence. T. E. Blunt v. United States (1967, 389 F. 2d 545, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 375).

Judicial determination of competency must be an informed one. Id.

Careful evaluation of accused's condition is required of court during competency hearing. Id.

Where, in competency hearing, court blocked attempts to ask hospital's staff psychiatrist about basis for hospital superintendent's conclusion that accused was competent and foreclosed meaningful inquiry when counsel sought to identify area of differences between that conclusion and contrary conclusion of hospital's clinical psychologist, there was no possibility of full and scrupulous evaluation of defendant's competency, precluding informed judicial determination of competency. Id.

Where finding as to competency was based on hearing held almost 30 months before it was determined that there had not been a properly informed judicial determination, a new trial rather than remand for nunc pro tunc proceedings was required. Id.

Competency to stand trial

If accused is not presently insane or potentially dangerous to himself or others, it is illegal to commit him under statute providing that if court, after competency hearing, shall find accused to be then of unsound mind or mentally incompetent to stand trial, court shall order accused confined to hospital for mentally ill. United States v. R. Wilson (1966, 263 F. Supp. 528).

Consent of defense of insanity

Finding that petitioner himself sought introduction of insanity defense at his trial was clearly erroneous in view of evidence, including evidence, that new counsel retained by petitioner's mother did not confer with petitioner prior to filing motion for pretrial mental examination and that petitioner did not even know new counsel's identity when he saw him at hearing on the motion and thought that he was still being represented by assigned counsel. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Finding that petitioner evidenced his acquiescence in insanity defense by waiting almost four years to attack validity of his mandatory commitment to hospital for the mentally ill was not warranted in light of petitioner's apparent disabilities, including his lack of financial means and learning in the law and the likelihood that he had been suffering from some mental illness. Id.

Construction

Mental hospital's examination of defendant properly extended to issues of mental responsibility even though, in terms, this section and order referred only to competency to stand trial. United States v. W. E. Ashe (1970, 427 F. 2d 626, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Where an offense was committed less than one year before hearing on the government's motion for a mental examination and defendant had requested bifurcated trial and had filed notice of insanity defense, the court was justified in invoking provisions relating to mental examination of accused. P. W. Marcey v. D. W. Harris (1968, 400 F. 2d 772, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 301; remanding 287 F. Supp. 73)

Pretrial commitment pursuant to provisions relating to mental examination of accused is for purposes of pretrial mental examination and is not ground for denial of bail otherwise contemplated by Bail Reform Act. Id.

Purpose of statute providing for mandatory commitment of person acquitted on ground that he was insane at time of commission of offense and prescribing release standards was to achieve balance of interest between public and person charged with crime by insuring that in every case where person committed crime as result of mental disease or defect, such person should be given period of hospitalization to guard against imminent recurrence of some criminal act. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Purpose of subsection of District of Columbia Code prohibiting defense of insanity unless accused or his attorney files notice of intention to rely on such defense was to prevent defense being interposed unexpectedly at trial when government was not prepared with evidence to meet it P. W. Marcey v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent, etc. (1968, 287 F. Supp. 73; remanded 400 F. 2d 772).

District of Columbia Code section authorizing commitment to mental institution for mental examination as to defendants charged with criminal offenses should be broadly construed and it authorizes commitment for examination as to mental capacity to commit crime at time offense was committed. Id.

Only those hospitalized pursuant to Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Act are guaranteed by the act civil rights to dispose of property, execute instruments, make purchases, enter into contractual relationships, vote, or hold driver's license. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. v. C. Mullen etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 193, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

Statute to effect that when it appears to court that accused is of unsound mind or is mentally incompetent so as to be unable to understand proceedings against him court may order accused committed for observation and treatment if necessary did not authorize trial judge's affording hearing to determine for commitment purposes mental condition of accused found not guilty by reason of insanity, applying release standards of 1964 Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act or extending to accused rights which the 1964 Act guaranteed only to those civilly committed. Id.

Continuance for mental examination

Continuance should be allowed on clear showing of need for mental examination or for appointment of independent psychiatrist. R. T. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 244 A. 2d 487).

Where defense counsel failed or refused to present to court factual basis for his conclusion that defendant possibly suffered from mental disease or defect at time of alleged crime, trial court's denial of request for continuance was not an abuse of discretion even if such request should have been treated as motion for mental examination and for appointment of independent expert. Id.

Court's findings

Court's findings concerning mental illness and dangerous propensities are not to be disturbed unless they lack support in record or rest on an erroneous legal principle. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Effect of commitment

Commitment to St. Elizabeth's hospital does not automatically render person incompetent for most purposes. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. v. C. Mullen etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 193, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

Eligibility for release

To establish eligibility for release on habeas corpus, patient committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty of offense by reason of insanity must prove freedom from such abnormal mental condition as would make individual dangerous to himself or community in reasonably foreseeable future. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Patients committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty by reason of insanity may establish their eligibility for release by writ of habeas corpus. Id.

Evidence of competence at trial

Full and scrupulous attention must be given to any evidence concerning competency at trial, whether or not there has been a competency hearing. T. E. Blunt v. United States (1967, 389 F. 2d 545, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 375).

Evidence—Sufficiency

In this case in light of the evidence on issue of whether offense was product of mental illness, conviction for robbery of property belonging to United States, assault with a dangerous weapon and carrying dangerous weapon would be affirmed. T. H. Adams v. United States (1969, 413 F. 2d 411, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 137).

Exhaustion of administrative remedy

The administrative remedy for mental patient that must be exhausted prior to petition for habeas corpus is the medical examination, rather than request for examination, and if the examination has been conducted within six months prior to habeas corpus petition, the administrative remedy is exhausted. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Only if the required medical examination is in progress when the mental patient's habeas corpus petition is filed has the patient failed to exhaust his administrative remedy to complete medical examination. Id.

If the mental hospital has ignored its duty to the patient in its care, its misconduct may not be imputed to the patient and thereby prejudice patient's right to judicial review of his custody. Id.

If a mental patient is undergoing medical examination at the time his petition for habeas corpus is filed, the district court should defer action on the petition pending mental hospital's completion of the examination and if, after completion, the patient desires to continue with his petition, the district court should proceed to determination of the issues. Id.

Habeas corpus

Petitioner involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity had right to treatment that was cognizable in habeas corpus, and law and justice required remand for hearing and findings on whether petitioner had received adequate treatment and, if not, the details and circumstances underlying the reason why he had not. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Hearing and findings

Patient, who had been committed to hospital under statute after having been acquitted on criminal charge solely on ground that he was insane, who had received little or no treatment at hospital, and who brought habeas corpus proceeding in federal District Court, was entitled to hearing and findings as to whether he was receiving adequate treatment, and, if he was not, District Court could allow hospital reasonable opportunity to initiate treatment, and unconditional or conditional release might be in order if it should appear that opportunity for treatment had been exhausted or treatment was otherwise inappropriate. W. G. Tribby v. D. Cameron, Superintendent etc. (1967, 379 F. 2d 104, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 327).

Judicial determination by court

Federal district court which had been asked to reimpose complete restriction on patient who had been conditionally released from hospital to which he had been committed after being found not guilty of robbery by reason of insanity was required to make independent judicial determination. F. W. Friend v. United States (1967, 388 F. 2d 579, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 323).

Legally competent

Conceptual range of expression "legally incompetent" only embraces deficiencies in accused which actually prevents his fair trial, and mere deficiency, standing alone, is outside limits of the concept. United States v. R. Wilson (1966, 263 F. Supp. 528).

Mandamus

Without a full record of the trial even if petitioner was constitutionally entitled to further protection of his rights during hospital staff conference held in connection with a pre-indictment mental examination requested by petitioner, it could not be said that presence of petitioner's counsel, as opposed to some alternative device such as recording some or all parts of conference, was an appropriate remedy, so that mandamus to compel an order against hospital to permit presence of petitioner's counsel was not available. R. N. Thornton v. Hon. H. F. Corcoran (1969, 407 F. 2d 695, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 232).

Mandatory commitment

Mandatory commitment under statute providing that any person acquitted solely on ground that he was insane at time of commission of crime shall be confined in a hospital for the mentally ill is permissible only if defendant affirmatively relied on defense of insanity. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 241, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

Under statute providing that any person acquitted solely on ground that he was insane at time of commission of crime shall be confined in hospital for mentally ill,

Congress did not intend to allow automatic commitment when the defense of insanity was thrust upon a defendant who objected to it. Id.

Mental examination before verdict

The decision to commit is a matter of discretion with the court and the exercise of that discretion will not lightly be disturbed.

The evidence did not show a need for a mental examination. F. E. Wesley v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 233 A. 2d 514).

Mentally ill person

A person is "mentally ill" if he suffers from an abnormal condition of mind that substantially affects mental or emotional processes, and substantially impairs behavioral control. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Periodic examinations

Statute governing release of persons acquitted by reason of insanity entitles patient to periodic examinations by hospital staff and right to be examined by outside psychiatrist and, if one of examining physicians believes he should no longer be hospitalized, he is entitled to court hearing. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Rule that patient committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty of offense by reason of insanity is entitled to periodic examinations by hospital staff and right to be examined by outside psychiatrist, and that if one of examining physicians believes he should no longer be hospitalized, he is entitled to court hearing applies to all cases including those previously committed under statute providing for mandatory commitment of persons acquitted by reason of insanity. Id.

Petition for release

When a mental hospital patient's habeas corpus petition for release from mental hospital is based on his mental health at time petition was filed, the petition is not subject to dismissal on grounds that the merits of his claim had been determined in prior proceedings or that failure to present the issues in prior proceedings amounted to inexcusable neglect. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Since ten months had elapsed between denial of previous petition for habeas corpus and mental patient's subsequent petition, sufficient time had passed for patient to raise issue that his condition at time of petition warranted his release from confinement in mental institution. Id.

Policy of statute

Underlying policy of statute government commitment and release of persons found not guilty of crime by reason of insanity is to provide treatment and cure for individual in manner which affords reasonable assurance of public safety. United States v. M. Charnizon (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 586).

Pretrial mental examination

Since the defendant who allegedly had history of drug addiction was opposed to pretrial motion for mental examination and, on interrogation by the court with questions designed to elicit degree of his understanding of his legal circumstances as well as his position on the motion, his responses to former were clear and his opposition to commitment was steadfast, the trial court did not err in denying motion. United States v. M. W. Collins (1970, 433 F. 2d 550, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Although five months before trial it had been determined that defendant was suffering from drug addiction which was in remission, where defendant did not testify, there was no expert testimony as to any abnormal mental condition, defendant did not seek hearing and there was no evidence of long record of disturbed behavior, failure of trial judge sua sponte to grant hearing on issue of mental competence to stand trial was not basis for reversal. R. R. Powell v. United States (1966, 373 F. 2d 225, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 364).

There must be facts which create a substantial doubt of defendant's mental competence before due process requires the trial judge to order hearing thereon sua sponte. Id.

Proof of need for mental examination

Motion for mental examination is made on adequate averment, not on counsel's belief, however sincere, that certain undisclosed facts lead him, or a psychiatrist, or a social psychologist, to suspect examination is required. R. T. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1968, 244 A. 2d 487).

Counsel may in his motion for continuance offer to make ex parte proffer of facts showing need for mental examination and for appointment of independent psychiatrist. Id.

Where motion for continuance was supported by counsel's statement that certain undisclosed facts lead him to believe that defendant suffered from mental disease at time of trial but did not state facts on which such belief was based, denial of continuance did not deprive defendant of substantial rights or fair trial. Id.

Psychologist's qualifications

Court which rather than evaluating psychologist's qualifications in competency hearing turned hearing into inquiry into any psychologist's competency, without medical training, to make informed observations about accused was erroneous. T. E. Blunt v. United States (1967, 389 F. 2d 545, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 375).

Lack of general medical background may affect weight given to psychologist's testimony in incompetency hearing. Id.

Psychiatric assistance

As to assertion of a claim, on appeal from denial of habeas corpus relief, that the petitioner had not had such court-appointed psychiatric assistance to which interests of justice entitled him for the preparation and presentation of his habeas corpus case, the court would take judicial notice that over a dozen years or more the medical views of government psychiatrists, as a whole, generally turned out to be more favorable to defendants than to the prosecutors in verdicts of not guilty by reason of insanity. A. Proctor v. D. W. Harris (1969, 413 F. 2d 383, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 109).

The petitioner, who sought release from a mental hospital to which he was confined pursuant to commitment following a verdict of not guilty of criminal charges by reason of insanity, and on whose application an independent psychiatric examination was ordered, was granted full and meaningful habeas corpus hearing without being denied any relevant or other legitimate assistance from government employed psychiatrist and was not entitled to relief on the theory that he had not had court-appointed psychiatric assistance to which interests of justice entitled him for preparation and presentation of his habeas corpus case. Id.

Public policy

However strong and pervasive public policy to bring the morally responsible to bar, it cannot subvert constitutional right to fair trial which is not afforded to accused who is prosecuted while legally incompetent. United States v. R. Wilson (1966, 263 F. Supp. 528).

Purpose of detention

Purpose of detention under statute providing for commitment of person acquitted of crime by reason of insanity is not punitive but serves to protect the public and the subject and to afford place and procedure to treat and, if possible, to rehabilitate the subject. L. W. Collins v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 377 F. 2d 945, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 306).

Purpose of involuntary hospitalization

Purpose of involuntary hospitalization is treatment, not punishment. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Questions of fact

The presence of an abnormal mental condition, and the extent to which it impairs mental or emotional processes and controls, are questions of fact; how substantial such an impairment must be to be considered a mental illness is a matter of law. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

The likelihood of future misconduct of the mental patient who seeks release from confinement, the type of misconduct to be expected, and its probable frequency are questions of fact; whether the expected harm, and its apparent likelihood, are sufficiently great to warrant coercive intervention are questions of law. Id.

Reason for continued confinement

That person involuntarily committed and confined has some dangerous propensities does not, standing alone, warrant his continued confinement in a government mental institution; the dangerous propensities must be related to or arise out of an abnormal mental condition. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Continued confinement of one involuntarily committed on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity depends not upon fact that he committed the acts, but upon his present mental condition. Id.

Reasonable opportunity to initiate treatment

If court finds that a mandatorily committed patient is in custody in violation of Constitution and laws, for failure to receive treatment, it may allow hospital a reasonable opportunity to initiate treatment, but if opportunity for treatment has been exhausted or is otherwise inappropriate, conditional or unconditional release may be in order. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Release provisions

Release provisions of statute governing commitment to mental hospital of one found not guilty by reason of insanity are valid even though they differ from civil commitment procedures by authorizing court review of hospital's decision to release patient. G. C. Bolton v. D. W. Harris, Acting Superintendent etc. (1968, 395 F. 2d 642, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Equal protection is not offended by allowing government or court opportunity to insure that standards for release of civilly committed patients are faithfully applied to patients committed after having been found not guilty by reason of insanity. Id.

Resolution of reasonable doubt

Although patient committed to hospital after having been found not guilty of crime by reason of insanity may have improved materially and appears to be a good prospect for restoration as useful member of society, if abnormal mental condition renders him potentially dangerous, reasonable medical doubts or reasonable judicial doubts are to be resolved in favor of public and in favor of subject's safety. United States v. M. Charnizon (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 586).

In ordering conditional release of patient committed to hospital after having been found not guilty of crime by reason of insanity, court must conclude that individual has recovered sufficiently so that under proposed conditions person will not in reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others. Id.

Review

Review of order revoking conditional release from hospital to which patient had been committed after being found not guilty of robbery by reason of insanity was not precluded by mootness on ground that another conditional release order had been issued, in view of fact that his complete hospital detentions would usually be for relatively brief time, not likely long enough to finish appellate review. F. W. Friend v. United States (1967, 388 F. 2d 579, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 323).

Revocation of conditional release

Noncompliance with conditions of release from hospital by patient who had been committed there after having been found not guilty of robbery by reason of insanity was significant but was not the sole or ultimate consideration in determining whether to revoke conditional release; findings as to his mental condition and dangerousness were required. F. W. Friend v. United States (1967, 388 F. 2d 579, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 323).

Right to treatment

One involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity has a right to treatment. C. C. Rouse v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 373 F. 2d 451, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

On issue of right to treatment of one involuntarily committed on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity, hospital need not show that treatment will cure or improve him but only that there is bona fide effort to do so, and this requires hospital to show that initial and periodic inquiries are made into needs and conditions of patient with view to providing suitable treatment for him, and that the program provided is suited to his particular needs. Id.

On issue of right to treatment of one involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity, effort should be to provide treatment which is adequate in light of present knowledge. Id.

Continuing failure to provide suitable and adequate treatment of one involuntarily committed to mental hospital on being acquitted of an offense by reason of insanity cannot be justified by lack of staff or facilities. Id.

Scope of judicial review

When the mental patient is seeking complete release from confinement, the scope of judicial review of hospital administrator's decision is broader and the function of the hearing court is not simply to review the hospital's decision for unreasonableness, but rather itself to decide ultimate the question of whether the present status of the patient is such that continued confinement is justifiable. D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Scope of mandatory commitment

Notwithstanding fact that appeal of denial of petition for writ of habeas corpus by person, who was acquitted by reason of insanity and summarily committed to mental hospital pursuant to mandatory provisions of District of Columbia statute raised substantial questions concerning scope of mandatory commitment and its relationship to the Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act, in view of petitioner's unconditional release from hospital while appeal was pending, appeal was dismissed as moot. S. I. Solomon v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 377 F. 2d 170, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 285).

Scope of review

That petitioner eloped from hospital, to which she had been committed, after district court had stayed its order of release in habeas corpus proceeding did not render moot government's appeal, inasmuch as district court had jurisdiction over petitioner at time of its order. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. v. C. Mullen etc. (1967, 387 F. 2d 193, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

Appellate function of Court of Appeals was to act upon propriety of decision of district court issuing writ of habeas corpus and ordering release of petitioner committed to hospital, even though petitioner had eloped from hospital after district court had stayed its order of release. Id.

As long as there was outstanding an order of restraint on liberty of petitioner and as long as her custodians were within jurisdiction of Court of Appeals, habeas corpus case involving propriety of committing petitioner to hospital was not moot, and could not be dismissed on ground that petitioner who had eloped from hospital was not in custody for habeas corpus purposes. Id.

Sufficiency of return to petition for release

In this case, the court held that the mental hospital's return to habeas corpus petition filed by mental hospital was not sufficient to warrant trial court in denying plenary hearing on patient's mental condition at time of filing of petition D. A. Dixon v. L. Jacobs, Sup't etc. (1970, 427 F. 2d 589, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Unconstitutional punishment

Defendant committed to hospital pursuant to statute after being found not guilty by reason of insanity on charge of second-degree murder who was not being detained solely for administration of tranquilizing drug which might have been administered outside hospital and who was receiving other forms of therapy was not being unconstitutionally punished. L. W. Collins v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1967, 377 F. 2d 945, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 306).

Waiver of competency hearing

Where conviction was reversed because of error relating to issue of insanity, although newly appointed counsel at second competency hearing agreed to finding of defendant's competency, in view of nature of testimony adduced at prior hearing, defendant's previous history with respect to competency to stand trial and insanity and fact that his counsel apparently did not have benefit of transcript of first hearing, a full hearing was required. T. E. Blunt v. United States (1967, 389 F. 2d 545, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 375).

Fact that neither defendant nor government objected at trial to court's acceptance of hospital certification of competency without holding a hearing could not be viewed as waiver by defendant of his rights, but it did authorize trial court in its discretion to proceed with trial without a competency hearing. C. Heard, Jr. v. United States (1967, 263 F. Supp. 613).

§ 24–302. Commitment of mentally ill person while serving sentence.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Procedural safeguards

Transfer of prisoners to mental hospital requires protective procedures at least similar to those provided in 1964 Civil Commitment Act (now title 21, section 501 et seq., D.C. Code) providing full system of procedural safeguards before finding of mental illness can be made. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Under section 24–302 providing that if director of department of corrections believes prisoner is mentally ill, he can refer prisoner to psychiatrist and, if psychiatrist concurs in that belief, director can then transfer prisoner to mental hospital, before prisoner may be involuntarily transferred he is entitled to judicial hearing, jury trial, and same rights of notice, counsel and cross-examination as are provided for in title 21, section 501 et seq., and same procedures for release from hospital as are embodied in those sections. Id.

Validity of prison officials' policy

The simple fact that the prisoner was back in prison at time case was heard did not relieve court of obligation to appraise validity of prison officials' continuing policy of commitments without hearing to mental institutions, inasmuch as prisoner was still subject to that policy. R. E. Mathews, Jr. v. K. L. Hardy et al. (1969, 420 F. 2d 607, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

§ 24–521. Purpose.

The purpose of this chapter is to establish a comprehensive program in the District of Columbia for the prevention of alcoholism and the rehabilitation of alcoholics, discourage abuse of alcoholic beverages, and provide for medical, psychiatric, and other scientific treatment of chronic alcoholics; to minimize the deleterious effects of excessive drinking; to reduce the financial burden imposed upon the people of the District of Columbia by the abusive use of alcoholic beverages, as is reflected in accidents, inefficiency of personnel, and absenteeism; and to establish methods of handling intoxication and alcoholism that will benefit the individual involved and more fully protect the public. In order to accomplish this purpose and alleviate intoxication and chronic alcoholism, all public officials in the District of Columbia shall take cognizance of the fact that public intoxication shall be handled as a public health problem rather than as a criminal offense, and that a chronic alcoholic is a sick person who needs, is entitled to, and shall be provided appropriate medical, psychiatric, institutional, advisory, and rehabilitative treatment services of the highest caliber for his illness. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 744, ch. 472, § 1; Aug. 3, 1968, Pub. L. 90–452, § 3(a), 82 Stat. 618.)

Any intoxicated person may voluntarily come to a detoxification center for medical attention. The medical officer in charge of a detoxification center shall have the authority to determine whether a person shall be admitted to such center as a patient, or whether he should be referred to another health facility. The medical officer in charge of such center shall have the authority to require any person admitted as a patient under this subsection to remain at such center until he is sober and no longer incapacitated, but in any event no longer than 72 hours after his admission as a patient. If the medical officer concludes that such person should receive treatment at a different facility, he shall arrange for such treatment and for transportation to that facility. A detoxification center may provide medical services to a person who is not admitted as a patient. If such person is not diagnosed as a chronic alcoholic the medical officer in charge of the detoxification center shall deliver to him the violation notice that had been left with the medical officer and such person shall, after he is released by the center, be handled as in any other criminal case.

(2) Any person who is taken into custody in the District of Columbia for violating any criminal provision applicable in the District of Columbia (other than such section 25–128) and who appears to be intoxicated may be taken by the police to a detoxification center where he may be admitted as a patient for an immediate medical evaluation of his condition. If his health is in danger, he may be detained either at the detoxification center or at some other appropriate medical facility until the danger has passed, and he shall then be handled as in any other criminal case. Such security conditions shall be maintained as are commensurate with the seriousness of the offense. In appropriate cases where there is no danger to the safety of any person, the police may leave with the medical officer in charge of the detoxification center a violation notice which shall be delivered to such person when he is released from the detoxification center.

(a) The Commissioner shall maintain a continuing evaluation of his programs and shall conduct pilot and demonstration projects to improve his programs, shall from time to time submit to the Congress such recommendations for programs for the District of Columbia to further the rehabilitation of chronic alcoholics, prevent the excessive and abusive use of alcoholic beverages, and promote moderation in the use of such beverages.

(b) The Commissioner shall prepare and publish materials, data, information, and statistics that relate to the problems of intoxication and alcoholism in the District of Columbia and that may be used in a program of public education directed toward the prevention of the excessive and abusive use of alcoholic beverages.

(c) The Commissioner shall develop a comprehensive plan to implement the objectives and policies of this chapter, and in so doing shall consult and collaborate with appropriate public and private agencies, institutions, and organizations in the District of Columbia, and with the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare. In developing such plan, the Commissioner shall make every effort to utilize funds, programs, and facilities authorized under Federal legislation. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 746, ch. 472, § 13; Aug. 3, 1968, Pub. L. 90–452, § 3(a), 82 Stat. 623.)

Former section 13, of the act of Aug. 4, 1947, was classified to section 24–513, set out in the 1967 edition of the code and provided that the director submit, from time to time, to the Commissioners, his recommendations for furthering the rehabilitation of chronic alcoholics and requiring him to gather and publish data in relation thereto. § 24–534. Liability for cost of treatment—Procedures for determining liability and ability to pay—Waiver of liability, by Commissioner, in certain cases—Actions to recover cost of treatment—Deposit into United States Treasury of sums collected.

(a)(1) Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (2), if a person receives care, treatment, or any other services under this chapter—

(A) such person (or his estate), and

(B) such person's father, mother, spouse, or adult children, shall be liable (each according to his ability, as determined by the Commissioner, and in the order listed above) to reimburse the District of Columbia, for all or such part of the actual cost of providing such services, as the Commissioner may require. The liability of any person described in subparagraph (B) of this paragraph shall be determined by the Commissioner after notice to such person that services have been or will be rendered under this chapter and the Commissioner has found that such person is able to reimburse the District of Columbia for all or a part of the cost of providing such services. Such person may not be held liable for the cost of any services rendered more than ninety days prior to the date of issue of such notice. The Commissioner shall determine the ability of the person who received services under this chapter (or his estate) or his father, mother, spouse, or adult children, as the case may be, to reimburse the District of Columbia, by an examination conducted under oath. In any one case the Commissioner may conduct as many examinations as he determines are necessary to ascertain the ability of such person (or his estate) or his relatives to so reimburse the District of Columbia. In the case of a person committed under section 24–527(a), the Commissioner may conduct such examination at any time after a petition for such person's commitment is filed under such section; and in the case of a person committed under section 24–527(b), such examination may be conducted by the Commissioner at any time after the court serves notice of the hearing to be conducted under paragraph (2) of such section. In all other cases the Commissioner may conduct an examination at any time.

(2) Any person described in subparagraph (B) of paragraph (1) who is liable to the District of Columbia under this section may apply to the Commissioner to have such liability waived. The Commissioner may waive such liability if he determines that it would be unreasonable to impose such liability because of the desertion or neglect of such person by the recipient of services under this chapter or because of other factors similarly affecting the relationship between such person and such recipient. The Commissioner shall prescribe procedures for the filing and hearing of such application under this paragraph.

(b) The Commissioner may bring an action against a person made liable under subsection (a) for all or any part of the cost of services provided under this chapter to require such person to satisfy such liability. In such an action the court may issue an order requiring any such person who is a party to such action to satisfy such liability in accordance with such terms as the court may prescribe. Such order may be enforced in the same manner as orders for alimony.

(c) Sums collected by the Commissioner under this section shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. (Aug. 4, 1947, ch. 472, § 14; Aug. 3, 1968, Pub. L. 90–452, § 3(a), 82 Stat. 623.)

The Commissioner may accept on behalf of the District of Columbia donations of services or gifts of real or personal property, tangible or intangible, which are made for the purpose of carrying out his functions under this chapter. Gifts of money and the proceeds from the liquidation of any other gift shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of a trust fund account, which is hereby authorized, and may be invested and reinvested as trust funds of the District of Columbia. The Commissioner shall use such donations and gifts to carry out the purposes of this chapter. (Aug. 4, 1947, ch. 472, § 15; Aug. 3, 1968, Pub. L. 90–452, § 3(a), 82 Stat. 624.)

AMENDMENT

1968—Section 3(a) of the act of Aug. 3, 1968, inserted a new section 15, as above set out. Former section 15 of the act of Aug. 4, 1967, which was classified to section 24–514 was repealed by section 3(c) of the act of Aug. 3, 1968. Chapter 7.—INTERSTATE AGREEMENT ON DETAINERS

Sec.

24–701. Enactment of Interstate Agreement on Detainers on behalf of the United States and the District of Columbia.
24–702. Definitions.
24–703. Enforcement of Agreement—Cooperation with party States.
24–704. Regulations.
24–705. Congressional authority.

§ 24–701. Enactment of Interstate Agreement on Detainers on behalf of the United States and the District of Columbia.

The Interstate Agreement on Detainers is hereby enacted into law and entered into by the United States on its own behalf and on behalf of the District of Columbia with all jurisdictions legally joining in substantially the form set forth below. (Dec. 9, 1970, Pub. L. 91–538, § 2, 84 Stat. 1397.)

"The contracting States solemnly agree that:

"ARTICLE I

"The party States find that charges outstanding against a prisoner, detainers based on untried indictments, informations, or complaints and difficulties in securing speedy trial of persons already incarcerated in other jurisdictions, produce uncertainties which obstruct programs of prisoner treatment and rehabilitation. Accordingly, it is the policy of the party States and the purpose of this agreement to encourage the expeditious and orderly disposition of such charges and determination of the proper status of any and all detainers based on untried indictments, informations, or complaints. The party States also find that proceedings with reference to such charges and detainers, when emanating from another jurisdiction, cannot properly be had in the absence of cooperative procedures. It is the further purpose of this agreement to provide such cooperative procedures.

"ARTICLE II

"As used in this agreement:

"(a) 'State' shall mean a State of the United States; the United States of America; a territory or possession of the United States; the District of Columbia; the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

"(b) 'Sending State' shall mean a State in which a prisoner is incarcerated at the time that he initiates a request for final disposition pursuant to article III hereof or at the time that a request for custody or availability is initiated pursuant to article IV hereof.

"(c) 'Receiving State' shall mean the State in which trial is to be had on an indictment, information, or complaint pursuant to article III or article IV hereof.

"ARTICLE III

"(a) Whenever a person has entered upon a term of imprisonment in a penal or correctional institution of a party State, and whenever during the continuance of the term of imprisonment there is pending in any other party State any untried indictment, information, or complaint on the basis of which a detainer has been lodged against the prisoner, he shall be brought to trial within one hundred and eighty days after he shall have caused to be delivered to the prosecuting officer and the appropriate court of the prosecuting officer's jurisdiction written notice of the place of his imprisonment and his request for a final disposition to be made of the indictment, information, or complaint: Provided, That, for good cause shown in open court, the prisoner or his counsel being present, the court having jurisdiction of the matter may grant any necessary or reasonable continuance. The request of the prisoner shall be accompanied by a certificate of the appropriate official having custody of the prisoner, stating the term of commitment under which the prisoner is being held, the time already served, the time remaining to be served on the sentence, the amount of good time earned, the time of parole eligibility of the prisoner, and any decision of the State parole agency relating to the prisoner.

"(b) The written notice and request for final disposition referred to in paragraph (a) hereof shall be given or sent by the prisoner to the warden, commissioner of corrections, or other official having custody of him, who shall promptly forward it together with the certificate to the appropriate prosecuting official and court by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested.

"(c) The warden, commissioner of corrections, or other official having custody of the prisoner shall promptly inform him of the source and contents of any detainer lodged against him and shall also inform him of his right to make a request for final disposition of the indictment, information, or complaint on which the detainer is based.

"(d) Any request for final disposition made by a prisoner pursuant to paragraph (a) hereof shall operate as a request for final disposition of all untried indictments, informations, or complaints on the basis of which detainers have been lodged against the prisoner from the State to whose prosecuting official the request for final disposition is specifically directed. The warden, commissioner of corrections, or other official having custody of the prisoner shall forthwith notify all appropriate prosecuting officers and courts in the several jurisdictions within the State to which the prisoner's request for final disposition is being sent of the proceeding being initiated by the prisoner. Any notification sent pursuant to this paragraph shall be accompanied by copies of the prisoner's written notice, request, and the certificate. If trial is not had on any indictment, information, or complaint contemplated hereby prior to the return of the prisoner to the original place of imprisonment, such indictment, information, or complaint shall not be of any further force or effect, and the court shall enter an order dismissing the same with prejudice.

"(e) Any request for final disposition made by a prisoner pursuant to paragraph (a) hereof shall also be deemed to be a waiver of extradition with respect to any charge or proceeding contemplated thereby or included therein by reason of paragraph (d) hereof, and a waiver of extradition to the receiving State to serve any sentence there imposed upon him, after completion of his term of imprisonment in the sending State. The request for final disposition shall also constitute a consent by the prisoner to the production of his body in any court where his presence may be required in order to effectuate the purposes of this agreement and a further consent voluntarily to be returned to the original place of imprisonment in accordance with the provisions of this agreement. Nothing in this paragraph shall prevent the imposition of a concurrent sentence if otherwise permitted by law.

"(f) Escape from custody by the prisoner subsequent to his execution of the request for final disposition referred to in paragraph (a) hereof shall void the request.

"ARTICLE IV

"(a) The appropriate officer of the jurisdiction in which an untried indictment, information, or complaint is pending shall be entitled to have a prisoner against whom he has lodged a detainer and who is serving a term of imprisonment in any party State made available in accordance with article V(a) hereof upon presentation of a written request for temporary custody or availability to the appropriate authorities of the State in which the prisoner is incarcerated: Provided, That the court having jurisdiction of such indictment, information, or complaint shall have duly approved, recorded, and transmitted the request: And provided further, That there shall be a period of thirty days after receipt by the appropriate authorities before the request be honored, within which period the Governor of the sending State may disapprove the request for temporary custody or availability, either upon his own motion or upon motion of the prisoner.

"(b) Upon request of the officer's written request as provided in paragraph (a) hereof, the appropriate authorities having the prisoner in custody shall furnish the officer with a certificate stating the term of commitment under which the prisoner is being held, the time already served, the time remaining to be served on the sentence, the amount of good time earned, the time of parole eligibility of the prisoner, and any decisions of the State parole agency relating to the prisoner. Said authorities simultaneously shall furnish all other officers and appropriate courts in the receiving State who has lodged detainers against the prisoner with similar certificates and with notices informing them of the request for custody or availability and of the reasons therefor.

"(c) In respect of any proceeding made possible by this article, trial shall be commenced within one hundred and twenty days of the arrival of the prisoner in the receiving State, but for good cause shown in open court, the prisoner or his counsel being present, the court having jurisdiction of the matter may grant any necessary or reasonable continuance.

"(d) Nothing contained in this article shall be construed to deprive any prisoner of any right which he may have to contest the legality of his delivery as provided in paragraph (a) hereof, but such delivery may not be opposed or denied on the ground that the executive authority of the sending State has not affirmatively consented to or ordered such delivery.

"(e) If trial is not had on any indictment, information, or complaint contemplated hereby prior to the prisoner's being returned to the original place of imprisonment pursuant to article V(e) hereof, such indictment, information, or complaint shall not be of any further force or effect, and the court shall enter an order dismissing the same with prejudice.

"ARTICLE V

"(a) In response to a request made under article III or article IV hereof, the appropriate authority in a sending State shall offer to deliver temporary custody of such prisoner to the appropriate authority in the State where such indictment, information, or complaint is pending against such person in order that speedy and efficient prosecution may be had. If the request for final disposition is made by the prisoner, the offer of temporary custody shall accompany the written notice provided for in article III of this agreement. In the case of a Federal prisoner, the appropriate authority in the receiving State shall be entitled to temporary custody as provided by this agreement or to the prisoner's presence in Federal custody at the place of trial, whichever custodial arrangement may be approved by the custodian.

"(b) The officer or other representative of a State accepting an offer of temporary custody shall present the following upon demand:

"(1) Proper identification and evidence of his authority to act for the State into whose temporary custody this prisoner is to be given.

"(2) A duly certified copy of the indictment, information, or complaint on the basis of which the detainer has been lodged and on the basis of which the request for temporary custody of the prisoner has been made.

"(c) If the appropriate authority shall refuse or fail to accept temporary custody of said person, or in the event that an action on the indictment, information, or complaint on the basis of which the detainer has been lodged is not brought to trial within the period provided in article III or article IV hereof, the appropriate court of the jurisdiction where the indictment, information, or complaint has been pending shall enter an order dismissing the same with prejudice, and any detainer based thereon shall cease to be of any force or effect.

"(d) The temporary custody referred to in this agreement shall be only for the purpose of permitting prosecution on the charge or charges contained in one or more untried indictments, informations, or complaints which form the basis of the detainer or detainers or for prosecution on any other charge or charges arising out of the same transaction. Except for his attendance at court and while being transported to or from any place at which his presence may be required, the prisoner shall be held in a suitable jail or other facility regularly used for persons awaiting prosecution.

"(e) At the earliest practicable time consonant with the purposes of this agreement, the prisoner shall be returned to the sending State.

"(f) During the continuance of temporary custody or while the prisoner is otherwise being made available for trial as required by this agreement, time being served on the sentence shall continue to run but good time shall be earned by the prisoner only if, and to the extent that, the law and practice of the jurisdiction which imposed the sentence may allow.

"(g) For all purposes other than that for which temporary custody as provided in this agreement is exercised, the prisoner shall be deemed to remain in the custody of and subject to the jurisdiction of the sending State and any escape from temporary custody may be dealt with in the same manner as an escape from the original place of imprisonment or in any other manner permitted by law.

"(h) From the time that a party State receives custody of a prisoner pursuant to this agreement until such prisoner is returned to the territory and custody of the sending State, the State in which the one or more untried indictments, informations, or complaints are pending or in which trial is being had shall be responsible for the prisoner and shall also pay all costs of transporting, caring for, keeping, and returning the prisoner. The provisions of this paragraph shall govern unless the States concerned shall have entered into a supplementary agreement providing for a different allocation of costs and responsibilities as between or among themselves. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to alter or affect any internal relationship among the departments, agencies, and officers of and in the government of a party State, or between a party State and its subdivisions, as to the payment of costs, or responsibilities therefor.

"ARTICLE VI

"(a) In determining the duration and expiration dates of the time periods provided in articles III and IV of this agreement, the running of said time periods shall be tolled whenever and for as long as the prisoner is unable to stand trial, as determined by the court having jurisdiction of the matter.

"(b) No provision of this agreement, and no remedy made available by this agreement shall apply to any person who is adjudged to be mentally ill.

"ARTICLE VII

"Each State party to this agreement shall designate an officer who, acting jointly with like officers of other party States, shall promulgate rules and regulations to carry out more effectively the terms and provisions of this agreement, and who shall provide, within and without the State, information necessary to the effective operation of this agreement.

"ARTICLE VIII

"This agreement shall enter into full force and effect as to a party State when such State has enacted the same into law. A State party to this agreement may withdraw herefrom by enacting a statute repealing the same. However, the withdrawal of any State shall not affect the status of any proceedings already initiated by inmates or by State officers at the time such withdrawal takes effect, nor shall it affect their rights in respect thereof.

"ARTICLE IX

"This agreement shall be liberally construed so as to effectuate its purposes. The provisions of this agreement shall be severable and if any phrase, clause, sentence, or provision of this agreement is declared to be contrary to the constitution of any party State or of the United States or the applicability thereof to any government, agency, person, or circumstance is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of this agreement and the applicability thereof to any government, agency, person, or circumstance shall not be affected thereby. If this agreement shall be held contrary to the constitution of any State party hereto, the agreement shall remain in full force and effect as to the remaining States and in full force and effect as to the State affected as to all severable matters."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Review

The question of an association's standing to obtain judicial review of a claim that Alcoholic Beverage Control Board improperly reissued retail liquor license depended primarily upon existence of logical and adequately direct nexus between association's interest and adverse action of opposing party or parties. The Citizens Association of Georgetown v. J. E. Simonson et al. (1968, 403 F. 2d 175, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 152).

In directing Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to consider wishes of persons residing or owning property in neighborhood in issuing licenses, Congress recognized that operation of liquor establishment may trouble its neighbors. Id.

Residents and owners of property within neighborhood of licensed establishment have required nexus to seek judicial review of reissuance of license. Id.

An association which was the authorized spokesman organized to promote interest of its individual members, many of whom resided or owned property within neighborhood of licensed liquor establishment, had standing to seek judicial review of reissuance of license. Id.

Under this section and sec. 1–1510, the findings of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board of District of Columbia can be overturned by District of Columbia Court of Appeals upon review only if they are without substantial evidence to support them. Sophia's Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 799).

Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, the Commissioners shall not authorize the sale by any licensee, other than the holder of a retailer's license, class E, of any beverages on the day of the presidential election in the District of Columbia during the hours when the polls are open, and any such sales are hereby prohibited.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNCIL

Section 402(215) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the regulatory and other functions of the Board of Commissioners, under this section with respect to prescribing, making, altering, and amending rules and regulations, to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Authority of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board

Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has authority to limit number of Class "C" licenses notwithstanding that the action might unintentionally and incidentally limit given area to existing licenses so long as Board exercises bona fide judgment. Palace Restaurant, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 561).

§ 25–109. Sale without license prohibited—Exceptions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Consecutive sentences

Imposition of consecutive 120-day sentences for the keeping of whiskey for sale and selling of whiskey without a license was improper as constituting double punishment for a single offense where defendant had only a single bottle of whiskey which he illegally sold at time of his arrest and there was no proof of a keeping of the whiskey for sale independent of the sale itself. W. Hicks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 801).

Several offenses committed by single act

Usual test to determine if one or two offenses have been committed by a single act is whether each offense requires proof of an additional fact which the other does not. W. Hicks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 801).

§ 25–111. License classifications—Fees.

Licenses issued under authority of this chapter shall be of twelve kinds:

* * * * *

(g) Retailer's license, class C.—Such a license shall be issued only for a bona fide restaurant, hotel, or club, or a passenger-carrying marine vessel serving meals, or a club car or a dining car on a railroad. It shall authorize the holder thereof to keep for sale and to sell spirits, wine, and beer at the place therein described for consumption only in said place. Except in the case of clubs, hotels, and passenger-carrying marine vessels serving meals in interstate commerce of one hundred miles or more, no beverage shall be sold or served to a customer in any closed container. In the case of passenger-carrying marine vessels and club cars or dining cars on a railroad, said spirits and wine, except light wines, shall be sold or served only to persons seated at public tables, and beer and light wine shall be sold and served only to persons seated at public tables or at bona fide lunch counters, except that spirits, wine, and beer may be sold or served to assemblages of more than six individuals in a private room when such room has been previously approved by the Board. In the case of restaurants and hotels, alcoholic beverages may be sold or served only to (1) persons seated at counters or tables, (2) persons in an enclosed or screened-off area set aside for the accommodation of persons waiting to be seated at tables, or (3) assemblages of more than six persons in a private room if such room has been previously approved by the Board. A restaurant operating on the premises of a theater, symphony hall, opera house, or other facility which has as its principal purpose the presentation of live drama, music, opera, or other performing arts, may sell and serve alcoholic beverages to seated or standing persons at locations within the facility approved by the Board. In the case of hotels, alcoholic beverages may also be sold and served in the private room of a registered guest. In the case of clubs, alcoholic beverages may be sold and served in any room or area available only to bona fide members of such club or their bona fide guests, or both. No license shall be issued to a club which has not been established for at least three months immediately prior to the making of the application for such license. All alcoholic beverages offered for sale or sold by the holder of such licenses may be displayed and dispensed in full sight of the purchaser.

The fee for such a license shall be for a restaurant, $825 per annum; for a hotel, under one hundred rooms, $825 per annum; for a hotel of one hundred or more rooms, $1,650 per annum; for a club, $425 per annum; for a marine vessel serving meals in interstate commerce of one hundred miles or more and for each railroad dining car or club car, $3 per month or $20 per annum: Provided, That such a license may be issued to any company engaged in interstate commerce covering all dining, club, and lounge cars operated by such company on railroads within the District of Columbia upon the payment of an annual fee of $100; for all other passenger-carrying marine vessels serving meals, $75 per month or $825 per annum.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Review

The question of an association's standing to obtain judicial review of a claim that Alcoholic Beverage Control Board improperly reissued retail liquor license depended primarily upon existence of logical and adequately direct nexus between association's interest and adverse action of opposing party or parties. The Citizens Association of Georgetown v. *J. In directing Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to consider wishes of persons residing or owning property in neighborhood in issuing licenses, Congress recognized that operation of liquor establishment may trouble its neighbors. Id.

Residents and owners of property within neighborhood of licensed establishment have required nexus to seek judicial review of reissuance of license. Id.

An association which was the authorized spokesman organized to promote interest of its individual members, many of whom resided or owned property within neighborhood of licensed liquor establishment, had standing to seek judicial review of reissuance of license. Id.

§ 25–111a. Appropriation of portion of license fees for rehabilitation of alcoholics.

§ 25–114. Description in license of premises—Sale limited to premises—Storage not on premises—Expiration of licenses—Monthly licenses—Proportionate fees.

Every license shall particularly describe the place where the rights thereunder are to be exercised, and beverages shall not be manufactured or kept for sale or sold by any licensee except at the place so described in his license: Provided, however, That the holder of a manufacturer's or wholesaler's license, the holder of a retailer's license, class A, or the holder of a retailer's license, class C, and class D, issued for a passenger-carrying marine vessel or club car or a dining car on a railroad, may store beverages, with the consent of the Board, upon premises other than the premises designated in the license. Every annual license shall date from the 1st day of February in each year and expire on the 31st day of January next after its issuance, except as hereinafter provided. Licenses issued at any time after the beginning of the license year shall date from the first day of the month in which the license was issued and end on the last day of the license year above described, and payments shall be made of the proportionate amount of the annual license fee. Every monthly license shall date from the first day of the month in which it is issued and expire on the last day of the month named in the license. Monthly licenses shall not be issued for periods exceeding six months. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 327, ch. 4, § 13; Aug. 27, 1935, 49 Stat. 900, ch. 756, § 8; Dec. 8, 1970, Pub. § 25–115. Applications for licenses—Qualification of applicants—Moral character—Citizenship—Prior convictions—Ownership—Interest of manufacturer in retail business—Character of premises—Advertising application—Hearing of protests—Objection of property owners—Removal of bonded liquor from Government warehouses—Penalty.

(a) Any individual, partnership, or corporation desiring a license under this chapter shall file with the Board an application in such form as the Commissioners may prescribe, and such application shall contain such additional information as the Board may require, and (except in the case of an application for a manufacturer's license, retailers license, class E, or solicitor's license) shall contain a statement setting forth the name and address of the true and actual owner of the premises upon which the business to be licensed is to be conducted. Before a license is issued the Board shall satisfy itself:

1. That the applicant, if an individual, or, if a partnership, each of the members of the partnership, or, if a corporation, each of its principal officers and directors, is of good moral character and generally fit for the trust to be in him reposed.

2. That the applicant, if an individual, or, if a partnership, each of the members of the partnership, or, if a corporation, each of its principal officers, is not less than twenty-one years of age, and has not, within five years prior to the filing of such application, been convicted of a misdemeanor under the National Prohibition Act, as amended and supplemented, or, within ten years prior to such filing, been convicted of any felony.

5. That in the case of an applicant for a wholesaler's license or a retailer's license (except a retailer's license class E), no manufacturer or wholesaler of beverages other than the applicant (including a stockholder holding 25 per centum or more of the common stock, or an officer of any manufacturer or wholesaler of beverages, if such manufacturer or wholesaler is a corporation), has such a substantial interest, direct or indirect, in the business for which the license is requested, or in the premises in respect of which such license is to be issued, as in the judgment of the Board may tend to influence such licensee to purchase beverages from such manufacturer or wholesaler, and that such business will not be conducted with any money, equipment, furniture, fixtures, or property rented from or loaned or given by any such manufacturer or wholesaler (including such stockholder or officer) or sold by such manufacturer or wholesaler (including such stockholder or officer) to any such licensee for less than the fair market value or upon a conditional sale agreement or chattel trust.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNCIL

Section 402(218) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the regulatory and other functions of the Board of Commissioners, under subsection (c) relating to the promulgation of regulations to permit owners of warehouse receipts to withdraw bonded liquors, to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Authority of Board

Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has authority to limit number of class "C" licenses notwithstanding that the action might unintentionally and incidentally limit given area to existing licenses so long as Board exercises bona fide judgment. Palace Restaurant, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 561).

Evidence—Sufficiency

In view of express wishes of neighborhood residents and property owners against granting of liquor license, the court held that the evidence supported the finding of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board that proposed restaurant which could accommodate up to 480 persons, which had indefinite arrangements for off-street parking and which would be located in area containing 6,000 existing liquor service seats was an inappropriate place for issuance of liquor license. Sophia's Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 799).

In this case, the evidence supported finding of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board that granting of liquor license to sixty-one seat restaurant that was already in operation, that had lease not contingent upon granting of liquor license, that had provisions for parking and that was operated by owner of another successful restaurant was unlikely to contribute significantly to problems of area. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 801).

Factors considered in grant of license

Since no notice was given that uniqueness of premises would be an issue of fact at hearing for determination of application for retailer's class "C" license by Alcoholic Beverage Control Board or that such criterion was to be applied to the application, denial of application could not stand and matter required remand for further proceedings. Palace Restaurant, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 561).

Review

The fact that Alcoholic Beverage Control Board granted a liquor license to a restaurant adjacent to location of much larger proposed restaurant did not render denial of a license to the latter arbitrary since qualifications of applicants and character of restaurants were different. Sophia's Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 799).

The question of an association's standing to obtain judicial review of a claim that Alcoholic Beverage Control Board improperly reissued retail liquor license depended primarily upon existence of logical and adequately direct nexus between association's interest and adverse action of opposing party or parties. The Citizens Association of Georgetown v. J. E. Simonson et al. (1968, 403 F. 2d 175, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 152).

In directing Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to consider wishes of persons residing or owning property in neighborhood in issuing licenses, Congress recognized that operation of liquor establishment may trouble its neighbors. Id.

Residents and owners of property within neighborhood of licensed establishment have required nexus to seek judicial review of reissuance of license. Id.

An association which was the authorized spokesman organized to promote interest of its individual members, many of whom resided or owned property within neighborhood of licensed liquor establishment, had standing to seek judicial review of reissuance of license. Id.

§ 25–118. Revocation of license—Causes—Hearing—Discretionary closing for one year.

If during the period for which any license was issued the licensee shall be convicted of any felony, or if any licensee violates any of the provisions of this chapter or any of the rules or regulations promulgated pursuant thereto or fails to superintend in person, or through a manager approved by the Board, the business for which the license was issued, or allows the premises with respect to which the license of such licensee was issued, to be used for any unlawful, disorderly, or immoral purpose, or such licensee otherwise fails to carry out in good faith the provisions of this chapter, the license of said licensee may be revoked or suspended by the Board after the licensee has been given an opportunity to be heard in his defense, subject to review by the Commissioners in case of revocation or in case of suspension for a period of more than thirty days, as herein provided. In case a license issued hereunder shall be revoked or suspended, no part of the license fee shall be returned, and the Board may, in its discretion, subject to review by the Commissioners, as a part of the order of revocation provide that no license shall be granted for the same place for the period of one year next after such revocation, and in case such order shall be made no license shall, during said year, be issued for said place or to a person or persons whose license is so revoked for any other location.

In the event the Board at any time shall order the suspension of any license a notice may be posted by the Board, in a conspicuous place, on the outside of the licensed premises, at or near the main street entrance thereto; which notice shall state that the license theretofore issued to the licensee has been suspended and shall state the time for which said license is suspended, and state that the suspension is ordered because of a violation of this chapter, or of the Commissioners' regulations adopted under authority of this chapter. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 330, ch. 4, § 17; Aug. 27, 1935, 49 Stat. 900, ch. 756, § 9; Aug. 25, 1937, 50 Stat. 803, ch. 766, § 3; Apr. 26, 1950, 64 Stat. 88, ch. 106; Dec. 8, 1970, Pub. L. 91–535, § 3(a), 84 Stat. 1393.)

AMENDMENTS

1970—Section 3(a) of act Dec. 8, 1970, Pub. L. 91–535, amended the first sentence by striking out "or knowingly employs in the sale or distribution of beverages any person who has, within five years prior thereto, been convicted of a misdemeanor under the National Prohibition Act, as amended and supplemented, or, within ten years prior thereto, been convicted of any felony,".

1950—Act Apr. 26, 1950, inserted the words "during the period for which any license was issued the licensee shall be convicted of any felony, or if" after the word "If" at the beginning of the first sentence of the first paragraph.

1937—Act Aug. 25, 1937, substituted "may" for "shall" in the second par.

1935—Act Aug. 27, 1935, added the words "or suspended" both times they appear and the words "in case of revocation or in case of suspension for a period of more than thirty days" in the first paragraph, and added the second paragraph.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Grounds for suspension

Fourteen-day suspension of liquor license was warranted where licensee permitted "B-girl" operation on its premises and female employee made solicitation for act of prostitution on premises. Am-Chi Restaurant, Inc. v. J. R. Simonson et al., etc. (1968, 396 F. 2d 686, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 37).

Mere fact that "B-girl" operation was not illegal per se on licensed premises was not defense by licensee in proceeding to suspend license on ground that female employee of licensee had made solicitation for prostitution on premises. Id.

Standards for suspension

Alcoholic Beverage Control Board should articulate its standards for suspension of liquor licenses in its order of suspension. Am-Chi Restaurant Inc. v. J. R. Simonson et al., etc. (1968, 396 F. 2d 686, 130 U.S. App. D.C. 37).

Whether a defendant, who was charged with assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct in violation of District of Columbia Code, had mental disease which should have excused him from criminal responsibility was issue of ultimate fact for the trier thereof. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

Weight of evidence

Weight to be given testimony of witnesses who related that the conduct of the defendant at time of alleged assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct, in violation of District of Columbia Code, and shortly thereafter was bizarre and the weight to be given testimony of government witness who related that the defendant was intoxicated at the time of alleged offenses and that assault was triggered by refusal to serve him beer was for the trier of fact. W. M. Dempsey v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1969, 251 A. 2d 650).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Consecutive sentences

Imposition of consecutive 120-day sentences for the keeping of whiskey for sale and selling of whiskey without a license was improper as constituting double punishment for a single offense where defendant had only a single bottle of whiskey which he illegally sold at time of his arrest and there was no proof of keeping of the whiskey for sale independent of the sale itself. W. Hicks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 801).

Several offenses committed by single act

Usual test to determine if one or two offenses have been committed by a single act is whether each offense requires proof of an additional fact which the other does not. W. Hicks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 234 A. 2d 801).

§ 25–133. Sale by retailer of beverages on credit prohibited—Exceptions.

No holder of a retailer's license, except a retailer's license, class E, shall sell on credit any beverages except beer and light wines. For purposes of this section, the extension of credit by the holder of a class A retailer's license in connection with a sale by such license holder of any beverage through a credit card or other document or device intended or adapted for the purpose of establishing credit shall be considered a sale on credit of such beverage by such license holder. This section shall not prohibit a club from extending credit to its members or the guests of members or a hotel from extending credit to its registered guests. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 336, ch. 4, § 35; Dec. 8, 1970, Pub. L. 91–535, § 6, 84 Stat. 1394.)

Unless the Commissioners shall by regulation prescribe otherwise, the collection and payment of such tax shall be in the manner following:

(1) Each holder of a manufacturer's or wholesaler's license shall, on or before the 15th day of each month, furnish to the assessor of the District of Columbia, on a form to be prescribed by the Commissioners, a statement under oath showing the quantity of beer subject to taxation hereunder sold by him during the preceding calendar month.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appeal and error

Where, at hearing on petition to expunge forged deed of release of prior deed of trust from land records, no issue was made by subsequent lender relative to failure of prior lender to produce some 99 notes, as required by subpoena duces tecum, subsequent lender, loan of which was found to be subordinate to that of prior lender, had no basis for complaint to reviewing court even if 99 notes were relevant to the issue whether prior lender could not enforce loan because of failure to comply wtih District of Columbia loan shark act. General Investment Funds Real Estate Holding Company et al. v. W. Gildenhorn et al. (Md. Ct. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 650).

Where there was no allegation in pleadings before court that prior lender has been involved in transactions in violation of the District of Columbia loan shark act and only allegation of subsequent lender, seeking to have its subsequent deed of trust accorded priority over prior deed of trust, was inadequate consideration for note, the chancellor properly refused to permit inquiry at hearing into loan transactions prior lender might have had with others in violation of loan shark act. Id.

Burden of proof

Burden was on corporate lender, seeking to quiet title to property under deed of trust given in connection with loan, to show that prior lender, who allegedly had engaged in business of lending in the District of Columbia and was not licensed under District loan shark act, was in the business of lending money in the District and that he was lending funds at an annual interest rate of more than 6%. General Investment Funds Real Estate Holding Company, et al. v. W. Gildenhorn et al. (Md. Ct. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 650).

Commission as constituting usury

Commission paid by a borrower to a loan broker for obtaining a loan from a third person does not constitute usury. J. Oliver v. United Mortgage Company, Inc., etc. (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 722).

Borrower was not entitled to recover portion of commission retained by loan broker for arranging loan on ground that transaction was usurious in absence of showing that broker was acting solely as agent of lender. Id.

Even if loan broker had advanced his own funds to borrower, but had done so for convenience only and with expectation of reimbursing himself promptly from funds supplied by lender, broker who had retained commission for that service was not liable to borrower for allegedly usurious interest on ground that broker was principal on loan. Id.

Discovery

Refusal to permit corporate lender to take deposition of bank for the purpose of showing that individual lender, who was not licensed under District of Columbia loan shark act, had engaged in sufficient number of loans in District to require licensing under act was correct since no notice had been given in Maryland action involving priority of loans made by corporate and individual borrowers of intent to rely on foreign law. General Investment Funds Real Estate Holding Company et al. v. W. Gildenhorn et al. (Md. Ct. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 650).

Evidence—Admissibility

Since there was no properly admissible evidence before chancellor to identify some 99 notes allegedly made by individual lender in District of Columbia or to connect notes with lender, who allegedly engaged in lending business in the District and was not licensed under the District of Columbia loan shark act, chancellor correctly refused to admit notes into evidence in proceedings involving, inter alia, whether deed of trust was void under District of Columbia loan shark act. General Investment Funds Real Estate Holding Company et al. v. W. Gildenhorn et al. (Md. Ct. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 650).

Lenders act may be illegal

Only the act of the lender and not the borrower may be illegal under this section. I. Shulman v. M. Ritzenberg and L. N. Tauber (1969, 47 F.R.D. 202).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Applicability of Uniform Commercial Code

The issues in a law suit by a buyer of automobile against chattel mortgagee, which held the mortgage created by the seller and which repossessed automobile, were governed by the provisions of Uniform Commercial Code, so that the determination of issues in accordance with theory of estoppel constituted error; however, where judgment of trial judge was correct, such error did not require reversal. Franklin Investment Co., Inc. v. *E. Place of inspection

Where turkey broker's remedy for turkey producer's breach of sales contract was not limited to rescission and sales contract did not provide for inspection upon delivery to broker, trial court's finding that place of inspection was point of delivery rather than ultimate destination was reversible error in broker's action against producer for breach of contract. Rubewa Products Co., Inc. v. Watson's Quality Turkey Products, Inc. (D.C. Breach of warranty

In view of fact that the true strength of concrete would not be revealed until after 28-day curing period had elapsed, buyer's use of concrete originating at seller's plant, even though tests performed at jobsite indicated that concrete contained air in excess of normal bounds, did not constitute negligent or malicious act on part of the buyer so as to absolve the seller from breach of warranty. S. S. Bevard et al. v. Howat Concrete Company, Inc. (1970, 433 F. 2d 1202, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Buyer's remedy for breach of warranty

Rescission is not the buyer's only remedy for a breach of warranty; the buyer may also affirm the contract and seek damages for its breach. Rubewa Products Co., Inc. v. Watson's Quality Turkey Products, Inc. (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 609).

Place of inspection

Where turkey broker's remedy for turkey producer's breach of sales contract was not limited to rescission and sales contract did not provide for inspection upon delivery to broker, trial court's finding that place of inspection was point of delivery rather than ultimate destination was reversible error in broker's action against producer for breach of contract. Rubewa Products Co., Inc. v. Watson's Quality Turkey Products, Inc. (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 609).

§ 28:2–608. Revocation of acceptance in whole or in part.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Buyer's refusal to allow correction of defect

Seller's proffered removal of television chassis for a short period in order to determine cause of color malfunction and ascertain extent of adjustment or correction needed to effect full operational efficiency presented no great inconvenience to buyer, and refusal of buyer's daughter, on buyer's behalf, to allow this precluded rescission, D.C. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Breach of warranty

In view of fact that the true strength of concrete would not be revealed until after 28-day curing period had elapsed, buyer's use of concrete originating at seller's plant, even though tests performed at jobsite indicated that concrete contained air in excess of normal bounds, did not constitute negligent or malicious act on part of the buyer so as to absolve the seller from breach of warranty. S. S. Bevard et al. v. Howat Concrete Company, Inc. (1970, 433 F. 2d 1202, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Damages for breach of contract

Under breach of contract, whether a warranty or otherwise, defendant is liable for those damages which are a natural consequence and proximate result of his conduct. Rubewa Products Co., Inc. v. Watson's Quality Turkey Products, Inc. (D.C. App. 1968, 242 A. 2d 609).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

In the case, the court held that the assignee of conditional sale contract and note, that called for "time price" more than 8% greater than balance due, did not establish that transaction was not usurious, and thus did not establish that it was holder in due course, since there was no showing that "finance charge" or "carrying charge" was included to compensate seller for expense other than price of loan. L. Fuller v. Universal Acceptance Corporation (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 506).

Forfeiture of interest

In this case the court held that the assignee of a conditional sales contract and note was not entitled to recover "finance charge" or "carrying charge" which exceeded 8% per annum since the assignee did not establish that it was holder in due course and that transaction was not usurious. L. Fuller v. Universal Acceptance Corporation (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 506).

Tainted transaction

The court held, that in this case the working arrangement between the conditional seller of television set and the assignee of purchasers' note was tainted such that it bore a "badge of fraud" and supported trial judge's ruling in suit by assignee on note that the note was usurious and that assignee could not be given status of holder in due course. Universal Acceptance Corporation v. F. Marzullo et ano. (D.C. App. 1969, 260 A. 2d 90).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Directed Verdict

In an action on a note, the court agreed with appellants contention that the evidence raised fact questions as to whether note was secured from makers by misrepresentation and without their knowing or having reasonable opportunity to know of its character or essential terms so as to preclude direction of verdict for holder. J. L. Kearney, et al. v. The Commerce Investment Company (D.C. App. 1970, 262 A. 2d 804).

By moving for directed verdict, proponent admits, for purposes of motion, truth of evidence for opponent, with all reasonable inferences to be derived therefrom. Id.

Holder in due course

In a case where depositary bank gave its customer provisional credit on a check deposited with the bank and permitted customer to withdraw a portion of the credit before bank discovered that the drawers had stopped payment, bank was a holder in due course as to amount of provisional credit withdrawn and, in absence of applicable defenses as provided in section 28:3–305, could recover from drawers. Falls Church Bank etc. v. Wesley Heights, Inc. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 915).

§ 28:3–306. Rights of one not holder in due course.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

In a case where payee transferred nonnegotiable money orders, the transferee, although not holder in due course, could establish a case against the payor, which had stopped payment on the money orders, by production of instruments and burden of proving want of consideration or any other defense was upon the payor. Nation-Wide Check Corporation v. A. J. Banks et ano. (D.C. App. 1969, 260 A. 2d 367).

§ 28:3–307. Burden of establishing signatures, defenses and due course.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

J. Banks et ano.* (D.C. App. 1969, 260 A. 2d 367).

Establishment of a defense

Without introduction of some evidence, the defenses of failure of consideration, fraud, and usury raised by the signer of note in his pleading, did not constitute "establishment of a defense" under statute providing that once signatures are admitted or established, production of the instrument entitles a holder to recover on it unless the defendant establishes a defense. Calvert Credit Corporation v. I. J. Humble (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 518).

Forfeiture of interest

In this case the court held that the assignee of a conditional sales contract and note was not entitled to recover "finance charge" or "carrying charge" which exceeded 8% per annum since the assignee did not establish that it was holder in due course and that transaction was not usurious. L. Fuller v. Universal Acceptance Corporation (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 506).

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

§ 28:3–404. Unauthorized signatures.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency

In a depositor's action against bank for reimbursement for bank's payment of allegedly forged checks, the court held that the fact that checks charged to depositor's checking account were not reflected in depositor's own records, which checks were not produced in evidence, did not provide a basis upon which the jury could reasonably have inferred or found that the missing checks were drawn by a forger and were, therefore, improperly charged to the depositor's account. B. G. Myrick v. National Savings & Trust Company (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 526).

§ 28:3–406. Negligence contributing to alteration or unauthorized signature.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Negligence

"In a depositor's action against bank for reimbursement for bank's payment of allegedly forged checks, the court held that the depositor was negligent as a matter of law in failing to inquire of bank as to her lack of receipt of monthly statements and cancelled checks, especially after bank informed depositor that bank's records showed she had no money in her account, and this negligence substantially contributed to the making of an unauthorized signature and depositor was precluded from asserting lack of bank's authority to pay allegedly forged checks. B. G. Myrick v. National Savings & Trust Company (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A. 2d 526).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Negligence

In a case where warehouse was of fire resistant construction, fire alarm system was effectively operating, police and fireman service were near, warehouse was patrolled at fixed intervals by outside guard and iron bars and wire-mesh screening covered the windows on the ground warehouseman was not negligent in failing to provide 24-hour inside guard service or in failing to adequately secure windows and was not liable for damage to stored furniture from fire set by demented policeman after policeman removed wire-mesh screen, but, in any event, arson under the circumstances peculiar to this case was not a foreseeable result of any failure on part of warehouseman. Union Storage Co., Inc. v. *J. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Classification of goods

Under the provisions of the Uniform Commercial Code, classification of goods is mutually exclusive. Franklin Investment Co., Inc. v. E. P. Homburg (D.C. App. 1969, 252 A. 2d 95).

Among the same parties and at the same point in time, a product may be classified as both "inventory" and "consumer goods." Id.

The manner in which a product is classified under the secured transactions provisions of the Uniform Commercial Code is determined at time of agreement between parties giving rise to security interest, and, as to them, categorization remains unaffected by later transfer of product in question. Id.

Inventory

An automobile held by a used car dealer for purpose of sale to buying public in the ordinary course of business was "inventory" and remained so despite subsequent sale of automobile, and, thus, under provision of Uniform Commercial Code a buyer of the automobile in ordinary course of business bought the same free of security interest of dealer's chattel mortgagee. *Franklin Investment Co. Chapter 33.—INTEREST AND USURY

Sec.

28–3307. District of Columbia Council authorized to exempt certain mortgages and loans.

AMENDMENT

1970—Item 28–3307 was added to the chapter analysis by Act Aug. 20, 1970, Pub. L. 91–385, § 2(b).

CHAPTER REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This chapter is referred to in section 29–843.

§§ 28–3301, 28–3302.

SECTIONS REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

These sections are referred to in section 35–1361.

§ 28–3303. Usury defined.

CROSS REFERENCE

For exemption from this chapter of cooperative associations, see sec. 29–843.

For exemption of institutions of higher education, see § 29–421.

For authority of District of Columbia Council to exempt certain mortgages and loans, see sec. 28–3307.

Corporations created under Chapter 9 of Title 29 prohibited from pleading any statutes against usury in any action, see § 29–904(h).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

In the case, the court held that the assignee of conditional sale contract and note, that called for "time price" more than 8% greater than balance due, did not establish that transaction was not usurious, and thus did not establish that it was holder in due course, since there was no showing that "finance charge" or "carrying charge" was included to compensate seller for expense other than price of loan. L. Fuller v. Universal Acceptance Corporation (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 506).

Commission as constituting usury

Commission paid by a borrower to a loan broker for obtaining a loan from a third person does not constitute usury. J. Oliver v. United Mortgage Company, Inc., etc. (D.C. App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 722).

Even if loan broker had advanced his own funds to borrower, but had done so for convenience only and with expectation of reimbursing himself promptly from funds supplied by lender, broker who had retained commission for that service was not liable to borrower for allegedly usurious interest on ground that broker was principal on loan. Id.

Borrower was not entitled to recover portion of commission retained by loan broker for arranging loan on ground that transaction was usurious in absence of showing that broker was acting solely as agent of lender. Id.

Evidence

A showing that buyer under conditional sale contract was charged $47.88 for use of $300 for 12 months made a prima facie showing of usury, although total sum was labeled "time price", since credit had been prearranged through finance company to which contract was assigned. L. Fuller v. Universal Acceptance Corporation. (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 506).

An usurer cannot conceal his handiwork by avoiding use of term "interest". Id.

Forfeiture

In this case the court held that the assignee of a conditional sales contract and note was not entitled to recover "finance charge" or "carrying charge" which exceeded 8% per annum since the assignee did not establish that it was holder in due course and that transaction was not usurious. L. Fuller v. Universal Acceptance Corporation. (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 506).

Jurisdiction

The District of Columbia Court of General Sessions is without jurisdiction to render a declaratory judgment that centralized credit services' finance charges computed at annual rates of 18% and 12% exceeded interest rate which Congress has deemed lawful. P. Simmons v. Central Charge Service, Inc. (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 850).

Nature of defense of usury

Usury as a defense attacks the original transaction as not bona fide and denies assignee of note the status of holder in due course. Universal Acceptance Corporation v. F. Marzullo et ano. (D.C. App. 1969, 260 A. 2d 90).

Pleading

A complaint against a centralized credit service, which sought to recover all interest paid by plaintiff and persons similarly situated and to which there was a statement attached showing that the defendant service charged 18% interest per annum on certain amounts and 12% interest per annum on other sum without any assertion that the statement constituted plaintiff's account, asked, in essence, for an advisory opinion that the defendant services' finance charges were usurious and should cease, and failed to state a cause of action. P. Simmons v. Central Charge Service, Inc. (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 850).

Tainted transaction

The court held, that in this case the working arrangement between the conditional seller of television set and the assignee of purchasers' note was tainted such that it bore a "badge of fraud" and supported trial judge's ruling in suit by assignee on note that the note was usurious and that assignee could not be given status of holder in due course. Universal Acceptance Corporation v. F. Marzullo et. ano. (D.C. App. 1969, 260 A. 2d 90).

§ 28–3304. Action to recover usury paid.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Pleading

A complaint against a centralized credit service, which sought to recover all interest paid by plaintiff and persons similarly situated and to which there was a statement attached showing that the defendant service charged 18% interest per annum on certain amounts and 12% interest per annum on other sum without any assertion that the statement constituted plaintiff's account, asked, in essence, for an advisory opinion that the defendant services' finance charges were usurious and should cease, and failed to state a cause of action. P. Simmons v. Central Charge Service, Inc. (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 850).

Time limitation

An action by makers of a promissory note secured by deeds of trust on Washington, D.C. property to recover usurious portion of interest, would have to be brought within one year of date of payment of interest under District of Columbia Code provision. J. Katz et al. v. Simcha Company, Inc. (Court of App. Md. 1968, 246 A. 2d 555).

§ 28–3307. District of Columbia Council authorized to exempt certain mortgages and loans.

The District of Columbia Council is authorized from time to time to provide by regulation for the exemption from the provisions of this chapter of any mortgage or loan insured or guaranteed under the National Housing Act or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code, the interest rate of which is subject to regulation by an officer or agency of the Federal Government. The Council is further authorized to amend or repeal any such regulation at any time, but no such amendment or repeal shall affect any such loan or mortgage lawfully made or committed to be made while such exemption is in effect. (Added Aug. 20, 1970, Pub. L. 91–385, § 2(a), 84 Stat. 828.)

Chapter 35.—STATUTE OF FRAUDS

§ 28–3502. Special promise to answer for debt or default of another.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Conflict of laws

For the purpose of determining whether a corporate officer's personal guaranty of work to be performed by the corporation was within the statute of frauds, there was no significant difference between the form of statute in force in District of Columbia and Maryland. I. R. Friedman v. D. Clark (Md. C. App. 1969, 248 A. 2d 867).

Memorandum

The general rule is that the essential terms of agreement required to be in writing by virtue of statute of frauds must be expressed in writing without resort to parol evidence. Educational Enterprises, Inc. v. P. C. Greening (D.C. App. 1970, 265 A. 2d 287).

Parol evidence

In this case, the court of appeals held that the trial court properly ruled that parol evidence of employer's policy regarding bonuses was admissible as aid in interpretation of handwritten agreement, which was signed by employer some nine months after oral promise to pay employee certain salary for a year and which provided that "Earning—Salary and Bonus" for year totaled specified amount, to explain that total compensation for year was limited to specified amount and that employee would not receive an additional amount by way of discretionary Christmas bonus. Educational Enterprises, Inc. v. P. C. Greening (D.C. App. 1970, 265 A. 2d 287).

Sufficiency of writing

Letter wherein shopping center operators indicated appreciation for company's efforts in assisting operators in their application for proper zoning and stated that in event of success operators would give company opportunity to be major tenant with rental and terms at least equal to that of any other major department store in the center, together with full performance by company of the assistance services, was sufficient writing to satisfy District of Columbia statute of frauds. City Stores Company v. H. M. Ammerman et al. (1967, 266 F. Supp. 766).

Unilateral contract

Defendants' letter stating that defendants would give plaintiff opportunity to become major tenant in contemplated shopping center with rental and terms at least equal to that of any other major store in center was sufficient evidence of unilateral contract to satisfy District of Columbia statute of frauds. H. M. Ammerman et al. v. City Stores Company (1968, 394 F. 2d 950, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 325).

§ 28–3504. New promise or acknowledgement[1] of contract—Action against joint contractors.

In an action upon a simple contract, an acknowledgement or promise by words only is not sufficient evidence of a new or continuing contract whereby to take the case out of the operation of the statute of limitations or to deprive a party of the benefit thereof unless the acknowledgement or promise is in writing, signed by the party chargeable thereby. This section does not alter or take away, or lessen the effect of a payment of principal or interest made by any person. In actions against two or more joint contractors, or executors, or administrators, if it appears at the trial, or otherwise, that the plaintiff, though barred by the statute of limitations as to one or more of the defendants, is nevertheless entitled to recover against any other defendant by virtue of a new acknowledgement or promise or otherwise, judgment may be given for the plaintiff as to that defendant. An indorsement or memorandum of a payment written or made upon a promissory note, bill of exchange, or other writing, by or on behalf of the party to whom the payment is to be made, is[2] sufficient proof of the payment so as to take the case out of the operation of the statute of limitations. (Aug. 30, 1964, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, 78 Stat. 677, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–3005 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1390, ch. 854, § 1271).

The term "real estate" is substituted for "lands, tenements, or hereditaments" to conform with the style of revisions generally.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency

The court below was correct in concluding, on issue whether clients were estopped by their informal assurances to attorney from asserting limitations as defense in attorney's action to recover fee, that the evidence was insufficient for jury. R. M. Brown v. E. O. Lamb et ano. (1969, 414 F. 2d 1210, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 314).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Applicability of provisions of 1901 Act to corporation formed in 1958

Provision which was part of Business Corporation Act of 1901 and required restrictions to be stated on certificate had no application to corporation organized for profit in 1958. Sankin v. 5410 Connecticut Avenue Corp., et al.; Benn v. Garfield (1968, 281 F. Supp. 524).

§ 29–240. Sale, lease, or exchange of property or assets as an entirety—Transfer of franchise—Agreement submitted to stockholders—Rights of dissenting stockholders—Procedure—Effect of performance of agreement—Recording.

Every corporation having capital stock and heretofore or hereafter organized or existing under this chapter and sections 26–302 and 44–101 to 44–103, or which has availed or may hereafter avail itself of the provisions of this chapter and sections 26–302 and 44–101 to 44–103 pursuant to sections 29–101, 29–102, may, pursuant to a meeting of its stockholders, held upon notice given in accordance with the provisions of section 29–231, sell, lease, or exchange all of its property and assets as an entirety, including its good will, and franchises howsoever granted and/or acquired, to or with any other such corporation or any other corporation organized or existing under the laws of any state of the United States which is duly authorized by its charter or otherwise to acquire and hold such or similar property, or to or with any natural person. An agreement containing the terms and conditions of the proposed sale, lease, or exchange shall, after approval thereof by a majority of the trustees or directors of such vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation, be submitted to said stockholders at said meeting for their approval; and if approved by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of all the stock outstanding (or, if two or more classes of stock have been issued, of two-thirds of each class, including stock of any class to which the charter denies the right to vote), such agreement shall be executed and its terms and conditions performed. Any stockholder who, at such meeting, voted against the agreement submitted or who shall in writing file his protest at least five days before the holding of such meeting, may within twenty days after such meeting (but not afterwards) make upon such vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation a written demand for payment for his stock; and he shall thereupon be entitled to receive an amount equal to the fair value thereof, unaffected by such sale, lease, or exchange of said corporate property and assets. If such dissenting stockholder and said vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation of which he is a stockholder shall fail to agree upon the fair value of said stock (or if, having agreed, such corporation shall fail to pay or tender the amount thereof), such stockholder shall be entitled to file, within thirty days after such written demand (but not afterwards, against said vendor, lessor or grantor corporation, in the court having jurisdiction of civil actions wherein the amount in controversy exceeds $50,000, a petition for an accounting and for the ascertainment of the fair value of his shares without regard to any depreciation or appreciation thereof in consequence of such sale, lease, or exchange; and on the coming in of the answer to said petition, which shall be filed within such reasonable period as the court may fix, the court shall pass an order referring the matter to a commissioner or commissioners agreed upon by the parties, and if the parties do not so agree, then to the auditor of said court, for the purpose of ascertaining such fair value, and such order may prescribe the time and manner of producing evidence; and the award of said commissioner or commissioners (or that of a majority of them) or of said auditor, when confirmed by decree of said court, shall be final and conclusive on all parties, and said vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation shall pay such stockholder the fair value of his shares ascertained as aforesaid, and on receiving such payment or on a tender thereof, said stockholder shall transfer his stock to the said vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation for cancelation, and until said award is paid or tendered, said stockholder shall have a lien for the payment of such award on the proceeds of such sale, lease, or exchange, prior to any distribution by said vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation and said payment and lien may be collected and enforced in the same manner as other decrees and liens are by law enforceable in such court. If the amount awarded said stockholder exceeds the amount offered by the corporation prior to the filing of said suit, costs shall be awarded to said stockholder; otherwise, costs shall be awarded to the corporation. Each party shall have the right of appeal as in other cases in such court. The proceeding by a dissenting stockholder hereunder shall not prevent or delay the execution and performance of any agreement so approved by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of each class of stock: Provided, however, That the right granted to a dissenting stockholder hereunder to demand payment for his shares shall cease, if at any time prior to the entry of any decree herein provided for, the defendant corporation shall make it appear to such court that the agreement of sale, lease, or exchange has been rescinded by appropriate corporate action, so that the shares of such dissenting shareholder remain unaffected thereby. Upon the performance of any agreement of sale hereunder of all of the property and assets as an entirety of a corporation (including its good will and franchises), all property, assets, rights, privileges, franchises, and powers of said selling corporation shall be vested in the purchasing corporation or person and shall thereafter be as effectually the property of the purchasing corporation or person as they were of the selling corporation subject to the provisions of this section, and such purchasing corporation or person shall thereupon immediately file in the office of the recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia proper evidence of such sale, and thereupon said selling corporation shall be dissolved and cease, subject, however, to the provisions of sections 29–715 to 29–718. Nothing contained herein shall affect the provisions of sections 28–1701 to 28–1705, or any of the provisions of chapters 1–10 of title 43, or any amendment or supplement thereof, or of any other law regulating public-utility corporations in the District of Columbia. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 639d, as added Feb. 12, 1931, 46 Stat. 1089, ch. 120, and amended June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 29, 1970, Pub. SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

Constitutionality

The Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, this chapter, requiring husband, wife, father, mother, or adult child of recipient of public assistance to be responsible, according to his ability to pay, for support of such recipient, does not deny due process. C. Groover v. Essex County Welfare Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 143).

Fact that county welfare board sought to collect support for mother only from one son under this chapter requiring husband, wife, father, mother, or adult child of recipient of public assistance to be responsible according to his ability to pay, for support of such recipient, and not from other children, who live in other jurisdictions, and who are allegedly able to contribute, does not render application of such chapter to son a denial of equal protection. Id.

§ 30–302. Definitions.

As used in this chapter, unless the context requires otherwise—

* * * * *

(d) "Court" means the Family Division of the Superior Court and, when the context requires, means the court of any other State as defined in a substantially similar reciprocal law.

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 159(f)(1) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358 amended subsection (d) by striking out "Domestic Relations Branch of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Family Division of the Superior Court."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 11–1101.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Duration of support

Father's motion to vacate and set aside all support orders entered against him, under Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, was premature where filed before child's 18th birthday, and judgment under Act required current support payments until child reached 18. W. Howze v. E. Howze (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 477).

Law governing

District of Columbia judgment, under Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, requiring husband to make support payments until child reaches 18, was not in conflict with doctrines of res judicata or full faith and credit regarding Michigan divorce decree which required payments only until age 17. W. Howze v. E. Howze (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 477).

§ 30–303. Remedies additional to those now existing.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 11–1101.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Additional support

Under Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, wife, who has obtained foreign divorce, may petition for additional support after divorce decree has been fully satisfied. W. Howze v. E. Howze (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 477).

Decision determining father's continued liability under judgment previously entered under Uniform Act and requiring support payments until Michigan child should reach 18, would not impair right of mother, who had obtained Michigan divorce, to petition Michigan court for further support under Uniform Act after child reached 18. Id.

Imprisonment for contempt

The intermediate appellate court was quite aware that order of imprisonment must take into account the financial ability of the contemnor to comply with the terms of a court order, and that the appellant failed to make a showing of lack of financial ability in this case. J. R.

Scott v. I. R. Scott (1967, 382 F. 2d 461, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

Money judgment

Money judgment was proper means of collecting arrears in payments due under foreign decree for support of child. W. Howze v. E. Howze (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 477).

§ 30–304. Extent of duties of support.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 11–1101.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Reliance on divorce decree

Evidence supported finding that divorce decree was no longer being relied upon to impose a duty of support on father, where order at issue was granted in response to mother's petition to increase support payments for her child until child reached age 18, and that order, though not specific, was intended to continue at lease until child was 17 years, 3 months old, and more likely until her 18th birthday, and, under either view, reliance was clearly placed on District of Columbia support laws and not on 1961 divorce decree which provided for support only until child reached age 17. W. Howze v. E. Howze (1967, 385 F. 2d 986, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 204).

Support duties

Under Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, enforceable duties of support include those imposed or imposable under laws of any state where alleged obligor was present during period for which support was sought. W. Howze v. E. Howze (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 477).

§ 30–305. Remedies of a State furnishing support or institutional care.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 11–1101.

§ 30–306. How duties of support are enforced, jurisdiction in domestic relations court—Proceedings.

Proceedings to enforce duties of support initiated by the District of Columbia shall be commenced by the filing of a complaint irrespective of the relationship between the plaintiff and defendant. Jurisdiction of all proceedings under this chapter is vested in the Family Division of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia which shall have all power and authority heretofore vested in the Domestic Relations Branch of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions. (July 10, 1957, 71 Stat. 286 Pub. L. 85–94, § 6; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 165(d), title I, 84 Stat. 586.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

Award requiring son, pursuant to Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, this chapter, obligating husband, wife, father, mother or adult child of recipient of public assistance to be responsible, according to his ability to pay, for support of such recipient, to pay $30 every two weeks toward maintenance and support of his mother was not abuse of discretion. C. Groover v. Essex County Welfare Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d. 143).

Imprisonment for contempt

The intermediate appellate court was quite aware that order of imprisonment must take into account the financial ability of the contemnor to comply with the terms of a court order, and that the appellant failed to make a showing of lack of financial ability in this case. *J. FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

Section 2, act Apr. 22, 1968, Pub. L. 90–292, provided:

"The Congress hereby finds and declares that the school is a focal point of neighborhood and community activity; that the merit of its schools and educational system is a primary index to the merit of the community; and that the education of their children is a municipal matter of primary and personal concern to the citizens of a community. It is therefore the purpose of this Act to give the citizens of the Nation's Capital a direct voice in the development and conduct of the public educational system of the District of Columbia; to provide organizational arrangements whereby educational programs may be improved and coordinated with other municipal programs; and to make District schools centers of neighborhood and community life."

REPEAL

The subsection authorized the Judges of the United States District Court to remove a member of the Board of Education for cause after a public hearing.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Approval of political party

A local statute providing that the election of District of Columbia Board of Education members should be conducted on a nonpartisan basis does not prohibit a candidate from receiving approval of political party and using benefit of such approval to his advantage. C. L. Boone v. M. Taylor, et al. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 411).

Constitutionality of appointment of school board

Constitutional provision empowering Congress to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over the District of Columbia gave Congress power to enact statute providing that members of the District of Columbia board of education shall be appointed by United States District Court judges of the district. J. W. Hobson, etc., et al. v. C. F. Hansen, Superintendent etc., et al. (1967, 265 F. Supp. 902).

Constitutional provision that Congress may by law vest appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in heads of departments empowered Congress to enact statute providing that members of the District of Columbia board of education shall be appointed by United States District Court judges of the District of Columbia. Id.

The fact that in a number of instances Congress has conferred appointive power upon court or judges of United States District Court for the District of Columbia was not conclusive on issue of validity of statute permitting appointment of members of District of Columbia board of education by United States District Court judges of the District of Columbia but demonstrated the deep-seated congressional view of the constitutional issue and was entitled to weight in judicial decision on that issue. Id.

Power conferred upon judges by statute stating that members of District of Columbia board of education shall be appointed by United States District Court judges of District of Columbia does not violate doctrine of separation of powers. Id.

The validity of congressional conference upon United States District Court judges of District of Columbia of power to appoint District of Columbia board of education members is not to be denied merely because an appointee in carrying out his own separation functions might become involved in controversies; the board members are accountable under the law for the manner in which they perform their duties. Id.

Impairment of judicial function

Appointive power conferred by Congress under statute providing that members of District of Columbia board of education shall be appointed by United States District Court judges of the District of Columbia does not violate due process though litigation might arise before the district court over manner in which the board administers the schools. J. W. Hobson etc., et al. v. C. F. Hansen, Superintendent etc., et al. (1967, 265 F. Supp. 902).

Court could not presume that in any future case, which might involve performance by members of District of Columbia board of education of their duties, a denial of due process would occur by reason of statute empowering United States District Court judges of the District of Columbia to appoint the board members. Id.

The official act of a judge of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in participating in selection of District of Columbia board of education members does not in and of itself preclude on due process grounds the ability of the judge to decide fairly the merits of litigation challenging validity of performance by board member of his duties as such. Id.

Pupils and parents interest to challenge school board's authority

Pupils in public schools administered by District of Columbia board of education and parents of those pupils had sufficient interest to challenge authority of the board to administer the schools on theory that statute providing that members of board shall be appointed by United States District Court judges of the District of Columbia is unconstitutional. J. W. Hobson, etc., et al. v. C. F. Hansen, Superintendent etc., et al. (1967, 265 F. Supp. 902).

The fact that issue of basic authority of District of Columbia board of education to administer schools might escape resolution unless pupils and their guardians or parents had standing to challenge validity of statute purportedly giving that authority argued for resolving doubts, if any, as to standing in favor of the pupils, parents, and guardians, in absence of hard and fast rule governing standing to sue. Id.

Any person entering the service of the schools during a thirty-one-day month and serving until the end thereof shall be entitled to pay for that month from the date of entry to the 30th day of such month, both days inclusive; and any person entering such service during the month of February and serving until the end thereof shall be entitled to one month's pay, less as many days thereof as there were days elapsed prior to the date of entry. The years of service which form the basis for determining the amount of the annuity provided in section 31–725(a) shall be computed from the date of original probationary appointment as a teacher in the public schools of the District of Columbia, including so much of any authorized leaves of absence without pay beginning on May 1, 1952, as does not exceed six months in the aggregate in any fiscal year, plus any service credit that may be allowed under the provisions of this section: Provided, That the total credit granted for leaves of absence without pay shall not exceed one year: Provided further, That deposits equal to 5 per centum of those portions of salary received between July 1, 1949, and May 1, 1952, for which service credit was not earned may be made, and service credit received accordingly. In computing an annuity under section 31–725(a) the total service of a teacher shall include days of unused sick leave credited to him. No deposit may be required for days of unused sick leave included in a teacher's total service under the preceding sentence. Days of unused sick leave shall not be counted in determining a teacher's average salary or his eligibility for an annuity. In computing the length of service of retiring teachers credit may be given, year for year, for (a) public-school service or its equivalent outside the District of Columbia but not to exceed ten years; (b) continuous temporary service in the public schools of the District of Columbia immediately prior to probationary appointment; (c) service in the government of the District of Columbia or the Government of the United States allowable under sections 1308, 3323, and 8331–8348 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to retirement of government employees]; (d) periods of honorable active service in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard of the United States (but not the National Guard except when ordered to active duty in the service of the United States) prior to the date of the separation upon which title to annuity is based; except that, if a teacher is awarded retired pay on account of military service, his military service shall not be included unless such retired pay is awarded on account of a service-connected disability (1) incurred in combat with an enemy of the United States or (2) caused by an instrumentality of war and incurred in line of duty during an enlistment or employment as provided in Veterans Regulation Numbered 1 (a), part 1, paragraph 1, or is awarded under title III of Public Law 910, Eightieth Congress; (e) all educational leaves of absence with part pay authorized by the Board of Education in accordance with sections 31–632 to 31–637; and (f) continuous temporary service as an employee of any cafeteria or lunchroom operated in the public school buildings of the District of Columbia during any period prior to the date on which such cafeteria or lunchroom is placed under the Office of Central Management, Department of Food Services, District of Columbia, and immediately prior to probationary appointment as a teacher in the public schools of the District of Columbia: Provided, however, That that portion of the annuity which results from credit for service allowable under (a) and (c) of this section shall be reduced by the amount of any annuity which the retired teacher is entitled to receive under any Federal, State, or municipal retirement or pension system in respect to such service, except that such portion of the annuity after reduction shall not be less than the annuity purchasable with the deposit which the teacher is required to make under the provisions of this section in order to obtain credit for such service: Provided further, That no credit for service prescribed in this section, with the exception of periods of honorable service in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard of the United States and all educational leaves of absence with part pay authorized by the Board of Education in accordance with sections

Except as otherwise provided in this paragraph, this section shall not be construed to allow any teacher more than one year's credit for all services rendered in any one fiscal year.

A teacher who during the period of any war, or of any national emergency as proclaimed by the President or declared by the Congress, has left or leaves his position to enter the military service, as defined in this section, shall not be considered, for the purposes of this subchapter, as separated from his teaching position by reason of such military service, unless he shall apply for and receive a lump-sum benefit under this subchapter, except that such teacher shall not be considered as retaining his teaching position beyond six months after the date of the approval of this Act or the expiration of five years of such military service, whichever is later.

GRANTS AND LOANS FOR CONSTRUCTION AND MODERNIZATION OF HOSPITALS

Pub. L. 90–457, act Aug. 3, 1968, 82 Stat. 631, section 1 provided: That this Act may be cited as the "District of Columbia Medical Facilities Construction Act of 1968".

AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR GRANTS

SEC. 2. There are authorized to be appropriated for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and for each of the next three fiscal years, such sums as may be necessary, not to exceed in the aggregate $40,052,000, to enable the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare (hereafter in this Act referred to as the "Secretary"), to make grants to assist in meeting the cost of projects for the modernization of public or nonprofit private hospitals and in meeting the cost of projects for the construction or modernization of public health centers, long-term care facilities, including extended care facilities, diagnostic or treatment centers, rehabilitation facilities, facilities for the mentally retarded, and community mental health centers in the District of Columbia. Sums so appropriated shall remain available until expended.

LOANS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OR MODERNIZATION OF HOSPITALS AND OTHER HEALTH FACILITIES

SEC. 3. (a) The Secretary may make loans to assist in meeting the cost of projects for the construction or modernization of any hospital or other facility referred to in section 2 of this Act. The Secretary may make a loan under this section only if he determines that the applicant for the loan is unable to obtain the amount of such loan for the project from other public or private sources at reasonable rates of interest. The amount of any loan made under this section may not exceed 50 per centum of the cost of the project for which the loan is sought.

(b) Any such loan may be made only on the basis of an application submitted to the Secretary in such form and containing such information and assurances as he may prescribe.

(c) Each such loan shall bear interest at the rate of 2¼ per centum per annum on the unpaid balance thereof and shall be repaid over a period determined by the Secretary to be appropriate, but not exceeding 50 years.

(d) There is authorized to be appropriated $40,575,000 to carry out the provisions of this section.

APPROVAL OF APPLICATIONS

SEC. 4. (a) An application for a grant or loan with respect to any project may be approved by the Secretary under this Act only if an application for a grant with respect to such project has been filed under a Medical Facilities Act (which for purposes of this Act means title VI of the Public Health Service Act or, where appropriate, title II or part C of title I of the Mental Retardation Facilities and Community Mental Health Centers Construction Act of 1963) and—

(1) has been approved under a Medical Facilities Act and the application filed under this Act is for additional funds in connection therewith, or

(2) has been denied under a Medical Facilities Act because insufficient funds are available from the allotments of the District of Columbia under the applicable Medical Facilities Act to permit approval of the application.

In determining whether to approve an application for a grant under Medical Facilities Act for any project in the District of Columbia, the availability of additional funds for such project under this Act shall be taken into consideration. Approval of such application may be made contingent upon the approval of an application or applications with respect to such project under this Act and upon such additional funds being made so available.

(b) The Secretary shall establish criteria for determining the order in which to approve, under this Act, applications for grants and loans with respect to projects. Such criteria with respect to construction projects for the same type of facility (or for modernization projects) shall be the criteria developed by the State Agency of the District of Columbia pursuant to the State plan approved under the applicable Medical Facilities Act.

(c) In the case of any project with respect to which an application for a grant or loan is filed under this Act and with respect to which an application for a grant has been denied under a Medical Facilities Act, such application under this Act may be approved only if there is compliance with the same terms and conditions (including determination, in accordance with the applicable State plan, that the project is needed) as are applicable to applications for grants under the Medical Facilities Act, other than the availability of sufficient funds in the appropriate allotment of the District of Columbia.

(d) An application for a grant or loan under this Act with respect to any project may not be approved unless an opportunity to review the application has been afforded to a body, found by the Secretary to be a responsible metropolitan areawide planning body, and any recommendations of such body that were timely made have been considered by the appropriate State agency of the District of Columbia and have been submitted to the Secretary in connection with the application.

PAYMENTS

SEC. 5. (a) Payments under this Act with respect to any project shall be made in the manner provided under the applicable Medical Facilities Act for payment of the Federal share of the cost of projects for which applications are approved under such Act; except that payments under this Act shall also be subject to such reasonable conditions as the Secretary deems appropriate to safeguard the Federal interest.

(b) The total of the payments of grants made under this Act with respect to any project, together with any payments made with respect thereto under a Medical Facilities Act, may not exceed—

(1) in the case of a construction project for a long-term care facility, including extended care facilities, a diagnostic or treatment center, or a rehabilitation facility, 66⅔ per centum of the cost of such project; and

(2) in the case of any other project (including a modernization project), 50 per centum of the cost of such project.

RECOVERY OF PAYMENTS

SEC. 6. (a) Payments of grants under this Act shall be subject to recovery or recapture under the same conditions and to the same extent as is provided under the applicable Medical Facilities Act with respect to payments made thereunder.

(b) If, at any time before a loan made under this Act has been repaid in full, an event occurs for which (if a grant had been made under a Medical Facilities Act) recovery by the United States would be authorized, the unpaid balance of the loan shall become immediately due and payable by the applicant, and any transferee of the facility for which such loan was made shall be liable to the United States for such repayment.

MEANING OF TERMS

SEC. 6. The terms used in this Act shall have the same meaning as when used in the applicable Medical Facilities Act.

Said relinquishment of parental rights shall be recorded and filed in a properly sealed file in the Family Division of the Superior Court for the District of Columbia. The seal of said file shall not be broken except for good cause shown and upon the written order of a judge of said court.

REFERENCES IN TEXT

The reference in this section to "section 11–909 and 11–910", which had reference to such sections as set out in the 1961 edition of the official D.C. Code, may be a typographical error, as § 11–909 thereof related to summons, notice, and custody of a child pursuant to the initiation of proceedings in the Juvenile Court, and § 11–910 thereof related to service of such summons. Therefore, they do not appear to be relevant with respect to the exception clause in which they are cited in this section.

In the official D.C. Code of 1929, in which this section was set out as § 218 of Title 8, the reference in the exception clause was to §§ 258 and 259 of Title 18 of that Code, which sections represented classifications of §§ 8 and 9, respectively, of the Juvenile Court Act of 1906. Section 8 of that Act (D.C. Code 1929, Title 18, § 258) prescribed the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia, and § 9 thereof (D.C. Code 1929, Title 18, § 259) contained definitions, including the definition of "delinquent" children. After the general amendment of the Juvenile Court Act of 1906 by the Act of June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596, the said jurisdictional and definitive provisions of §§ 8 and 9 of the 1906 Act, were covered, with substantial changes, by §§ 5 and 6 thereof, which, in the 1940, 1951 and 1961 editions of the Code, were classified to §§ 11–906 and 11–907; and said §§ 8 and 9 of the 1906 Act, as so amended, then relating to summons, etc., as mentioned above, were classified in those Codes to said §§ 11–909 and 11–910.

All of the sections mentioned above were repealed in the revision and reenactment of Part II of the D.C. Code by Act Dec. 23, 1963, Pub. L. 88–241, 77 Stat. 478, eff. Jan. 1, 1964. Sections 11–906 and 11–907, containing, respectively, definitions and the jurisdictional provisions, were covered by §§ 11–1551, 11–1553, 11–554, 11–1556, 11–1557, 11–1583 and 16–2301; and §§ 11–909 and 11–910 (which, as stated above, appear to be irrelevant with respect to the exception clause in this section in which they are cited) were covered by §§ 16–2303 and 16–2304. Title 11 and chapter 23 of title 16 were again revised and amended generally by sections 111 and 121(a) of Pub. L. 91–358, and subject matter formerly covered by sections 16–2303 and 16–2304 is now covered generally by sections 16–2306, 16–2309, 16–2310, and 16–2316.

(a) The Congress finds that (1) juveniles who are not under proper supervision and control, or who have absconded, escaped, or run away, are likely to endanger their own health, morals, and welfare, and the health, morals, and welfare of others, and (2) the cooperation of the District of Columbia with the States is necessary to provide for the welfare and protection of juveniles and other persons in the District of Columbia.

(b) The Congress intends, in authorizing the District of Columbia to adopt the Interstate Compact on Juveniles, to have the District of Columbia cooperate fully with the States (1) in returning juveniles to those States requesting their return, and (2) in accepting and providing for the return of juveniles who are residents of the District of Columbia and who are found or apprehended in a State. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358, § 401, title IV, 84 Stat. 657.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 901(b)(2) of Act July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91–358 provided in part:

"Title IV [Secs. 32–1101 to 32–1106] shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act." [July 29, 1970]

§ 32–1102. Authority to enter into compact.

(a) The Commissioner of the District of Columbia (hereafter in this title referred to as the "Commissioner") is authorized to enter into and execute on behalf of the District of Columbia a compact with any State or States legally joining therein in the form substantially as follows: [Subsection (b) follows Article XV of Compact]

"THE INTERSTATE COMPACT ON JUVENILES

"The contracting states solemnly agree:

"ARTICLE I—Findings and Purposes

"That juveniles who are not under proper supervision and control, or who have absconded, escaped or run away, are likely to endanger their own health, morals and welfare, and the health, morals and welfare of others. The cooperation of the states party to this compact is therefore necessary to provide for the welfare and protection of juveniles and of the public with respect to (1) cooperative supervision of delinquent juveniles on probation or parole; (2) the return, from one state to another, of delinquent juveniles who have escaped or absconded; (3) the return, from one state to another, of non-delinquent juveniles who have run away from home; and (4) additional measures for the protection of juveniles and of the public, which any two or more of the party states may find desirable to undertake cooperatively. In carrying out the provisions of this compact the party states shall be guided by the non-criminal, reformative and protective policies which guide their laws concerning delinquent, neglected or dependent juveniles generally. It shall be the policy of the states party to this compact to cooperate and observe their respective responsibilities for the prompt return and acceptance of juveniles and delinquent juveniles who become subject to the provisions of this compact. The provisions of this compact shall be reasonably and liberally construed to accomplish the foregoing purposes.

"ARTICLE II—Existing Rights and Remedies

"That all remedies and procedures provided by this compact shall be in addition to and not in substitution for other rights, remedies and procedures, and shall not be in derogation of parental rights and responsibilities.

"ARTICLE III—Definitions

"That, for the purposes of this compact, 'delinquent juvenile' means any juvenile who has been adjudged delinquent and who, at the time the provisions of this compact are invoked, is still subject to the jurisdiction of the court that has made such adjudication or to the jurisdiction or supervision of any agency or institution pursuant to an order of such court; 'probation or parole' means any kind of conditional release of juveniles authorized under the laws of the states party hereto; 'court' means any court having jurisdiction over delinquent, neglected or dependent children; 'state' means any state, territory or possessions of the United States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico; and 'residence' or any variant thereof means a place at which a home or regular place of abode is maintained.

"ARTICLE IV—Return of Runaways

"(a) That the parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to legal custody of a juvenile who has not been adjudged delinquent but who has run away without the consent of such parent, guardian, person or agency may petition the appropriate court in the demanding state for the issuance of a requisition for his return. The petition shall state the name and age of the juvenile, the name of the petitioner and the basis of entitlement to the juvenile's custody, the circumstances of his running away, his location if known at the time application is made, and such other facts as may tend to show that the juvenile who has run away is endangering his own welfare or the welfare of others and is not an emancipated minor. The petition shall be verified by affidavit, shall be executed in duplicate, and shall be accompanied by two certified copies of the document or documents on which the petitioner's entitlement to the juvenile's custody is based, such as birth certificates, letters of guardianship, or custody decrees. Such further affidavits and other documents as may be deemed proper may be submitted with such petition. The judge of the court to which this application is made may hold a hearing thereon to determine whether for the purposes of this compact the petitioner is entitled to the legal custody of the juvenile, whether or not it appears that the juvenile has in fact run away without consent, whether or not he is an emancipated minor, and whether or not it is in the best interest of the juvenile to compel his return to the state. If the judge determines, either with or without a hearing. That[1] the juvenile should be returned, he shall present the appropriate court or to the executive authority of the state where the juvenile is alleged to be located a written requisition for the return of such juvenile. Such requisition shall set forth the name and age of the juvenile, the determination of the court that the juvenile has run away without the consent of a parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to his legal custody, and that it is in the best interest and for the protection of such juvenile that he be returned. In the event that a proceeding for the adjudication of the juvenile as a delinquent, neglected or dependent juvenile is pending in the court at the time when such juvenile runs away, the court may issue a requisition for the return of such juvenile upon its own motion, regardless of the consent of the parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to legal custody, reciting therein the nature and circumstances of the pending proceeding. The requisition shall in every case be executed in duplicate and shall be signed by the judge. One copy of the requisition shall be filed with the compact administrator of the demanding state, there to remain on file subject to the provisions of law governing records of such court. Upon the receipt of a requisition demanding the return of a juvenile who has run away, the court or the executive authority to whom the requisition is addressed shall issue an order to any peace officer or other appropriate person directing him to take into custody and detain such juvenile. Such detention order must substantially recite the facts necessary to the validity of its issuance hereunder. No juvenile detained upon such order shall be delivered over to the officer whom the court demanding him shall have appointed to receive him, unless he shall first be taken forthwith before a judge of a court in the state, who shall inform him of the demand made for his return and who may appoint counsel or guardain ad litem for him. If the judge of such court shall find that the requisition is in order, he shall deliver such juvenile over to the officer whom the court demanding him shall have appointed to receive him. The judge, however, may fix a reasonable time to be allowed for the purpose of testing the legality of the proceeding.

"Upon reasonable information that a person is a juvenile who has run away from another state party to this compact without the consent of a parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to his legal custody, such juvenile may be taken into custody without a requisition and brought forthwith before a judge of the appropriate court who may appoint counsel or guardian ad litem for such juvenile and who shall determine after a hearing whether sufficient cause exists to hold the person, subject to the order of the court, for his own protection and welfare, for such a time not exceeding 90 days as will enable his return to another state party to this compact pursuant to a requisition for his return from a court of that state. If, at the time when a state seeks the return of a juvenile who has run away, there is pending in the state wherein he is found any criminal charge, or any proceeding to have him adjudicated a delinquent juvenile for an act committed in such State, or if he is suspected of having committed within such state a criminal offense or an act of juvenile delinquency, he shall not be returned without the consent of such state until discharged from prosecution or other form of proceeding, imprisonment, detention or supervision for such offense or juvenile delinquency. The duly accredited officers of any state party to this conpact, upon the establishment of their authority and the identity of the juvenile being returned, shall be permitted to transport such juvenile through any and all states party to this compact, without interference. Upon his return to the state from which he ran away, the juvenile shall be subject to such further proceedings as may be appropriate under the laws of that state.

"(b) That the state to which a juvenile is returned under this Article shall be responsible for payment of the transportation costs of such return.

"(c) That 'juvenile' as used in this Article means any person who is a minor under the law of the state of residence of the parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to the legal custody of such minor.

"ARTICLE V—Return of Escapees and Absconders

"(a) That the appropriate person or authority from whose probation or parole supervision a delinquent juvenile has absconded or from whose institutional custody he has escaped shall present to the appropriate court or to the executive authority of the state where the delinquent juvenile is alleged to be located a written requisition for the return of such delinquent juvenile. Such requisition shall state the name and age of the delinquent juvenile, the particulars of his adjudication as a delinquent juvenile, the circumstances of the breach of the terms of his probation or parole or of his escape from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision, and the location of such delinquent juvenile, if known, at the time the requisition is made. The requisition shall be verified by affidavit, shall be executed in duplicate, and shall be accompanied by two certified copies of the judgment, formal adjudication, or order of commitment which subjects such delinquent juvenile to probation or parole or to the legal custody of the institution or agency concerned. Such further affidavits and other documents as may be deemed proper may be submitted with such requisition. One copy of the requisition shall be filed with the compact administrator of the demanding state, there to remain on file subject to the provisions of law governing records of the appropriate court. Upon the receipt of a requisition demanding the return of a delinquent juvenile who has absconded or escaped, the court or the executive authority to whom the requisition is addressed shall issue an order to any peace officer or other appropriate person directing him to take into custody and detain such delinquent juvenile. Such detention order must substantially recite the facts necessary to the validity of its issuance hereunder. No delinquent juvenile detained upon such order shall be delivered over to the officer whom the appropriate person or authority demanding him shall have appointed to receive him, unless he shall first be taken forthwith before a judge of an appropriate court in the state, who shall inform him of the demand made for his return and who may appoint counsel or guardian ad litem for him. If the judge of such court shall find that the requisition is in order, he shall deliver such delinquent juvenile over to the officer whom the appropriate person or authority demanding him shall have appointed to receive him. The judge, however, may fix a reasonable time to be allowed for the purpose of testing the legality of the proceeding.

"Upon reasonable information that a person is a delinquent juvenile who has absconded while on probation or parole, or escaped from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision in any state party to this compact, such person may be taken into custody in any other state party to this compact without a requisition. But in such event, he must be taken forthwith before a judge of the appropriate court, who may appoint counsel or guardian ad litem for such person and who shall determine, after a hearing, whether sufficient cause exists to hold the person subject to the order of the court for such a time, not exceeding 90 days, as will enable his detention under a detention order issued on a requisition pursuant to this Article. If, at the time when a state seeks the return of a delinquent juvenile who has either absconded while on probation or parole or escaped from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision, there is pending in the state wherein he is detained any criminal charge or any proceeding to have him adjudicated a delinquent juvenile for an act committed in such state, or if he is suspected of having committed within such state a criminal offense or an act of juvenile delinquency, he shall not be returned without the consent of such state until discharged from prosecution or other form of proceeding, imprisonment, detention or supervision for such offense or juvenile delinquency. The duly accredited officers of any state party to this compact, upon the establishment of their authority and the identity of the delinquent juvenile being returned, shall be permitted to transport such delinquent juvenile through any and all states party to this compact, without interference. Upon his return to the state from which he escaped or absconded, the delinquent juvenile shall be subject to such further proceedings as may be appropriate under the laws of that state.

"(b) That the state to which a delinquent juvenile is returned under this Article shall be responsible for the payment of the transportation costs of such return.

"ARTICLE VI—Voluntary Return Procedure

"That any delinquent juvenile who has absconded while on probation or parole, or escaped from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision in any state party to this compact, and any juvenile who has run away from any state party to this compact, who is taken into custody without a requisition in another state party to this compact under the provisions of Article IV(a) or of Article V(a), may consent to his immediate return to the state from which he absconded, escaped or ran away. Such consent shall be given by the juvenile or delinquent juvenile and his counsel or guardian ad litem if any, by executing or subscribing a writing, in the presence of a judge of the appropriate court, which states that the juvenile or delinquent juvenile and his counsel or guardian ad litem, if any, consent to his return to the demanding state. Before such consent shall be executed or subscribed, however, the judge, in the presence of counsel or guardian ad litem, if any, shall inform the juvenile or delinquent juvenile of his rights under this compact. When the consent has been duly executed, it shall be forwarded to and filed with the compact administrator of the state in which the court is located and the judge shall direct the officer having the juvenile or delinquent juvenile in custody to deliver him to the duly accredited officer or officers of the state demanding his return, and shall cause to be delivered to such officer or officers a copy of the consent. The court may, however, upon the request of the state to which the juvenile or delinquent juvenile is being returned, order him to return unaccompanied to such state and shall provide him with a copy of such court order; in such event a copy of the consent shall be forwarded to the compact administrator of the state to which said juvenile or delinquent juvenile is ordered to return.

"ARTICLE VII—Cooperative Supervision of Probationers and Parolees

"(a) That the duly constituted judicial and administrative authorities of a state party to this compact (herein called 'sending state') may permit any delinquent juvenile within such state, placed on probation or parole, to reside in any other state party to this compact (herein called 'receiving state') while on probation or parole, and the receiving state shall accept such delinquent juvenile, if the parent, guardian or person entitled to the legal custody of such delinquent juvenile is residing or undertakes to reside within the receiving state. Before granting such permission, opportunity shall be given to the receiving state to make such investigations as it deems necessary. The authorities of the sending state shall send to the authorities of the receiving state copies of pertinent court orders, social case studies and all other available information which may be of value to and assist the receiving state in supervising a probationer or parolee under this compact. A receiving state, in its discretion, may agree to accept supervision of a probational or parolee in cases where the parent, guardian or person entitled to the legal custody of the delinquent juvenile is not a resident of the receiving state, and if so accepted the sending state may transfer supervision accordingly.

"(b) That each receiving state will assume the duties of visitation and of supervision over any such delinquent juvenile and in the exercise of those duties will be governed by the same standards of visitation and supervision that prevail for its own delinquent juveniles released on probation or parole.

"(c) That, after consultation between the appropriate authorities of the sending state and of the receiving state as to the desirability and necessity of returning such a delinquent juvenile, the duly accredited officers of a sending state may enter a receiving state and there apprehend and retake any such delinquent juvenile on probation or parole. For that purpose, no formalities will be required, other than establishing the authority of the officer and the identity of the delinquent juvenile to be retaken and returned. The decision of the sending state to retake a delinquent juvenile on probation or parole shall be conclusive upon and not reviewable within the receiving state, but if, at the time the sending state seeks to retake a delinquent juvenile on probation or parole, there is pending against him within the receiving state any criminal charge or any proceeding to have him adjudicated a delinquent juvenile for any act committed in such state or if he is suspected of having committed within such state a criminal offense or an act of juvenile delinquency, he shall not be returned without the consent of the receiving state until discharged from prosecution or other form of proceeding, imprisonment, detention or supervision for such offense or juvenile delinquency. The duly accredited officers of the sending state shall be permitted to transport delinquent juveniles being so returned through any and all states party to this compact, without interference.

"(d) That the sending state shall be responsible under this Article for paying the costs of transporting any delinquent juvenile to the receiving state or of returning any delinquent juvenile to the sending state.

"ARTICLE VIII—Responsibility for Costs

"(a) That the provisions of Articles IV(b), V(b) and VII(d) of this compact shall not be construed to alter or affect any internal relationship among the departments, agencies and officers of and in the government of a party state, or between a party state and its subdivisions, as to the payment of costs, or responsibilities therefor.

"(b) That nothing in this compact shall be construed to prevent any party state or subdivision thereof from asserting any right against any person, agency or other entity in regard to costs for which such party state or subdivision thereof may be responsible pursuant to Articles IV(b), V(b) or VII(d) of this compact.

"ARTICLE IX—Detention Practices

"That, to every extent possible, it shall be the policy of states party to this compact that no juvenile or delinquent juvenile shall be placed or detained in any prison, jail or lockup nor be detained or transported in association with criminal, vicious or dissolute persons.

"ARTICLE X—Supplementary Agreements

"That the duly constituted administrative authorities of a state party to this compact may enter into supplementary agreements with any other state or states party hereto for the cooperative care, treatment and rehabilitation of delinquent juveniles whenever they shall find that such agreements will improve the facilities or programs available for such care, treatment, and rehabilitation. Such care, treatment and rehabilitation may be provided in an institution located within any state entering into such supplementary agreement. Such supplementary agreements shall (1) provide the rates to be paid for the care, treatment and custody of such delinquent juveniles, taking into consideration the character of facilities, services and subsistence furnished; (2) provide that the delinquent juvenile shall be given a court hearing prior to his being sent to another state for care, treatment and custody; (3) provide that the state receiving such a delinquent juvenile in one of its institutions shall act solely as agent for the state sending such delinquent juvenile; (4) provide that the sending state shall at all times retain jurisdiction over delinquent juveniles sent to an institution in another state; (5) provide for reasonable inspection of such institutions by the sending state; (6) provide that the consent of the parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to the legal custody of said delinquent juvenile shall be secured prior to his being sent to another state; and (7) make provision for such other matters and details as shall be necessary to protect the rights and equities of such delinquent juveniles and of the cooperating states.

"ARTICLE XI—Acceptance of Federal and Other Aid

"That any state party to this compact may accept any and all donations: gifts and grants of money, equipment and services from the federal or any local government, or any agency thereof and from any person, firm or corporation, for any of the purposes and functions of this compact, and may receive and utilize the same subject to the terms, conditions and regulations governing such donations, gifts and grants.

"ARTICLE XII—Compact Administrators

"That the governor of each state party to this compact shall designate an officer who, acting jointly with like officers of other party states, shall promulgate rules and regulations to carry out more effectively the terms and provisions of this compact.

"ARTICLE XIII—Execution of Compact

"That this compact shall become operative immediately upon its execution by any state as between it and any other state or states so executing. When executed it shall have the full force and effect of law within such state, the form or execution to be in accordance with the laws of the executing state.

"ARTICLE XIV—Renunciation

"That this compact shall continue in force and remain binding upon each executing state until renounced by it. Renunciation of this compact shall be by the same authority which executed it, by sending six months' notice in writing of its intention to withdraw from the compact to the other states party hereto. The duties and obligations of a renouncing state under Article VII hereof shall continue as to parolees and probationers residing therein at the time of withdrawal until retaken or finally discharged. Supplementary agreements entered into under Article X hereof shall be subject to renunciation as provided by such supplementary agreements, and shall not be subject to the six months' renunciation notice of the present Article.

"ARTICLE XV—Severability

"That the provisions of this compact shall be severable and if any phrase, clause, sentence or provision of this compact is declared to be contrary to the constitution of any participating state or of the United States or the applicability thereof to any government, agency, person or circumstance is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of this compact and the applicability thereof to any government, agency, person or circumstances shall not be affected thereby. If this compact shall be held contrary to the constitution of any state participating therein, the compact shall remain in full force and effect as to the remaining states and in full force and effect as to the state affected as to all severable matters."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

Statutes which made it unlawful for any person to manufacture, possess, have under his control, sell, prescribe, administer, dispense or compound any narcotic drug and which defined narcotic drug as including marijuana were constitutional. S. V. Scott v. United States (1968, 395 F. 2d 619, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

§ 33–402. Acts declared unlawful.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23–546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Acquittal on appeal

Court of Appeals, on reversing convictions for narcotic vagrancy, maintaining common nuisance, and possession of narcotics, for failure of evidence to show that defendants had in their possession more than trace of heroin, would not remand for new trial, where there was no showing that government had additional proof that actual amounts involved were more than mere traces that were actually usable or saleable as narcotics. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

Concurrent sentences

Where defendants received concurrent sentences in prosecution for possession of narcotics, possession of implements of crime, unlawful entry and narcotics vagrancy and evidence was sufficient to support conviction of possession of narcotics and possession of implements of crime, District of Columbia Court of Appeals would not pass upon sufficiency of evidence to support other convictions. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Constitutionality

Statutes which made it unlawful for any person to manufacture, possess, have under his control, sell, prescribe, administer, dispense or compound any narcotic drug and which defined narcotic drug as including marijuana were constitutional. S. V. Scott v. United States (1968, 395 F. 2d 619, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

Custodial interrogation

Questions addressed to three defendants by arresting officers seeking an explanation for defendants' being in condemned house were noncoercive and not "custodial interrogation" within rule of Miranda v. State of Arizona. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Duty to arrest

When police detectives saw narcotics paraphernalia in possession of defendants, officers were under statutory duty to arrest offenders immediately. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Evidence—Admissibility of

In this case, since the police officer received reliable information in early morning hours that a large supply of heroin was to be transported in a few hours from a certain to an uncertain location for processing, and no magistrate was available so that officers were warranted in effecting entry without search warrant, and upon forcing entry found the apartment empty, the significant possibility of removal of contraband was an exceptional circumstance justifying search for the narcotics, and thus narcotics seized were properly admitted in prosecution for violation of this section. C. E. Hailes v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 363).

Even if the arrest of defendant without warrant was invalid, capsules which the police officers recovered from trash pile in corner of fire-gutted pool hall after defendant and another person had been permitted by officers to leave the room were not seized in violation of defendant's Fourth Amendment rights and were admissible in prosecution for unlawful possession of narcotics. United States v. E. L. Hayes (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 701).

Where defendants' arrest for narcotics violations was legal, narcotics paraphernalia seized at time of the arrest was properly admitted in defendants' joint trial for narcotics violations. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

—— Suppression

In this case, the court held that the trial judge did not err in denying motion to suppress heroin properly seized from defendant, one judge being of the opinion that the defendant was properly "seized" in rapidly moving on-street investigation and discarding of narcotics was not product of illegal police action, and second judge being of the opinion that the officer had probable cause to arrest defendant for disorderly conduct and seizure of heroin was therefore lawful. W. Von Sleichter v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 336).

Intent

In this case, the court held that defendant's admission of his intent to use hypodermic and needle for criminal purpose was sufficiently corroborated and statement was sufficiently trustworthy for admission on proof of intent in prosecution for possession of implements of a crime, since although possession of a wet needle, needle holder and syringe but not the cooker, might not be sufficient to establish corpus delicti, it did constitute substantial independent evidence which would tend to establish trustworthiness of admission by defendant, a nonmedical person, to arresting officer. L. F. McKoy v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 649).

Redirect examination

In prosecution for violations of federal narcotics laws, where on cross-examination of government's expert chemist, the defense elicited the fact that heroin is actually a morphine derivative, and that morphine can be legally imported into the United States, permitting witness on redirect to testify that in his opinion the narcotics involved were produced outside the United States was not improper on grounds that question was beyond qualifications of witness, since defense counsel's initial voyage into area of drug's source permitted full exploration by the government. R. E. Green v. United States (1967, 383 F. 2d 199, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 272).

Search and seizure

In this case, the court held that since there was probable cause for arrest without a warrant prior to search of defendant, who was suspected of robbing liquor store, seizure of heroin disclosed by search was valid. R. Harrison v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 368).

Seizure of "means and instrumentality"

Narcotics paraphernalia is not the fruit of a crime, a weapon, or property the mere possession of which constitutes a crime; it is, however, the "means and instrumentality" by which narcotics may be illegally used, so that it is within exception permitting lawful seizure of certain articles even though not described in search warrant. R. M. Edelin v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 395).

Hypodermic needle, syringe, bent spoon usable as a narcotics "cooker" and tissue paper, all wrapped in a stocking and found under pillow on bed, were an apparent narcotics user's "kit" and were the "means and instrumentality" by which narcotics might be illegally used, so that seizure of such paraphernalia under warrant authorizing seizure of check writing machine and undetermined number of blank checks was valid under exception permitting instrumentalities and means by which a crime is committed to be seized even though not described in search warrant, and such evidence was not subject to suppression in narcotics prosecution. Id.

Stipulations

Refusal of the trial court to allow defense to question admissibility, on ground of an illegal search and seizure, of heroin found on the defendant on theory that the stipulation between prosecution and defense that material removed from defendant was heroin and that chain of custody need not be proved, removed necessity of introducing substance into evidence and in turn precluded opportunity for objection to its admission, constitutes reversible error. F. Purvis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 501).

Sufficiency of evidence

Absence of any proof that defendants had in their possession more than trace of heroin or that such trace could be used or dispensed as narcotic required reversal of convictions for narcotic vagrancy, maintaining common nuisance, and possession of narcotics. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

Where there is only trace of substance, a chemical constituent not quantitatively determined because of minuteness, and there is no additional proof of its usability as narcotic, there can be no conviction under statute making it illegal for person to maintain place resorted to by drug addicts for purpose of using narcotic drugs or used for illegal keeping or sale of same. Id.

Sufficiency of evidence of possession

Where there is only a trace of substance, a chemical constituent not quantitatively determined because of minuteness, and there is no additional proof of its usability as a narcotic, there can be no conviction for unlawful possession of a narcotic. R. M. Edlin v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 395).

Evidence that microscopic chemical analysis of narcotics paraphernalia disclosed traces of heroin was insufficient, in absence of any additional proof as to usability of traces as a narcotic, to show illegal possession of a narcotic drug. Id.

Warning of constitutional rights

The case was remanded to determine whether defendant who was convicted of possession of implements of crime had been warned of his constitutional rights by arresting officers before he made incriminating statements. W. J. Johnson v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 255 A. 2d 494).

(a) A search warrant may be issued by any judge of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia or by a United States commissioner for the District of Columbia when any narcotic drugs are manufactured, possessed, controlled, sold, prescribed, administered, dispensed, or compounded, in violation of the provisions of this chapter, and any such narcotic drugs and any other property designed for use in connection with such unlawful manufacturing, possession, controlling, selling, prescribing, administering, dispensing, or compounding, may be seized thereunder, and shall be subject to such disposition as the court may make thereof and such narcotic drugs may be taken on the warrant from any house or other place in which they are concealed.

(b) A search warrant cannot be issued but upon probable cause supported by affidavit particularly describing the property and the place to be searched.

(c) The judge or commissioner must, before issuing the warrant, examine on oath the complainant and any witnesses he may produce, and require their affidavits or take their depositions in writing and cause them to be subscribed by the parties making them.

(d) The affidavits or depositions must set forth the facts tending to establish the grounds of the application or probable cause for believing that they exist.

(e) If the judge or commissioner is thereupon satisfied of the existence of the grounds of the application or that there is probable cause to believe their existence, he must issue a search warrant, signed by him, to the major and superintendent of police of the District of Columbia or any member of the Metropolitan police department, stating the particular grounds or probable cause for its issue and the names of the persons whose affidavits have been taken in support thereof, and commanding him forthwith to search the place named for the property specified and to bring it before the judge or commissioner.

by no other person, except in aid of the officer on his requiring it, he being present and acting in its execution.

(g) The officer may break open any outer or inner door or window of a house, or any part of a house, or anything therein, to execute the warrant, if, after notice of his authority and purpose, he is refused admittance.

(h) The judge or commissioner shall insert a direction in the warrant that it may be served at any time in the day or night.

(i) A search warrant must be executed and returned to the judge or commissioner who issued it within ten days after its date; after the expiration of this time the warrant, unless executed, is void.

(j) When the officer takes property under the warrant, he must give a copy of the warrant together with a receipt for the property taken (specifying it in detail) to the person from whom it was taken by him, or in whose possession it was found; or in the absence of any person, he must leave it in the place where he found the property.

(k) The officer must forthwith return the warrant to the judge or commissioner and deliver to him a written inventory of the property taken, made publicly or in the presence of the person from whose possession it was taken, and of the applicant for the warrant, if they are present, verified by the affidavit of the officer at the foot of the inventory and taken before the judge or commissioner at the time, to the following in effect: "I, ————, the officer by whom this warrant was executed, do swear that the above inventory contains a true and detailed account of all the property taken by me on the warrant."

(l) The judge or commissioner must thereupon, if required, deliver a copy of the inventory to the person from whose possession the property was taken and to the applicant for the warrant.

(m) The judge or commissioner must annex the affidavits, search warrant, return, inventory, and evidence, and at once file the same, together with a copy of the record of his proceedings, with the clerk of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia.

(n) Whoever shall knowingly and willfully obstruct, resist, or oppose any such officer or person in serving or attempting to serve or execute any such search warrant, or shall assault, beat, or wound any such officer or person, knowing him to be an officer or person so authorized, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than two years. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 792, ch. 532, § 14; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 620, ch. 676, title III, § 301(k); July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Delay in execution

In this case, the court held that defendant failed to show that eight-day delay in executing search warrant after it was issued had prejudiced him. J. E. Curtis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 653).

Even an unreasonable time lag in execution of search warrant must prejudice defendant to render search invalid. Id.

Under this section which provides that the warrant command the search "forthwith" and that the warrant must be executed within 10 days after its date, delay within 10-day limitation does not, standing alone, vitiate warrant. W. J. Johnson v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 255 A. 2d 494).

Since prejudice was not claimed by reason of failure to execute search warrant until six days after its issuance, the delay did not vitiate the warrant and did not require suppression of evidence obtained pursuant to the warrant. Id.

Description of premises

In an appeal from an order of District of Columbia Court of General Sessions granting motion to suppress evidence, the court held that a warrant ordering search of "Entire Premises, 2nd Floor Front" at specified address described the place to be searched with sufficient particularity to be valid, and thus motion to suppress evidence seized should have been denied, though second floor of the premises was divided into two apartments, each fronting on street, where affidavit, referring to specific apartment number, was attached to the warrant and sufficiently referred to therein to enable officer executing warrant to look at affidavit and determine place intended. United States v. S. H. Moore et ano. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 652).

Execution of search warrant

Requirement of this section that search warrant command search "forthwith" is to insure that probable cause existing when warrant issued also exists when it is executed. J. E. Curtis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 653).

Subject of search

Under the circumstances of this case, it was not unreasonable for officers to seize pistol which, as convicted felon, defendant was forbidden to possess, incidental to authorized search of his apartment for narcotics, in absence of showing that presence of pistol on premises was attributable to eight-day delay in execution of search warrant J. E. Curtis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 653).

§ 33–416. Common nuisances.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23–546.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Elements of offense

In order to convict a defendant of keeping a place to which drug addicts resort for the purpose of using narcotic drugs, it is unnecessary to prove that drugs were or had been kept on the premises; however, such proof is essential to sustain a conviction of maintaining a place used for the illegal keeping or selling of narcotic drugs; and there must in addition be proof that the narcotic drugs kept or sold on the premises were of a usable or salable quantity. L. E. Gantt v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 350).

Evidence—Sufficiency

In this case the court agreed that at the time the motion for judgment of acquittal was made there existed sufficient evidence, including fact that narcotic paraphernalia was present in apartment and that rent receipts indicated defendant lived in the apartment, to present to a jury the question of whether defendant kept or maintained a place resorted to by drug addicts for the purpose of using drugs; and since, though it was doubtful whether a jury question existed on alternative charge that the defendant maintained a place used for the illegal keeping or selling of drugs, there was sufficient evidence to support a verdict of guilt of maintaining a common nuisance, and the trial court properly denied the acquittal motion. L. E. Gantt v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 350).

Prejudicial error

In a trial involving the owner of a rooming house for permitting marijuana to be smoked on his premises, it was not prejudicial error to a quash subpoena ad testificandum for a material defense witness who was awaiting trial on charges relating to the very transactions to which he would be requested to testify in owner's trial where trial court was familiar with evidence to which witness was to testify and witness' attorney had informed court that witness would invoke privilege against self-incrimination if he were called to testify. D. G. Harris v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 255 A. 2d 489).

Reversible error

In view of the evidence in this case, including witness' testimony that he had lived with defendant for about three months prior to his arrest and had used heroin in the apartment over five times, the trial court did not err in accepting a general verdict of guilt after instructing the jurors that they could find the defendant guilty of violating either or both alternative provisions of this section making it a common nuisance to maintain a place resorted to by narcotic drug addicts for the purpose of using narcotic drugs or to maintain a place used for the illegal keeping or selling of drugs. L. E. Gantt v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 350).

§ 33–416a. Vagrancy—Narcotic drug user—Penalties—Conditions imposed.

* * * * *

(f) Upon affirmative determination that the person arrested is a narcotic drug user, or if the person has been convicted of a narcotic offense in the District of Columbia or elsewhere, and if such person is also a vagrant as hereinbefore defined, he shall be charged with the offense of vagrancy within the meaning of this section and arraigned in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia where the prosecution shall be conducted in the name of the United States by the United States attorney.

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 157(d) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91–358, amended subsection (f) by striking out "United States branch of the municipal court" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11–101.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Acquittal on appeal

Court of Appeals, on reversing convictions for narcotic vagrancy, maintaining common nuisance, and possession of narcotics, for failure of evidence to show that defendants had in their possession more than trace of heroin, would not remand for new trial, where there was no showing that government had additional proof that actual amounts involved were more than mere traces that were actually usable or saleable as narcotics. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

Concurrent sentences

Where defendant received identical concurrent sentences in prosecution for illegal possession of narcotics and narcotics vagrancy, failure to charge scienter in narcotics vagrancy information did not require vacation of judgment on such charge, absent collateral consequences warranting vacation. J. D. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 659).

Where defendants received concurrent sentences in prosecution for possession of narcotics, possession of implements of crime, unlawful entry and narcotics vagrancy and evidence was sufficient to support conviction of possession of narcotics and possession of implements of crime, District of Columbia Court of Appeals would not pass upon sufficiency of evidence to support other convictions. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Constitutionality

Burden put upon prior narcotics offenders and narcotics users by this section, as those most likely to engage in illicit narcotics traffic, of absenting themselves from places where the narcotics are kept or used is not impermissible deprivation of freedom of movement. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

This section which defines as a vagrant any unemployed narcotic user or who has been convicted as a narcotic offender without lawful and visible means of support who is found in public place and fails to give good account of himself did not enable citizens of ordinary intellect to distinguish wrong from right and was unconstitutional. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States (1968, 414 F. 2d 1111, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

The Court is not at liberty to ignore shortcomings of statutory language, or rationalize its validity, simply on basis of methods associated with its administration. Id.

This section which was vague and indefinite could not be rendered constitutional by the unpublicized scope limitations which its enforcement plan espouses. Id.

Since under the Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes anyone using street for a lawful business in a lawful manner may do so without restriction, statutes are not an unreasonable restriction on freedom of movement in violation of due process clause of Fifth Amendment. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1111, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Convictions for violation of Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes were not invalid on ground that defendants were being punished solely for their status as vagrants. Id.

Convictions of defendants for violation of Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes on proof showing defendants' associations with known narcotics users and prostitutes did not violate Eighth Amendment's prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment despite claim that there was an absence of any overt criminal act. Id.

Construction

Without requirement of knowledge by defendant that he is in place wherein narcotics are kept, found, used, or dispensed, this section would violate due process; but this section is construed to require knowledge on part of defendant, and, so construed, is constitutionally valid; overruling in part Harris v. United States, D.C. Mun. App., 162 A. 2d 503. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

This section was designed in large part to punish participants in narcotics traffic, and as such does not fit into class of offenses in which absolute criminal liability is imposed. Id.

When an individual is unable to give a good account to police when wandering at late and unusual hours and is associated with criminals or narcotics addicts and is not lawfully employed, these factors, together with others enumerated in statutes, constitute probable cause for arrest for vagrancy. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1111, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Vagrancy statutes were not invalid on ground that they were "catch-alls" used when other crimes could not be proven or that they allegedly required a lesser quantum of proof to convict. Id.

Word "loitering" as used in Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes was not unconstitutionally vague, particularly where additional conditions were necessary to constitute offense. Id.

Reference to "failure to give a good account" as used in Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes restricts rather than enlarges application of statutes and allows suspected vagrant to dissipate probable cause by satisfactorily explaining his conduct, and the arresting officer is not the only one who must evaluate account given by person questioned. Id.

Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes delineate with specificity what vagrancy is, and the definitions are neither numerous nor susceptible to widely divergent interpretations. Id.

Custodial interrogation

Questions addressed to three defendants by arresting officers seeking an explanation for defendants' being in condemned house were noncoercive and not "custodial interrogation" within rule of Miranda v. State of Arizona. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Duty to arrest

When police detectives saw narcotics paraphernalia in possession of defendants, officers were under statutory duty to arrest the offenders immediately. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Elements of offense

Presence of narcotics is not essential element of common nuisance offense when addicts are shown to frequent premises for purpose of using narcotics, but there can be no conviction for maintaining place used for illegal keeping or sale of narcotics without also showing that such drugs were or had been kept on premises. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

Evidence—Admissibility

Where defendants' arrest for narcotics violations was legal, narcotics paraphernalia seized at time of the arrest was properly admitted in defendants' joint trial for narcotics violations. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

—— Sufficiency

Evidence was insufficient to support conviction for violation of Narcotics Vagrancy Statute. N. Baker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 323).

Government's burden of proof

To prove violation of statute making it illegal for any person to keep or maintain any place resorted to by drug addicts for purpose of using narcotic drugs or used for illegal keeping or sale of same, government must show either that addicts resort to such premises for use of narcotics or that premises are maintained or used for illegal sale, use or possession of narcotics. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

In absence of proof of contemporaneous use, conviction for narcotic vagrancy necessitates additional showing of presence of quantity of narcotics sufficient to be used or dispensed, not mere immeasurable trace. Id.

Information—Sufficiency

Information charging defendant with narcotics vagrancy is insufficient for failure to allege knowledge of presence of illicit narcotics in basement in which defendant was found. F. L. Brooks v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 45).

Joinder

In this case, the court held the offenses of possession of narcotics and of narcotics vagrancy, largely based on same transaction, were of "similar character," such that joinder of the charges was permissible J. D. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 659).

Knowledge

Proof of knowledge of presence of narcotics, required in prosecutions under this section, will usually take form of inference to be drawn from defendant's proximity to or connection with narcotics, and not merely from presence in one part of large building in which narcotics are found. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

Charges of narcotics vagrancy violations under this section would be dismissed without prejudice, where information failed to allege knowledge on part of defendants of presence of illicit narcotics in residence in which narcotic drugs were found. Id.

Prior convictions

One can be found guilty of violating either Narcotics Vagrancy Statute or the General Vagrancy Statute without having been previously convicted. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1111, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Both the Narcotics Vagrancy Statute and General Vagrancy Statute employ separate paragraphs which disjunctively set up criteria amounting to vagrancy and both require factors, other than prior convictions, which conjunctively amount to violation, so that prior convictions are not essential to all subsections of the statutes. Id.

Prior convictions of accused are admissible in prosecution for violation of vagrancy statutes. Id.

Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes do not improperly require presentation and proof of prior convictions, and do not deny due process and fair trial. Id.

Probable cause for arrest

Arrest for vagrancy without warrant was justified under evidence, including testimony of experienced police officers that they had observed defendant in company of known prostitutes and narcotics violators on four occasions during two nights, defendant's warrantless arrest for vagrancy was not without probable cause. J. L. Worthy v. United States (1968, 409 F. 2d 1105, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

Purpose of statute

A course of conduct rather than an overt act is prohibited by the Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1111, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Purpose of Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes is to prevent crimes which may likely flow from the vagrant's mode of life. Id.

Search

Although it is incident to an arrest for vagrancy the search was not for that reason required to be limited to a frisk. J. L. Worthy v. United States (1968, 409 F. 2d 1105, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

Sufficiency of evidence

Absence of any proof that defendants had in their possession more than trace of heroin or that such trace could be used or dispensed as narcotic required reversal of convictions for narcotic vagrancy, maintaining common nuisance, and possession of narcotics. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

Where there is only trace of substance, a chemical constituent not quantitatively determined because of minuteness, and there is no additional proof of its usability as narcotics, there can be no conviction under statute making it illegal for person to maintain place resorted to by drug addicts for purpose of using narcotic drugs or used for illegal keeping or sale of same. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Government's burden of proof

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Amendment of information

Granting government's motion to amend information, after presentation of all evidence and after government had rested its case, to read "make or utter" rather than "make and utter" a forged prescription for purpose of obtaining dangerous drug did not change nature of offense or charge additional violation and constituted proper exercise of judicial discretion. G. D. Bobrow v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 311).

Basis for search warrant

Quantitatively, the information in support of a search warrant in narcotics case must be that from which a reasonable man could conclude that there probably are illicit paraphernalia on the premises to be searched. Logically this is less evidence than that required to convict. United States v. J. D. Kuch (1969, 301 F. Supp. 965).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

"Guest" defined

Hotel patron who had stated to hotel desk clerk in the morning that she was checking out but would leave her belongings in the room until 3:00 P.M. until checkout time and was told that this was permissible and who discovered at about 2:30 P.M. that her fur coat was missing from the room was a "guest" of the hotel at the time of the loss, and the common-law doctrine of infra hospitium was applicable. Hotel Corporation of America v. The Travelers Indemnity Company (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 158).

§ 35–414. False statements in application for insurance.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Material misrepresentation

A misstatement in an application for an insurance policy, to be material to the hazard assumed, must be shown in some way to have affected it or contributed to the loss, and in a substantial manner. L. Haubner a/k/a etc. v. Aetna Life Insurance Co. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 414).

The court held that it is clear that the facts suppressed by the life insurance applicant concerning her consultations with and examinations by physicians prior to time she applied for policy and her previous history of cancer affected in a substantial manner the hazard assumed by insurer and would certainly have influenced insurer's decision to insure her, and such false statements by insured were material to issuance of the policy. Id.

Insured's failure to reveal information to the life insurer that she was consulting with physicians at time of policy application and that she had previous history of cancer constituted sufficient cause to justify insurer's refusal to pay proceeds of policy. Id.

Waiver of misrepresentation

Even if life insurer's doctor knew or should have known that tumor causing removal of breast in 1953 was malignant and that recurrence of malignancy in the future was a definite possibility, this did not operate as a waiver by the insurer of a defense based on false statements allegedly contained in an application for life insurance policy, where applicant concealed information, concerning present consultations, that was clearly material to issuance of life insurance policy. L. Haubner a/k/a etc. v. Aetna Life Insurance Co. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 414).

§ 35–530. Officers and directors not to be pecuniarily interested in transactions—Appraisement—Loans on policies.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Claim for "ultra vires" act as part of derivative action

An alleged cause of action charging that the president and director of a corporation is personally liable for participating in "ultra vires" act to the detriment of the corporation and for being pecuniarily interested in corporate transactions in violation of statute should be maintainable as part of a derivative action. G. E. Johnson et al. v. American General Insurance Company et al. (1969, 296 F. Supp. 802).

Construction

District of Columbia statute providing that a director or officer of an insurance company doing business in the district shall not receive any money or valuable thing for negotiating any loan from the company or be pecuniarily interested in any such loan is regulatory and is intended to secure fiduciary relationship from being utilized in a manner which might give rise to conflict of interest and is not intended to punish one who violates the statute, hence the rule of strict construction of criminal statute is to be relaxed. A. F. Jordan v. Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., et ano. (1969, 409 F. 2d 1141, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 224; rev'g 283 F. Supp. 766).

Inasmuch as statute prohibiting director or officer of life insurer from obtaining loan from insurer provided that any person violating statute should be guilty of misdemeanor, statute must be treated as a penal statute Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., et ano. v. A. F Jordan Sup't etc. (1968, 283 F. Supp. 766; rev'd and remanded 409 F. 2d 1141).

Portion of section of District of Columbia Code to effect that no director or officer of any life insurer doing business in district shall receive any money or valuable thing for negotiating, procuring, recommending or aiding in any loan from such insurer was intended to bar director or officer from receiving any compensation, such as broker's commission, for procuring a loan to be made and to prevent director or officer from borrowing any money from insurer while he was director or officer. Id.

Eligibility of borrower to become director or officer

Under District of Columbia statute providing that a director or officer of any insurance company doing business in the district shall not receive any money or valuable thing for negotiating any loan from the company or be pecuniarily interested in any such loan, a person who is interested as principal in a loan from the insurance company is barred from becoming a director even though his interest in the loan arose prior to his becoming a director. A. F. Jordan v. Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., et ano. (1969, 409 F. 2d 1141, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 224; rev'g 283 F. Supp. 766).

Person who had borrowed money from District of Columbia insurance company was eligible to become member of board of directors or officer of company while loan was outstanding. Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., et ano. v. A. F. Jordan Sup't etc. (1968, 283 F. Supp. 766; rev'd and remanded 409 F. 2d 1141).

Section of District of Columbia Code banning director or officer of any insurer from being pecuniarily interested, either as principal, coprincipal, agent or beneficiary in any purchase by, or sale to, insurer or any loan from insurer relates to transaction of lending money and does not apply to status of loan and is not effective during entire period when loan is in existence. Id.

* * * * *

(b) Attorney for services of process.—Every foreign or alien company now or hereafter authorized to transact business in the District shall file with the superintendent a duly executed instrument appointing and constituting him and his successors true and lawful attorney for such company, upon whom all lawful process in any action or legal proceeding against it in the District may be served, and therein shall agree that any lawful process against it, which may be served upon its said attorney as herein provided, shall be of the same force and validity as if served upon the company, and that the authority thereof shall continue in force irrevocably so long as any liability of the company in the District shall remain outstanding. Such process shall be served by delivering to and leaving the same with the superintendent or his deputy, and service thereof upon such attorney shall be deemed service upon the company. The superintendent shall forthwith forward such process by prepaid registered mail or by certified mail to the company, or, in the case of an alien company, to the United States manager or last-appointed United States general agent of the company. Failure of any such company to file such an instrument, or failure on the part of any such company to authorize such filing, shall not invalidate any service made by serving the superintendent. Any such company transacting business in the District without designating an attorney for service of process as herein provided shall, upon information filed by the corporation counsel of the District in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, be fined upon conviction not less than $10 nor more than $500 for each day during which the company shall have operated in violation of this section. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Authority of Superintendent of Insurance

District of Columbia Superintendent of Insurance has statutory authority to issue order including "crime lines" within definition of basic property insurance under this chapter even though the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development has not incorporated those lines into the definition of essential property insurance under the national insurance development programs, but the authority is qualified by substantive constitutional requirements of due process. District of Columbia Insurance Placement Facility v. W.E. Washington, Commissioner, et ano. (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 45.)

§ 35–1703. Industry placement facility.

(a) Within thirty days after August 1, 1968 all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, basic property insurance or any component thereof in multiperil policies, shall establish an Industry Placement Facility. The Facility shall formulate and administer a program, subject to disapproval by the Commissioner in whole or in part, to seek the equitable apportionment amount such insurers of basic property insurance which may be afforded applicants in the District of Columbia whose property is insurable in accordance with reasonable underwriting standards and who individually or through their insurance agent or broker request the aid of the Facility to procure such insurance. The Facility shall seek to place insurance with one or more participating companies up to the full insurable value of the risk, if requested, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participation clauses, and other underwriting devices are employed to meet special problems of insurability.

(b) The Facility may, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, provide as part of its program for the equitable distribution of commercial risks and dwelling risks among insurers.

(c) Each insurer licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, basic property insurance or any component thereof in multiperil policies shall participate in the Industry Placement Facility program in accordance with the established rules of the program as a condition of its authority to transact such kinds of insurance in the District of Columbia, except that, in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for any failure to comply with any of the established rules of the program, the Commissioner may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 for each such failure to so comply when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company in the District of Columbia. (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90–448, § 1204, title XII, 82 Stat. 568.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Due process

Order of District of Columbia Superintendent of Insurance including "crime lines" within definition of basic property insurance under this chapter denied due process since it was issued without giving Insurance Placement Facility, which was established to implement federal program of establishing and effectuating plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements, notice or opportunity for hearing. District of Columbia Insurance Placement Facility v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et ano. (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 45.)

§ 35–1704. Fair access to insurance requirements.

(a) The Industry Placement Facility shall on its own motion, or within thirty days after a request by the Commissioner, submit to the Commissioner such proposed rules and regulations applicable to insurers, agents, and brokers deemed necessary to assure all property owners fair access to basic property insurance through the normal insurance markets, including rules and regulations concerning—

(1) the manner and scope of inspections of risk by an inspection bureau;

(2) the preparation and filing of inspection reports and reports on actions taken in connection with inspected risks, and summaries thereof;

(3) the operation of the Facility, including rules and regulations concerning—

(A) the basic property insurance coverages to be provided through the Facility;

(B) the reasonable effort to obtain insurance in the normal commercial market required of an applicant before recourse to the Facility; and

(C) the appeals procedure within the Facility for any applicant for insurance regarding any ruling, action, or decision by or on behalf of the Facility.

(b) The Commissioner may adopt such of the rules and regulations submitted pursuant to subsection (a) of this section as he approves. If the Commissioner disapproves any proposed rule or regulation submitted, he shall state the reasons for so doing, and he shall require the Facility to submit a revision thereof within such time as he may designate, but no less than ten days. During such designated time, the Commissioner and the Facility shall consult regarding any such disapproved rule or regulation. If the Facility fails to submit a proposed rule or regulation, or revision thereof, within the designated time, or if a revised rule or regulation is unacceptable to the Commissioner, the Commissioner may make such rules and regulations covering the proposed general subject matter as he shall deem necessary to carry out the purposes of this chapter. Any rule or regulation adopted or made under this section shall be consistent with the requirements of part A of title XII of the National Housing Act. (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90–448, § 1205, title XII, 82 Stat. 569.)

Part A of title XII of the National Housing Act, consists of sections 1211 to 1214, as added by section 1103 of the act of Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90–448, sections 1749bbb–3 et seq., title 12, U.S. Code.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Authority of Superintendent of Insurance

District of Columbia Superintendent of Insurance has statutory authority to issue order including "crime lines" within definition of basic property insurance under this chapter even though the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development has not incorporated those lines into the definition of essential property insurance under the national insurance development program, but the authority is qualified by substantive constitutional requirements of due process. District of Columbia Insurance Placement Facility v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et ano. (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 45).

Construction

The provision in § 35–1704(b) that the Superintendent of Insurance may not adopt procedures conflicting with minimum administrative procedures for the operation of the fair plans is not to be construed as preventing Superintendent from proceeding toward an expansion of insurance coverage as provided in § 35–1702(3). District of Columbia Insurance Placement Facility v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et ano. (D.C. App. 1970, 260 A. 2d 45).

Due process

Order of District of Columbia Superintendent of Insurance including "crime lines" within definition of basic property insurance under this chapter denied due process since it was issued without giving Insurance Placement Facility, which was established to implement federal program of establishing and effectuating plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements, notice or opportunity for hearing. District of Columbia Insurance Placement Facility v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et ano. (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 45).

§ 35–1705. Joint Underwriting Association.

(a) The Commissioner is authorized to establish by order a joint underwriting association if he finds, after notice and hearing, that such association is necessary to carry out the purposes of this chapter. Such joint underwriting association shall consist of all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, such basic property insurance as may be designated by the Commissioner or any component thereof in multiperil policies.

(b) Every such insurer shall be and remain a member of the association and shall comply with all requirements of membership as a condition of its authority to transact such kinds of insurance in the District of Columbia, except that in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for any failure to comply with any of the requirements of membership, the Commissioner may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 for each such failure to so comply when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company in the District of Columbia.

(c)(1) Within sixty days following the effective date of the order of the Commissioner under this section the association shall submit to him a proposed plan of operation, consistent with the provisions of this chapter, which shall provide for economical, fair, and nondiscriminatory administration of the association and for the prompt and efficient provision of reinsurance, without regard to environmental hazards, for such basic property insurance as may be designated by the Commissioner. The plan of operation shall include provisions for—

(A) preliminary assessment of all members for initial expenses necessary to commence operations;

(B) establishment of necessary facilities;

(C) management and operation of the association;

(D) assessment of members to defray losses and expenses;

(E) commission arrangements;

(F) reasonable underwriting standards;

(G) assumption and cessation of reinsurance; and

(H) such other matters as the Commissioner may designate.

(2) The plan of operation shall not take effect until approved by the Commissioner. If the Commissioner disapproves the proposed plan of operation (or any part thereof), he shall state the reasons for so doing, and the association shall within thirty days thereafter submit for his review an appropriately revised plan of operation. During such time, the Commissioner and the association shall consult regarding the disapproved plan or part thereof. If the association fails to submit a revised plan of operation, or if the revised plan so submitted is unacceptable to the Commissioner, the Commissioner shall promulgate a plan of operation.

(3) The association may, on its own initiative, amend such plan, subject to approval by the Commissioner, and shall amend such plan at the direction of the Commissioner if he finds such action is necessary to carry out the purposes of this chapter.

(d) All members of the association shall participate in its writings, expenses, profits, and losses, or in such categories thereof as may be separately established by the association, subject to approval by the Commissioner, in the proportion that the premiums written by each such member during the preceding calendar year bear to the aggregate premiums written in the District of Columbia by all members of the association, or in accordance with such other formula as the association may devise with the approval of the Commissioner. Such participation by each insurer in the association shall be determined annually on the basis of such premiums written during the preceding calendar year as disclosed in the annual statements and other reports filed by the insurer with the Commissioner.

(e) The association shall be governed by a board of eleven directors, elected annually by cumulative voting by the members of the association, whose votes in such election shall be weighted in accordance with the proportionate amount of each member's net direct premiums written in the District of Columbia during the preceding calendar year. The first board shall be elected at a meeting of the members or their authorized representatives, which shall be held within thirty days after the effective date of the order under this section establishing the association, at a time and place designated by the Commissioner. (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90–448, § 1206, title XII, 82 Stat. 569.)

§ 35–1706. Examination by Commissioner.

The operation of any inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, and the joint underwriting association shall at all times be subject to the supervision and regulation of the Commissioner. The Commissioner shall have the power of visitation of and examination into such operations and free access to all the books, records, files, papers, and documents that relate to such operations, may summon and qualify witnesses under oath, and may examine directors, officers, agents, employees or, any other person having knowledge of such operations. (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90–448, § 1207, title XII, 82 Stat. 571.)

§ 35–1707. Waiver of liability.

There shall be no liability on the part of, and no cause of action of any nature shall arise against, insurers, any inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, the joint underwriting association, the agents or employees of such bureau, Facility, or association, or any officer or employee of the District of Columbia, for any statements made in good faith by them concerning the insurability of property (A) in any reports or other communications, (B) at the time of the hearings conducted in connection therewith, or (C) in the findings with respect thereto required by the provisions of this chapter. The reports and communications of any inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, and the joint underwriting association with respect to individual properties shall not be open to inspection by, or otherwise available to, the public. (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90–448, § 1208, title XII, 82 Stat. 571.)

§ 35–1708. Annual reports by Joint Underwriting Association.

The joint underwriting association shall file with the Commissoner, annually on or before the 1st day of March, a statement which shall contain information with respect to its transactions, condition, operations, and affairs during the preceding year. Such statement shall contain such matters and information as are prescribed by the Commissioner and shall be in such form as is approved by him. § 36–406. Reconsideration and revision of wage orders—Ad hoc committees—Committee reports of findings and recommendations—Failure to report.

(a) At any time after a wage rate within a wage order has been in effect for one year the Commissioners may on their own motion reconsider such wage rate set in such wage order. If, after investigation, the Commissioners are of the opinion that any substantial number of workers in the occupation covered by such wage order are receiving wages insufficient to provide adequate maintenance and to protect health they may convene an ad hoc advisory committee for the purpose of considering and inquiring into and reporting to the Commissioners on the subject investigated by the Commissioners and submitted by them to such committee.

(b) The committee shall be composed of not more than three persons representing the employers in such occupation, of an equal number representing employees in such occupation, and of not more than three persons representing the public. Such agency shall name and appoint all the members of the committee and designate its chairman. In making such recommendation the committee shall take into consideration (1) the amount of wages sufficient to provide adequate maintenance and to protect health, (2) the fair and reasonable value of the work performed, and (3) the wages paid in the Washington metropolitan region by fair employers for work of like or comparable character. The committee report shall also include recommendations for reasonable allowances for board, lodging, or other facilities or services, customarily furnished by the employer to the employees, or reasonable allowances for gratuities customarily received by employees in any occupation in which gratuities have customarily and usually constituted and have been recognized as a part of the remuneration for hiring purposes. The committee report may also recommend suitable minimum wages for learners and apprentices in the occupation under consideration, where it appears proper or necessary, and may recommend the maximum length of time any such employee may be kept at such wages as a learner or apprentice. The minimum wages recommended for learners and apprentices may be less than the minimum wages recommended for other employees in such occupation. The committee may make a separate inquiry into and report on any branch of any occupation and may recommend different minimum wages for such branch of employment in the same occupation.

(f) If such committee fails to submit a report to the Commissioners within the period specified in subsection (d) of this section, the Commissioners may (1) discharge such committee from further consideration of the subject submitted to it and convene a new committee for the purpose of considering such subject, or (2) consider the subject without the recommendations of an ad hoc advisory committee and prepare and publish a revised wage order for the occupation in accordance with the procedure specified in section 36–407 and after taking into consideration the matters referred to in the second sentence of subsection (e). (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 962, ch. 174, title I, § 6; Oct. 15, 1966, 80 Stat. 965, Pub. L. 89–684, § 1; Jan. 5, 1971, Pub. L. 91–650, title VII, § 703(c), 84 Stat. 1938.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 36–402.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

The District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board is entitled to use median wage level rather than entry-level income paid to those entering particular labor market as reference point in establishing minimum wage. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

It is the wage order and not the wage rate that must be in effect for one year before Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board may reconsider existing wage rate. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

Discretion

The establishment of lower minimum wage rate for handicapped, apprentice and minor employees is within the discretion of District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

Evidence—Sufficiency

The findings of the District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board that wage rate adopted was required to provide adequate maintenance to protect health, and that rate was commensurate with fair and reasonable value of work performed and with that paid in District of Columbia by fair employers for work of like or comparable character were supported by substantial evidence. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

Jurisdiction

The Court held that the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board was not without jurisdiction to reconsider wage rate of existing wage order by reason of fact that such rate had been in effect less than one year. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

Sufficiency of findings of fact

The court held that all interested parties are entitled to know and District of Columbia Court of Appeals, on review, must know basis and reasons for action of Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board in issuing wage order. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

In this case the findings of fact consisting of only finding relating to general minimum weekly wage of $81.28 as sufficient to provide adequate maintenance and to protect health and finding that minimum wage in retail trade occupation should not be less than $2.00 an hour based on prescribed 40-hour work week were insufficient to support wage order issued by Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board. Id.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 36–402, 36–406.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Authority of Board

The current wage order containing sections covering definitions, minimum wage and overtime compensation, employees compensated by commissions, workers under age of 18, handicapped workers, apprentices, adult learners, minimum daily wages, split shifts, uniforms, travel expenses, deductions, allowances for meals and lodging, basis of payment, time of payment, required records and issuance of wage statements were not regulations and Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board did not exceed authority in issuing such order. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

Construction

This District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board need not supply the same evidence or review its experience with previous wage orders to reestablish the various abuses and means of circumvention previously proscribed each time it issues a new minimum wage order. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

The specific expression, in sections 36–408 (b) and (c) of matter for regulations to be made by Commissioners cannot be taken as an indication by Congress that such matters cannot also be subject of a wage order. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

"Order" and "regulations" defined

An "Order" under section 36–407 is used to establish basic minimum level of income for an occupation and classification with additional provisions to insure its compliance, whereas "regulations" are used to make certain that there is coordination between all other government agencies or to secure inter-occupational uniformity. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

Review

Since the employers did not challenge terms and conditions of minimum wage order before the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board, employers will not be heard to complain on judicial review of the order. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

Validity of wage order

To be valid, the terms and conditions of minimum wage order need only be supported by determination of necessity. L Allentuck t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

§ 36–408. Regulations of Commissions—Contents—Notice and hearing—Effective date.

Section 402(281) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the regulatory and other functions of the Board of Commissioners, under this section relating to making and revising regulations, including definitions of terms, to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's Inc.* v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

(a) Any person aggrieved by an order of the Commissioners issued under this subchapter may obtain a review of such order in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals by filing in such court, within sixty days after the issuance of such order, a written petition praying that the order of the Commissioners be modified or set aside in whole or in part. The review shall be governed by the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, secs. 1–1501 to 1–1510).

(b) The commencement of proceedings under subsection (a) shall not, unless specifically ordered by the court, operate as a stay of the Commissioners' order. The court shall not grant any stay of the order unless the person complaining or such order shall file in court an undertaking with a surety or sureties, satisfactory to the court, for the payment to the employees affected by the order, in the event such order is affirmed, of the amount by which the compensation such employees are entitled to receive under the order exceeds the compensation they actually receive while such stay is in effect. § 36–501. Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act made applicable to District of Columbia.

The provisions of chapter 18 of title 33, U.S. Code, including all amendments that may hereafter be made thereto, shall apply in respect to the injury or death of an employee of an employer carrying on any employment in the District of Columbia, irrespective of the place where the injury or death occurs; except that in applying such provisions the term "employer" shall be held to mean every person carrying on any employment in the District of Columbia, and the term "employee" shall be held to mean every employee of any such person. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Aggravation of illness

Aggravation of a pre-existing condition may constitute compensable accidental injury under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner, etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Basis for rejection of claim

The rejection of a workmen's compensation claim for the death of an employee occurring during the course of employment cannot be supported as matter of law unless record contains substantial evidence showing that the death did not arise out of employment. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner, etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Commissioner's finding of fact

The findings of a deputy commissioner in proceedings under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act must be accepted as true unless they are not supported by substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole and may be set aside only if not in accordance with law. A. E. Van Devander and W. L. Massey v. Heller Electric Co., Inc., et al. (1968, 405 F. 2d 1108, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 40).

Construction

In order to bring a claimant within ambit of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act affording compensation for accidental injury or death arising out of and in course of employment there is a requirement that there be a continuity of cause, combined with continuity in time and space. A. E. Van Devander and W. L. Massey v. Heller Electric Co., Inc., et al. (1968, 405 F. 2d 1108, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 40).

Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act are required to be construed liberally in favor of employees and their dependents and it is in their favor that doubts, including the factual, are to be resolved. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner, etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Administrative findings in workmen's compensation case will not be sustained merely because they are substantiated by some isolated evidence and court's review must take account of settled rule that Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act is to be construed with view to its beneficent purposes. Id.

Contribution to a tort-feasor

Private employers in District of Columbia whose employees are within protection of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act may not be compelled to contribute to a tort-feasor held liable to the employee. J. S. Murray v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1361, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 91).

Course of employment

Accidents and death occurring while an employee is on his way to or from toilet facilities or while he is engaged in relieving himself, generally arise within course of employment for workmen's compensation purposes, subject to possible question of reasonableness of means or place chosen. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Evidence—Sufficiency

There was sufficient evidence to support the findings of deputy commissioner, in proceedings under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act, that injuries suffered by claimant when he fell asleep from fatigue while driving home after work were attributable to claimant's lack of sleep due to unusually long hours of work installing heavy electrical equipment and that such injuries arose out of and in the course of his employment. A. E. Van Devander and W. L. Massey v. Heller Electric Co., Inc., et al. (1968, 405 F. 2d 1108, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 40).

Exposure to hazards

It does not matter, for purposes of workmen's compensation award, that decedent employee was exposed to no more than ordinary hazards of working and living at the time he sustained fatal heart attack or that same kind of injury might have occurred wherever he might have been. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Extent of stress required

Unusual stress is not required for an award for injury sustained by an employee during the course of his employment and award should be granted so long as death or injury results from activity in course of his employment. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Payment of retirement and compensation benefits

Retirement benefits under pension system were payable over and above compensation awarded under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, where Act made invalid any agreement requiring employee to contribute to a fund for providing compensation or to waive his right to compensation, and pension plan provided that allowances were in addition to workmen's compensation benefits. W. Massey and W. G. White v. D.C. Transit System, Inc. (1967, 388 F. 2d 584, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 328).

Presumption

The fact that injury or death occurs in course of employment strengthens presumption that it arises out of employment, with doubts resolved in claimant's favor. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner, etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Rebuttal of presumption

The evidence did not dispel the statutory presumption that an employee, who was shown by autopsy report to have been suffering from marked arteriosclerotic heart disease, whose death resulted from myocardial insufficiency and who collapsed after urinating outside employer's building in cold weather, came within provisions of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner, etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Visible injury

An accidental injury may occur, within workmen's compensation law notwithstanding the injured employee has been engaged in his usual and ordinary activity and injury need not be external but it is enough if something unexpectedly goes wrong within the human frame. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

§ 36–502. Exceptions.

This chapter shall not apply in respect to the injury or death of (1) a master or member of a crew of any vessel; (2) an employee of a common carrier by railroad when engaged in interstate or foreign commerce or commerce solely within the District of Columbia; (3) an employee subject to the provisions of section 7902 and subchapter I of chapter 81 of title 5, U.S. Code, and sections 292 and 1920–1922 of title 18 U.S. Code and (4) an employee engaged in agriculture, domestic service, or any employment that is casual and not in the usual course of the trade, business, occupation, or profession of the employer; and (5) any secretary, stenographer, or other person performing any services in the office of any Member of Congress or under the direction, employment, or at the request of any Member of Congress, within the scope of the duties performed by secretaries, stenographers, or such employees of Members of Congress. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Owners liability to subcontractor

Where 23% of each progress report certified by architect was chargeable against down payment and note to be delivered and to begin to be due when warehouse construction work was completed and lender paid remaining 77% of amounts shown on the first ten of eleven certified progress requisitions and where owners terminated the contract, the down payment and note at least negated further obligations of owners in those amounts, and owners thus owed general contractor nothing when subcontractors filed mechanics' liens, after termination of contract, pursuant to District of Columbia statute providing in effect that if owner owes general contractor nothing subcontractors can collect nothing by mechanics' liens. Washington Concrete Sales Corporation, Inc., and R. L. Walutes etc. v. A. E. Morrisette et al. (1966, 377 F. 2d 137, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 252).

Evidence supported finding that owners, sued by subcontractors for enforcement of mechanics' liens filed under District of Columbia statute providing in effect that if owner owes general contractor nothing subcontractors can collect nothing, had completed building at cost higher than original contract price after terminating the contract. Id.

Mechanics Lien

The relation back preference of mechanic's lien does not affect the priority of a recorded purchase-money deed of trust, a priority that exceeds even that of a previous judgment. Guardian Federal Savings & Loan Association v. H. P. Suskind (D.C. App. 1970, 265 A. 2d 295).

Priority to surplus on foreclosure

In this case, the court held that the holder of purchase-money deed of trust (containing provision that it should be subordinate to any construction loan and all advances made under construction loan) is entitled, on foreclosure of first deed of trust held by construction lender, to priority with respect to surplus remaining after satisfaction of construction lender's debt and payment of foreclosure expenses, notwithstanding construction lender's claim to surplus to satisfy mechanic's lien it had paid against property. Guardian Federal Savings & Loan Association v. *H. The National Defense Act of June 3, 1916, was in turn repealed by act Aug. 10, 1956, 70A Stat. 641, ch. 1041, § 53 (this act enacted into law many of its provisions) and it is now covered by titles 10 and 32 of the U.S. Code. See tables in the U.S. Code.

§§ 39–109, 39–110. Repealed. Aug. 10, 1956, 70A Stat. 641, ch. 1041, § 53.

Section 39–109, act May 12, 1917, 40 Stat. 72, ch. 12, as amended by acts July 1, 1947, 61 Stat. 238, ch. 192, § 1(a); July 9, 1952, 66 Stat. 506, ch. 608, pt. VIII, § 804(a), which related to leaves of absence for employees of the United States and the District of Columbia who were members of the reserve components of the Armed Forces, is now covered by 5 U.S.C. §§ 502, 2105, 3551, 5534, 6323. See, particularly, 5 U.S.C. § 6323.

Section 39–110, act May 12, 1917, 40 Stat. 72, ch. 12, as amended by acts July 1, 1947, 61 Stat. 238, ch. 192, § 1(a); July 9, 1952, 66 Stat. 506, ch. 608, pt. VIII, § 804(a), which related to restoration of employees of the United States and the District of Columbia, who were members of the reserve components of the Armed Forces, to their government positions, when relieved from duty in such components, is now covered by 5 U.S.C. §§ 502, 2105, 3551, 5534, 6323. See, particularly, 5 U.S.C. § 3551.

§ 39–111. Disbanding companies below minimum strength.

CODIFICATION

In first sentence, words ", with the consent of the President," were inserted after "the commanding general may" on authority of a proviso in § 68 of act June 3, 1916, cited as one of the sources of this section, which read: "Provided, That no organization of the National Guard, members of which shall be entitled to and shall have received compensation under the provisions of this act, shall be disbanded without the consent of the President, nor, without such consent, shall the commissioned or enlisted strength of any such organization be reduced below the minimum that shall be prescribed therefor by the President.". Section 68 was repealed in its entirety by act Aug. 10, 1956, 70A Stat. 641, ch. 1041, § 53, and, including the quoted proviso, is now covered by 32 U.S.C. § 104. See, particularly, subsec. (f) thereof.

Section 14 of act Mar. 1, 1889, 25 Stat. 774, ch. 328, fixed the minimum number of enlisted men in any company at forty. That section was repealed by act Feb. 18, 1909, 35 Stat. 630, ch. 146. It was considered that § 11 of act Mar. 1, 1889, 25 Stat. 774, as amended by act Feb. 18, 1909, 35 Stat. 629, which related to composition of the National Guard, was intended to supersede repealed § 14, but § 11 was later superseded by § 60 of act June 3, 1916, 39 Stat. 197, ch. 134 (National Defense Act). The latter, however, which was formerly classified to § 39–107 and to 32 U.S.C. former § 5, has been repealed and is now covered by 32 U.S.C. § 104. See note under former § 39–107.

Chapter 2.—COMMISSIONED OFFICERS

§ 39–201. Commanding general—Appointment and removal—Rank.

(a) There shall be appointed and commissioned by the President of the United States a commanding general of the militia of the District of Columbia with the rank of brigadier-general, or major general, who shall hold office until his successor is

(Mar. 1, 1889, 25 Stat. 773, ch. 328, § 7; Sept. 2, 1957, 71 Stat. 596, Pub. L. 85–270, § 1; June 30, 1970, Pub. L. 91–297, title V, § 501(a), 84 Stat. 366.)

CODIFICATION

Act Feb. 18, 1909, 35 Stat. 629, ch. 146, amended act Mar. 1, 1889, 25 Stat. 772, ch. 328. Some of the sections of the 1889 act were repealed, some amended, and others were entirely new sections added by the act of 1909. In the history lines of this chapter, the section number of the 1889 act refers to the section of the original act as it appears in 25 Stat. 772 et seq. The section number in the 1909 act in the history line refers to the section of the 1889 act as amended by later act and shows the new number and wording of the section as it is found in 35 Stat. 629 et seq.

AMENDMENTS

1970—Section 501(a) of Pub. L. 91–297 inserted the designation "(a)" at the beginning of the section and added subsections (b) and (c).

1957—Section 1 of Pub. L. 85–270 inserted "or major general."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

Section 501(c) of Pub. L. 91–297 provided: "The amendment made by this section [to sec. 39–201] shall take effect on the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after the date of enactment of this title [June 30, 1970]."

§ 39–202. Staff officers—Appointment and removal—Noncommissioned staff.

CODIFICATION

As enacted by the act of Mar. 1, 1889, this section, after "President" at end of first sentence, contained the additional words: ", and hold office until their successors are appointed and qualified, but may be removed at any time by the President"; and, after "adjutant-general,", near beginning of second sentence, contained the words: "with the rank of lieutenant colonel,". These words were omitted from this section because apparently affected by a proviso in § 66 of act June 3, 1916, cited as one of the sources hereof, which read: "Provided, That the adjutants general of the Territories and of the District of Columbia shall be appointed by the President with such rank and qualifications as he may prescribe, and each adjutant general for a Territory shall be a citizen of the Territory for which he is appointed.", and which was classified to 32 U.S.C. former § 12. § 66 of act June 3, 1916 was repealed in its entirety by act Aug. 10, 1956, 70A Stat. 641, ch. 1041, § 53, and is now covered by 32 U.S.C. § 314. See, particularly, subsec. (b) thereof.

§ 39–203. Qualifications of staff officers—Tenure—Vacancies.

CODIFICATION

The paragraph of act July 11, 1919, 41 Stat. 127, ch. 8, classified to this section, contained an introductory clause as follows: "That to comply with the provisions of section 110, of the act entitled 'An Act for making further and more effectual provision for the national defense, and for other purposes,' approved June 3, 1916 [39 Stat. 209, ch. 134], it is hereby provided that staff officers" [etc.]. § 110 of act June 3, 1916, was repealed by act Aug. 10, 1956, 70A Stat. 641, ch. 1041, § 53, and is now covered by 32 U.S.C. §§ 303, 322, 323, 710; see, also, 31 U.S.C. § 698a, and 37 U.S.C. §§ 201, 203, 204, 206, 402, 414–417, 301, 309, 1002.

§ 39–205. Omitted.

CODIFICATION

Section, as enacted by act June 6, 1900, 31 Stat. 671, ch. 811, which was also classified to 10 U.S.C. former § 998, provided that the "President of the United States may detail as adjutant-general of the District of Columbia Militia any retired officer of the Army who may be nominated to the President by the brigadier-general commanding the District of Columbia Militia, said retired officer while so detailed to have the active service pay and allowances of his rank in the Regular Army." Although it was amended by act Sept. 2, 1957, 71 Stat. 596, Pub. L. 85–270, § 2, to substitute "commanding general of" for "brigadier-general commanding", it previously had been repealed by act Aug. 10, 1956, 70A Stat. 641, ch. 1041, § 53, having since been covered by 32 U.S.C. § 314(c), which also uses the term "commanding general", rather than the prior term "brigadier-general". As it is considered that the amendment of this repealed section by act Sept. 2, 1957, was an oversight, and that in any event this section is now covered by 32 U.S.C. § 314(c), this section is omitted from this Code.
